INTRODUCTION

All praise is due to Allāh ta'ālā, the Lord of the worlds. May the choicest salutations and most perfect peace be on our master, Muḥammad, who was sent as a mercy to the worlds. Peace and salutations to his family and all his Companions radiyallāhu 'anhum.

The generation of the Companions radiyallāhu 'anhum is considered to be the peak of expression in human history. They are the ones whom Allāh ta'ālā selected to be the companions of His Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam in the journey of bearing the message of guidance which emanated from the land of Makkah to carry goodness and guidance to all parts of the world. No generation in the past reached this rank, and no generation thereafter would ever reach such a position.

This is something which the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam had firmly attested to when he said: "The best of generations is my generation, then those who come after them..." Allāh ta'ālā affirms this by His words: "Allāh knows best where He places His message."

This is the generation which lived side by side with the verses of the Qur'ān as they were being revealed one after the other. It is a generation which lived side by side with the words, letters and every beat...it was present when the perspiration was flowing from the face of the Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam when he was receiving divine revelation.

This generation experienced the time of rejection and repulsion, and the time of torment and confinement. It then experienced the time of banishment and emigration because of one's beliefs. It then left behind its family, homeland and wealth so that it could commence with the phase of jihad in order to repulse the enmity [which was displayed towards Islam], and then to carry the light [of Islam] to the entire mankind.

All this was done in emulation of the Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam step by step. They obeyed his instructions and directives, abstained from what he prohibited, hearkened to his call, expressed joy at whatever caused him delight, and experienced grief over whatever caused him grief...they sacrificed their selves, families and wealth for him.

They were a unique people whose true value can only be ascertained by a true and genuine believer. And it is only a hypocrite who can belittle them.

They [the Sahābah] were given something which no other generation was ever given...their experiences, their knowledge and their understanding of matters are considered to be sources in the understanding of the Book of Allāh and the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam.

This is why their statements are considered to be an important source for every Muslim. Their statements convey a person to that most superior era, enable him to inhale that wonderful fragrance, and breathe in that all-pervading aroma...he is able to see - with the eyes of his heart - the personalities behind those names who are still filling the ears and eyes since time immemorial.

It were these and many other reasons which propelled me to collect the statements and exhortations of the Companions radiyallāhu 'anhum. Perhaps this will be a step towards returning to this religion and adhering to its teachings.

I hope Allāh ta'ālā returns the Muslims to their religion in an excellent manner, and He makes this and all our efforts solely for His sake. He is the only one to be asked. Salutations and peace to our master, Muḥammad sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam, to his family, and his Companions radiyallāhu 'anhum. Our final supplication is that all praise is due to Allāh alone, the Lord of the worlds.

A GOOD WORD

A good word has always been one of the active means in rectifying the ways of people and directing them towards the straight path. Many an evil doer or sinner may hear a good word which becomes the cause of his changing his ways and turning his direction, which then produces fruitful results.

Based on this, an 'ālim (scholar) is an extension of prophet-hood among the creation, and it is on this basis that the 'ulamā' are the inheritors of the Prophets. They are the guides of the ummah on the true path, and it is their lives and exhortations which become signposts on the road.¹

This is with regard to the effect which a good word has on a person's conduct, and which was defined by Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhu as follows:

"No believer gave a charity which was more beloved to Allāh ta'ālā than an exhortation with which he exhorts his people, and they then disperse after Allāh ta'ālā enabled them to benefit from it."

A good word has another effect which is no less than the previous effect: it is nourishment for the soul and the intellect. Just as the body needs nourishment to continue its tasks, the soul and intellect also need a different type of nourishment which can only be found in the treasures of a good word.

'Ali radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "Keep these hearts in concentration by seeking rare words of wisdom for them because they become weary just as the bodies become fatigued."

The statements of the Companions radiyallāhu 'anhum emphasise and highlight this point. In fact, some of them consider listening to good words to be from among the desirable factors for one's existence in this world.

'Umar ibn al-Khattāb radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "Were it not for three things, I would have desired to meet Allāh ta'ālā: (1) travelling to wage jihad in the cause of Allāh ta'ālā, (2) placing my face [in prostration] before Allāh ta'ālā, (3) sitting in the company of people who select good speech just as they select good fruit."

Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "Were it not for three things, I would not have desired living in this world: (1) placing my face in prostration before my Creator during the alternation of the night and day as a way of sending forth something for my life, (2) experiencing thirst because of the intense heat, (3) sitting in the company of people who seek good speech just as fruits are chosen."

The statement of 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu - and also of Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhu - portrays to us the exact social scene in the era of the Companions radiyallāhu 'anhum, viz. gathering around a table where words are dished out, selecting and choosing some of them just as people do when they gather around a table where fruits are served.

In fact, 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu and Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhu feel that gathering for such provision makes life and living more desirable.

In this way, a good word plays its role in the fields of direction, rectification and guidance just as it plays its role in revitalising the intellect and soul.

It is because of these reasons that the thought occurred to me to collate these exhortations and words of wisdom, while adopting the statement of Ibn Mas'ūd radiyallāhu 'anhu: "What an excellent assembly is the assembly in which wisdom is conveyed and in which mercy [of Allāh ta'ālā] is hoped for."

THE BOOK BEFORE YOU

The exhortations, words of wisdom and statements of the Companions radiyallāhu 'anhum hold the chief position after the Book of Allah [the Qur'an] and the Sunnah of His Messenger sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam. This is because they are derived from the statements of the Messenger sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam and they are the fruits from among the fruits of his training and lessons, and echoes of his exhortations.

The value and status of these exhortations are enhanced from this source. I do not know of any book having gathered them [in one book]. They are scattered in many books, and quoted as references on a particular subject when such a subject is studied and researched.

They are most likely to be found in the books of the Sunnah, the books of raqā'iq (statements which cause the hearts to soften) and zuhd (abstention), and books on morals and etiquette. A serious effort was required to collate all these statements and exhortations.

I was initially hesitant in taking up this task because of the effort, time and vast knowledge that is required for this. Whatever I present in this book are mere seeds for this task which I hope will be completed gradually. This is because the statements of the Companions radiyallāhu 'anhum are far more than what is expected.

The statements of a Companion radiyallāhu 'anhū are by and large repeated in all or most of the books of biographies and other books which speak about him. This causes one having to spend a lot of time to gather a little information. But this repetition is not devoid of benefit. In fact, it contains tremendous benefit, viz. the ability to compare one text from several sources, and then to choose the text which is most complete and most authentic. Many of the books quote a part or section of an exhortation, while other books contain many errors in this regard.

It is necessary for me to list a few points which would assist the reader in obtaining answers to questions which would crop up in his mind while studying this book.

1. The sequence in which the Companions radiyallāhu 'anhum are listed is as follows: I commenced with the 'Asharah Mubashsharah (the ten who were given the glad tidings of Paradise), and at their head are the Khulafā' Rāshidīn in accordance with the unanimous sequence in which they came. As for the remaining Companions radiyallāhu 'anhum, they are listed according to the earliest to have embraced Islam.
2. I did not provide the sanad (chain of narrations) in keeping with the practice of many of our 'ulamā' who wrote on the subjects of raqā'iq, morals and words of wisdoms, e.g. Imām Abū Hāmid al-Ghazzālī rahimahullāh. In fact, this was also the practice of some of the Tābi'ūn (those who came after the Companions radiyallāhu 'anhum). Al-Ḥasan al-Baṣrī rahimahullāh related a Ḥadīth one day. A person said to him: "O Abū Sa'īd! From whom [did you hear it]?" He asked: "What are you going to do with 'from whom'? His exhortation has reached you and his evidence has been established against you."¹

It seems – and Allāh knows best – that Imām al-Ḥasan used to differentiate one assembly from the other. He used to quote the asānīd (chains of narrators) in the assemblies of jurisprudence and Ḥadīth – as is related about him in the books of Sunan and Tafsīr. As for the assemblies of admonition, he would occasionally overlook the asānīd because the object of the admonition is to create an impact on the hearts and emotions. Such assemblies are not the same as the assemblies of studying and imparting knowledge. He considered taking admonition to be the object of the admonition.

Some of the latter scholars who are well-known for their demand for asānīd are known to have adopted a similar approach

[when it came to admonition and exhortation]. The following is mentioned in Kitāb al-Istiḳāmah of Imām Ibn Taymīyyah rahimahullāh: "On the authority of 'Umar ibn al-Khattāb radiyallāhu 'anhu that he wrote to Abū Mūsā al-Ash'arī: 'All good lies in being pleased [with the decree of Allāh]. If you are able to be pleased, well and good. If not, exercise patience.'"

Ibn Taymīyyah rahimahullāh then comments on this: "This is a good statement even though its sanad is not known."¹

And so, my not mentioning the sanad cannot be used as an excuse to criticize the book, more so because I provided the reference for each statement in the footnotes.

3. This collection is confined to the field of exhortations and words of wisdom. I did not quote statements which deal with injunctions.
4. I did not quote statements which contain the merits of a Companion radiyallāhu 'anhu because it is not my object to present the biographies of the Companions radiyallāhu 'anhum. If I mention anything in this regard, it will be because it has some bearing on the exhortation.

5. In the footnotes, I provided a short biography of each Companion radīyallāhu 'anhu whose exhortation is quoted.

6. I commenced the book with examples from the exhortations of the Messenger sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam because these are the basis. Authors set aside chapters for these exhortations under the titles of ar-Raqā'iq or ar-Raqā'iq wa az-Zuhd. Imām al-Bukhārī rahimahullāh is from among such authors when he did this in his Sahīh.

They are named such because each of them creates softness in the heart. Linguists say: ar-riqqah - ar-rahmah (riqqah means mercy). From here you get the terms raqīq al-qalb (soft-hearted) and qāsī al-qalb (hard-hearted).

The exhortations which I quote in the chapter on Raqā'iq will be confined to the sahīh (authentic) and hasan (sound) Ahādith. The source and number of each Hadith will also be provided.

I hope Allāh ta'ālā accepts this work, and we beseech Him alone.

EXHORTATIONS OF RASŪLULLĀH sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam

Abū Wā'il narrates: "Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radīyallāhu 'anhu used to exhort the people every Thursday, so a person said to him: 'O Abū 'Abd ar-Rahmān! I wish you could exhort us every day.' He replied: 'Listen! I dislike causing you to become fatigued, and so this is preventing me from that [i.e. from exhorting you every day]. I set aside a certain day for your exhortation just as Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam used to set aside a day for our exhortation out of fear that we might become fatigued.'"¹

This Hadith records one fact from the actions of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam and 'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radīyallāhu 'anhu conveys it to us through his action and then emphasises it by his words.

He used to exhort the people every Thursday. In other words, once a week. He did not do more than this despite the listeners' request for more. He informed them that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam used to do this, and that he would like to adhere to his Sunnah. He then explains the wisdom behind it.

The following points from the Hadīth are applicable to our discussion:

1. Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam used to exhort the people but did not overdo it so that it does not cause fatigue to them.
2. These exhortations were different from the injunctions for which revelation used to be sent down, and which ought to be conveyed without any delay. This is especially so if the revelation was related to a specific time.

This means that the subject of these exhortations was with regard to advising and reminding them of things which had already been established, matters related to etiquette and behaviour, or matters related to the Hereafter.

3. The Companions radiyallāhu 'anhum fulfilled their responsibility of exhorting the people after the demise of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam. 'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radiyallāhu 'anhu was from among such Companions radiyallāhu 'anhum.
4. The Companions radiyallāhu 'anhum used to emulate all the actions of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam both in their form and in the subject matter.

There are verses which emphasise the need for exhortation as mentioned in the Hadīth. One such verse is this: "And remind, because reminding benefits the believers." (Sūrah adh-Dhāriyāt, 51: 55)

Al-'Irbād ibn Sāriyah radiyallāhu 'anhu relates to us the nature of the exhortations of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam. He portrays to us one of the scenes of his exhortations:

Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam led us in ṣalāh one day. He then turned towards us and delivered a very comprehensive exhortation to us. Our hearts trembled by it and our eyes shed tears. We said: 'O Rasūlullāh! This seems to be the exhortation of a person bidding farewell. So advise us.' He said: 'I advise you to constantly fear Allāh, and to listen and obey even if an Abyssinian slave were to rule over you. Whoever remains alive from among you [after me], will witness many differences. You should therefore resort to my Sunnah and the way of the rightly guided caliphs. Adhere to it and hold on to it with the molars. Beware of introducing new things into the religion. Every new thing is an innovation, and every innovation is deviation.'¹

There is no doubt whatsoever with regard to Rasūlullāh's sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam exhortations being conveyed to us. The majority of the Ahādith of ar-raqā'iq are the subject matter of these exhortations.

The remembrance of Allāh ta'ālā

Abū Hurayrah radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "Allāh ta'ālā has angels who move around on the roads searching for the people of remembrance (dhikr) [those who engage in the remembrance of Allāh ta'ālā]. When they find people engaging in the remembrance of Allāh ta'ālā, they call out to each other saying: 'Come to the thing which you were searching for.' He said: 'They then cover them with their wings [piling up one above the other] until they reach the lowest heaven. Their Lord - who knows best about them - asks them: 'What are My servants saying?' They reply: "They are glorifying You, speaking of Your greatness, praising You, and exalting You." Allāh ta'ālā asks: "Have they seen Me?" They reply: "No, by Allāh, they have not seen You." He asks: "What if they were to see Me?" They reply: "If they were to see You, they would be more ardent in their worship of You, more intense in Your exaltation, and they would glorify You more abundantly." He asks: "What are they asking for?" They reply: "They are asking You for Paradise." He asks: "Have they seen it?" They reply: "No, by Allāh, they have not seen it." He asks: "What if they were to see it?" They reply: "If they were to see it, they would be more desirous of it, their quest for it would be more intense, and their yearning for it would be greater." He asks: "From what are they seeking refuge?" They reply: "They are seeking refuge from the Hell-fire." He asks: "Have they seen it?" They reply: "No, by Allāh, they have not seen it." He asks: "What if they were to see it?" They reply: "If they were to see it, they would flee from it more swiftly and their fear of it would be more intense." He says: "I make you witness to the fact that I have forgiven them." One of the angels says: "There is such and such person among them. He is not part of them. He merely came there for some work." Allāh ta'ālā replies: "They are such companions, that even the one sitting with them is not deprived."¹

Supplication (du'ā')

Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates from the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam who narrates from Allāh ta'ālā that He said: "O My servants! I have made oppression prohibited upon Myself and made it prohibited among yourselves as well. So do not wrong each other. O My servants! All of you are astray except the one whom I guide. Therefore ask Me for guidance and I will guide you. O My servants! All of you are hungry except the one whom I feed. So ask Me to feed you and I will feed you. O My servants! All of you are naked except the one whom I clothe. So ask Me to clothe you and I will clothe you. O My servants! You commit sins by day and night, and I forgive all sins. Therefore seek forgiveness from Me and I will forgive you. O My servants! If you wish to harm Me, you will never be able to harm Me. And if you wish to benefit Me, you will never be able to benefit Me. O My servants! If all your past and future generations, and all the humans and jinn were to reach the level of the most righteous among you, it will not increase My sovereignty in any way. O My servants! If all your past and future generations, and all the humans and jinn were to reach the level of the most wicked among you, it will not decrease My sovereignty in any way. O My servants! If all your past and future generations, and all the humans and jinn were to all stand on a single field, and they were to ask Me [whatever they desired] and I gave to every person whatever he asked for, it will not decrease My treasures in any way except as when a needle is dipped in the ocean.¹ O My servants! It is your deeds which I store for you, and I will then give you your compensation in full. Therefore, whoever does good, should thank Allāh. And whoever does evil, he should blame none but himself [because evils are committed by the demands of his self]."²

¹ The 'ulamā' say that this is merely to facilitate our understanding. What it actually means is that the treasures of Allāh ﷻ are never ever decreased in any way. The needle is merely used as an example.

The foundations of Islam

Mu'adh ibn Jabal radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates: "I asked: 'O Messenger of Allāh! Inform me of a deed which will admit me into Paradise and keep me far away from the Hell-fire.' He replied: 'You have asked about a very serious matter. It is very easy for the person for whom Allāh ta'ālā makes it easy. Worship Allāh without ascribing any partners to Him, establish ṣalāh, give zakāh, fast in Ramādān and make the pilgrimage (hajj) to the House [Ka'bah].'

He then asked: 'Should I not show you the doors of good? Fasting is a shield, charity extinguishes sins as water extinguishes fire, and ṣalāh of a person offered in the dark of the night.' He then recited this verse: 'Their sides remain away from their sleeping places, calling on their Lord with fear and longing. And they spend out of what We provided for them. So no soul knows what bliss is in store for them – a recompense for what they used to do.' (Sūrah as-Sajdah, 32: 16-17)

He then asked: 'Should I not inform you of the head of the matter, its pillar, and its peak?' I replied: 'Indeed, O Messenger of Allāh!' He said: 'The head of the matter is Islam. Its pillar is ṣalāh. And its peak is jihād.'

He then asked: 'Should I not inform you of the essential prerequisite of all this?' I replied: 'Indeed, O Messenger of Allāh!' He took hold of his tongue and said: 'Restrain this.' I asked: 'O

Messenger of Allāh! Will we be taken to task for what we speak?' He replied: 'May your mother be bereft of you.¹ The people will be cast into the Hell-fire on their faces - or on their noses - solely because of the earnings of their tongues.'²

Al-Hārith al-Ash'arī radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: 'Allāh ta'ālā ordered Yahyā ibn Zakarīyyā عليه السلام to practise on five things and to order the Banū Isrā'īl to practise on them. He delayed a bit in carrying out this order so 'Isā عليه السلام said to him: 'Allāh ta'ālā ordered you to practise on five things and to order the Banū Isrā'īl to practise on them. Are you going to order them, or should I order them?'

'Yahyā عليه السلام replied: 'I fear that if you were to carry out this order before me, I might be absorbed by the earth or punished [in some other way].'

'So he assembled the people in Bayt al-Maqdis. The musjid was filled to capacity so the people climbed onto the balconies. He then said: 'Allāh ta'ālā ordered me to practise on five things and to order you to practise on them.'

'The first of them is: that you worship Allāh without ascribing any partner to Him. A person who ascribes partners with Allāh ta'ālā is like a person who purchases a slave with his pure earnings - either with gold or silver - and says: 'This is my house and this is the work which you have to do for me. You must do the work and give the profits to me.' He began working and was giving the profits to someone other than his master. Now who from among you will accept his slave to be like that?'

² أخرجه الترمذي برقم (٢٦١٦) وابن ماجة برقم (٢٩٧٣).

'Allāh ta'ālā orders you to establish ṣalāh. When you perform your ṣalāh, do not look around because Allāh ta'ālā directs His countenance towards His servant's face when the latter is in ṣalāh as long as he does not look around.'

'I order you to keep fast. The similitude of fasting is like that of a person who is with a group of people, and he has with him a container of musk. Each of them is attracted to its fragrance. The fragrance which emanates from the mouth of a fasting person is purer in the sight of Allāh ta'ālā than the fragrance of musk.'

'I order you to give charity. The similitude of charity is like that of a person who is captured by the enemy. They tie his hands to his neck and push him forward in order to chop off his neck. He says to them: 'I will pay you ransom - no matter how much you want - in order to free myself.' And so, he frees himself from them [by paying them whatever ransom they demand].'

"I order you to engage in the remembrance of Allāh ta'ālā. The similitude of that is like a person who is pursued by an enemy who is hastening in his pursuit. He eventually reaches a strongly fortified fort and protects himself from them. Similar is the case with a person – he cannot protect himself against Satan except through the remembrance of Allāh ta'ālā."

The Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "I am now ordering you to do five things which Allāh ta'ālā ordered me to do: to listen, to obey, to wage jihad, to emigrate (hijrah), and to adhere to the jamā'ah (the general body of Muslims). The person who separates himself from the jamā'ah even to the extent of one hand span, he has removed the noose of Islam from his neck unless he returns to it. The one who makes a call of the days of ignorance (jāhiliyyah) shall be from among those who are destined to the Hell-fire."

A person asked: "O Messenger of Allāh! Even if he establishes ṣalāh and keeps fast?"

He replied: "Even if he establishes ṣalāh and keeps fast. O servants of Allāh! Call in the name of Allāh ta'ālā who named you Muslims and believers."¹

Adhering to the Sunnah

Abū Mūsā al-Ash'arī radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "My similitude and the similitude of what Allāh ta'ālā sent me with is like that of a person who went to some people and said: 'O people! I have seen the army with my very eyes, and I am the naked warner.'¹ Try to save yourselves!' A group of his people obeyed him, departed in the first part of the night, proceeded immediately, and were thus saved. Another group of people did not listen to him and remained in their places. The army attacked them in the morning, destroyed them, and completely annihilated them. That is the similitude of the person who obeys me and follows whatever I came with, and the person who disobeys me and rejects the truth which I came with."²

Making the most of an opportunity

Ibn 'Abbās radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "There are two bounties by which many people are deceived: good health and free time."

² متفق عليه (خ ٧٢٨٣، م ٢٢٨٣).

This Hadith directs our attention towards two bounties which Allāh ta'ālā bestows on man. Rarely does man value these bounties, and rarely does he benefit from them in the prescribed and correct manner. Man is suspended between good health and illness. He does not know the value of good health unless illness overtakes him, or he visits or sees people who are ill.

Illness is one of the major obstacles which prevents man from fulfilling deeds – irrespective of whether they are religious or worldly deeds. The period of good health is therefore a great bounty which an intelligent person must take benefit from by doing things which would benefit him in matters related to this world and matters related to the Hereafter. He must hastening in deriving benefit from it with as much as he can before illness overtakes him and comes as an obstacle to his goals. The person who wastes away his period of good health by falling into idleness and inactivity, and does not occupy himself with good, is most certainly a deceived person because he has sold away something valuable without obtaining anything in return.

The second bounty is free time. Free time refers to time which passes by you without your having anything to occupy you in that time. This time is extremely valuable and priceless. If man occupies his time in doing good, it will be in his share. But if he leaves it to pass by without occupying himself with anything – and this is what is known as killing time – or he occupies himself in futile activity, then such a person is truly deceived. Time is actually life, and so, it is the most valuable thing which he owns. He should therefore spend it in nothing except something which is more valuable than it, viz. that which would be his capital in the Hereafter on the scale of good deeds.

Ibn Hubayrah rahimahullāh records the value of time as follows:

والوقت أنفس ما عنت بحفظه – وأراك أسهل ما عليك بضيع

“Time is the most valuable thing which you can pay attention to in safeguarding. Yet I see that it is the easiest thing for you to waste.”

Our pious predecessors rahimahumullāh were fully aware of the value of time. They explained this to the people and urged them to take maximum benefit from it. Al-Hasan al-Baṣrī rahimahullāh said: “O man! You are merely made up of days. As each day passes, a part of you departs.” He said: “I met people who were more desirous over their lives than their dirhams and dīnārs.” He – rahimahullāh – goes even further in explaining the value of time and calling towards deriving benefit from it in a letter which he wrote to the caliph, ‘Umar ibn ‘Abd al-‘Azīz rahimahullāh. He says: “There is no price and no equal for whatever of life is left. If the entire world was accumulated, it will not equal a single day which remains in a person’s life.”

"You should therefore not sell "today" and do not exchange it for anything of the world without first obtaining its price. There should be no dead person who considers that which is in your hand to be more valuable than your own self. And that is what belongs to you."

"By Allāh, if a person who is buried in his grave was told: "We are making this entire world from beginning to end for your children after you. They will enjoy it after you depart. When you were alive, your entire concern was devoted to them. Will this be more beloved to you, or a day in which you can come into this world and do something for yourself?" He would choose the latter. If he were given a choice between "today" and anything else, he would choose "today". He would do this out of desire for it and attaching value to it."

"In fact, if he was given the choice of just a single hour [and the entire world], he would choose the single hour for himself. If he were told that several times of what was described to him are to be offered to others, he would still say he wants that single hour, and others can have whatever else you offer to them."

We conclude the explanation of this Hadīth and this second bounty [i.e. free time] with this fine picture of the value of time which Imam al-Hasan al-Basrī rahimahullāh painted. This bounty of "free time" has to be spent in doing good and deriving benefit from it. It should not be left free and allowed to be wasted away. If a person allows this to happen, he will be really deceived.

Ibn 'Abbās radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said to a person while exhorting him: "Value five things before five things overtake you: (1) your youth before your old age, (2) your good health before your illness, (3) your prosperity before your poverty, (4) your free time before your preoccupation, (5) your life before your death."¹

This world

Abū Hurayrah radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "This world is a prison for the believer and a paradise for the unbeliever."²

Jābir ibn 'Abdillāh radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam passed by the market-place with people on either side of him. He passed by a dead kid of a goat which had small ears. He held it by its ear and asked: "Which of you would like to purchase this for one dirham?" The Companions  replied: "We would not want to take it in exchange for anything. What can we do with it?" He asked: "Would you like to have it for free?" The Companions replied: "By Allāh, even if it was alive, it would have been defective because of its small ears. How can we even like it now that it is dead?" He said: "By Allāh, the world is more insignificant in the sight of Allāh ta'ālā than this kid is to you."¹

'Abdullāh ibn 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates: "The Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam held me by my shoulder and said: 'Live in this world as though you are a stranger or one who is crossing a road.'²

Zayd ibn Thābit radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates: I heard the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam saying: "When a person makes this world his sole concern, Allāh ta'ālā causes his affairs to be scattered, causes him to see his poverty before his very eyes, and he shall obtain nothing of this world except what was destined for him. When a person makes the Hereafter his sole concern, Allāh ta'ālā brings together all his affairs, provides him with prosperity in his heart [contentment], and the world comes before him while it holds no importance to him."³ sallam saying: "If man owned two valleys of wealth he would have sought a third valley. Nothing but soil will fill the belly of man. Allāh ta'ālā accepts the repentance of the one who repents to Him."¹

Greed for this world

Ibn 'Abbās radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates: I heard the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa

Anas ibn Mālik radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "As man gets older, two things increase with him: love for wealth and a desire for long life."²

Al-Miswar ibn Makhramah narrates: Abū 'Ubaydah radiyallāhu 'anhu came with wealth from Bahrain and the Anṣār heard about the arrival of Abū 'Ubaydah radiyallāhu 'anhu. They therefore came to offer the fajr ṣalāh with the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam. When the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam completed the ṣalāh, he turned around and the Anṣār came in front of him. The Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam smiled when he saw them and said: 'I assume you heard that Abū 'Ubaydah brought something?' They replied: 'Indeed, O Messenger of Allāh.' He said: 'Glad tidings to you and have hopes for what would cause you happiness. By Allāh, I do not fear poverty on you. Rather, I fear the world being laid out before you as it was for those who were before you. You would then compete with each other in acquiring it as they competed with each other. It would then destroy you as it had destroyed them."¹

Do not trivialize the bounty of Allāh ta'ālā

Abū Hurayrah radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "Look at those who are below you [in worldly possessions] and do not look at those who are above you. It is more likely you will not trivialize the bounty of Allāh ta'ālā on you."²

The similitude of this world in the Hereafter

Mustawrid radiyallāhu 'anhu - the comrade of the Banū Fahr - narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "By Allāh, the similitude of this world in comparison to the Hereafter is like one of you dipping this finger of his - and he pointed to the index finger - in the ocean and then looking at how much water attaches itself on his finger."³

In other words, just as the water that attaches itself onto the finger is very little when compared to the rest of the ocean, in like manner the life of this world is very short when compared to the Hereafter.

Hastening towards repentance

Abū Mūsā radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "Allāh ta'ālā extends His hand at night so that the one who committed sins during the day may turn in repentance to Him. He extends His hand in the day so that the one who committed sins during the night may turn in repentance to Him. This shall continue until the sun rises from where it sets [i.e. the west, before the Final Hour]."¹

Anas radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "Allāh ta'ālā is more pleased by the repentance of His servant than one of you who was on his camel in a deserted land. The camel slipped away from him together with his food and drink which were loaded on it. He becomes despondent of finding it and goes to a tree and lies down in its shade, having no hope of finding it. While he is lying down, he suddenly sees his camel standing before him. He holds it by its reins and exclaims out of extreme joy: 'O Allāh! You are my servant and I am Your Lord.' He errs because of his extreme joy [at finding his camel]."²

The best way of seeking forgiveness

Shaddād ibn Aus radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "The best way of seeking forgiveness is for a person to say:

اللَّهُمَّ أَنْتَ رَبِّي، لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا أَنْتَ، خَلَقْتَنِي وَأَنَا عَبْدُكَ، وَأَنَا عَلَى عَهْدِكَ وَوَعْدِكَ مَا اسْتَطَعْتُ، أَعُوذُ بِكَ مِنْ شَرِّ مَا صَنَعْتُ، أَبُوءُ لَكَ بِنِعْمَتِكَ عَلَيَّ، وَأَبُوءُ لَكَ بِذُنُوبِي، فَاعْفُرْ لِي، فَإِنَّهُ لَا يَغْفِرُ الذُّنُوبَ إِلَّا أَنْتَ.

"O Allāh! You are my Lord. There is none worthy of worship except You. You created me and I am Your servant. I shall remain on Your covenant and promise as much as I can. I seek refuge in You from the evil which I committed. I acknowledge Your bounties on me, and I confess my sins. Forgive me, then, surely none forgives sins except You."

"The one who says the above words with full conviction during the day and passes away before the night shall be from the people of Paradise. The one who says them with full conviction at night and passes away before the next morning shall be from the people of Paradise."¹

Wealth

Abū Hurayrah radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa

sallam said: "Affluence is not based on an abundance of possessions. Rather, true affluence is contentment of the heart."¹

'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam asked: "Which of you loves the wealth of his inheritor more than his own wealth?" The Companions رضي الله عنهم replied: "O Messenger of Allāh! There is none among us who does not love his own wealth." He said: "His own wealth is what he sent forward [spent in good causes], and the wealth of his inheritors is what he held back."²³

Abū Hurayrah radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "The slave of the dīnār,⁴ dirham, velvet, and striped sheet⁵ is destroyed. When he is given anything, he is pleased. When he is not given, he is displeased."⁶

⁴ That is, a person who is extremely desirous in accumulating wealth and protecting it. It is as though he is enslaved to his wealth.

⁵ Velvet and striped sheet are just two examples of wealth which enslave a person.

Types of charity

Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "Your smiling face to your brother is a charity in your favour. Commanding good and prohibiting evil is a charity in your favour. Giving directions to a person who has lost the way is a charity in your favour. Removing a rock, thorn and bone from the path is a charity in your favour. Pouring from your bucket into your brother's utensil is a charity in your favour."¹

Lofty matters

Abū Hurayrah radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "O Abū Hurayrah! Become abstinent and you will be the most ardent of people. Become content and you will be the most grateful of people. Love for people what you love for yourself and you will be a true believer. Be a good neighbour to your neighbours and you will be a true Muslim. Reduce your laughter because excessive laughter kills the heart."²

Perfection of īmān

Abū Umāmah radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "The one who loves for the sake of Allāh, ² أخرجه ابن ماجه برقم ٤٢١٧.

abhors for the sake of Allāh, gives for the sake of Allāh and refuses for the sake of Allāh has certainly sought to perfect his īmān."¹

Hastening with deeds

Abū Hurayrah radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "Hasten with good deeds before there comes a time when there will be trials and tribulations following one after another like a dark night.² A person will be a believer in the morning and will become an unbeliever in the evening. He will be a believer in the evening and become an unbeliever in the morning. He will sell his religion for paltry worldly effects."³

All situations are to the advantage of a believer

Suhayb radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "How excellent the situation of a believer is! All his situations are to his advantage.⁴ This is enjoyed by none but a believer. When he experiences occasions of happiness and he is grateful over them, it is to his advantage. When he experiences occasions of distress and he is patient over them, it is to his advantage.”¹

Allāh ta’ālā loves meeting such a person

‘Ubādah ibn as-Sāmit radiyallāhu ‘anhu narrates that the Prophet sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam said: “Allāh ta’ālā loves meeting the person who loves to meet Him, and dislikes meeting the person who dislikes to meet Him.” ‘Ā’ishah radiyallāhu ‘anhā or one of his other wives asked: “O Messenger of Allāh! Surely all of us dislike death.” He replied: “That is not what it means. Rather, when death comes to a believer and he is given the glad tidings of Allāh’s mercy and pleasure, there is nothing more beloved to him than what is before him. He thus desires to meet Allāh and Allāh also likes to meet such a person. As for the unbeliever, when death comes to him and he is given the tidings of the punishment and wrath of Allāh, there is nothing more abhorrent to him than what is before him. He dislikes meeting Allāh. And Allāh also dislikes meeting such a person.”²

Glad tidings to the strangers

Abū Hurayrah radiyallāhu ‘anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam said: “Islam commenced as a stranger and

The one who reaches sixty years of age

Abū Hurayrah radiyallāhu ‘anhu narrates that the Prophet sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam said: “Allāh ta’ālā excuses a person whose life He lengthened till he reaches sixty years of age.”²

Anas radiyallāhu ‘anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam said: “Three things accompany the deceased [to his grave]: his family, his wealth, and his deeds. Two things return and one remains with him. His family and wealth return, and his deeds remain with him.”³

Abū Hurayrah radiyallāhu ‘anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam said: “Man says: ‘This is my wealth, this is my wealth.’ However, his wealth is only these three things: what he ate and digested, what he wore and wore out, or gave in charity and thereby stored it [for the Hereafter]. Fear and hope

Abū Hurayrah radiyallāhu ‘anhu narrates that the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam said: “If a believer were to come to know of the punishment of Allāh sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam, he would have no hope for His Paradise. If an unbeliever were to come to know of the mercy of Allāh ta’ālā, he would not despair of His Paradise.”²

Anas radiyallāhu ‘anhu narrates that the Prophet sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam went to a youngster when he was on the throes of death. He asked him: “How are you feeling?” He replied: “O Messenger of Allāh! I have hope in Allāh and I fear my sins.” The Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam said: “When these two qualities are collectively found in the heart of a person, Allāh ta’ālā most certainly gives him what he hopes for and provides him with protection against what he fears.”³

One shall be questioned about bounties

Abū Hurayrah radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates: "The Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam came out one day or one night, when he saw Abū Bakr radiyallāhu 'anhu and 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu. He asked them: 'What has caused you two to come out of your homes at this hour?' They replied: 'Hunger, O Messenger of Allāh!' He said: 'I take an oath in the name of the Being in whose control is my life, the very thing which forced you out of your homes has forced me out of my house as well.' They walked with him till they came to the house of an Anṣārī person, but he was not at home. When the man's wife saw the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam, she said: 'Welcome.' The Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam asked her: 'Where is such and such [referring to her husband]?' She replied: 'He went to bring sweet drinking water for us.' The Anṣārī man came soon after that. He looked at the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam and his two companions and said: 'All praise is due to Allāh. Today, no one has more honourable guests than me.' He went and brought them a branch which had green, ripe and fully ripe dates, and said: 'You may eat these.' He then took a slaughtering knife. The Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said to him: 'Do not slaughter a milk-providing animal.' He slaughtered a goat for them. They ate of the goat, from the branch of dates, and drank the water [which he had brought]. When their hunger was satiated and their thirst was quenched, the

If you do not commit sins

Hoping for death

Anas ibn Mālik radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates that the Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "No one should hope for death because of a calamity which has afflicted him. If he really has to hope for it, he should say: 'O Allāh! Permit me to live as

ABŪ BAKR radiyallāhu 'anhu

His life in a few lines

He is 'Abdullāh ibn 'Uthmān ibn 'Āmir ibn 'Amr ibn Ka'b ibn Sa'd ibn Taym. He is from the Banū Taym tribe which is from the Quraysh.

He was born two and half years after the Year of the Elephants. He is thus just over two years younger than the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam.

He was a companion of the Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam even before he was commissioned as a Prophet. He was the first male to embrace Islam.

He remained in the companionship of the Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam throughout his stay in Makkah. He accompanied him on the emigration (hijrah), remained with him in the cave, and joined him in all the battles until his demise. He is one of those who was given the glad tidings of Paradise in this world.

He became the caliph after the Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam. The Muslims gave him the title of Khalīfatu Rasūlillāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam (the deputy/caliph of the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam).

He put an end to the apostasy and the conquests commenced during his era.

The first compilation of the Qur'ān was completed during his era.

He passed away on a Tuesday night on 22 Jumādā al-Ākhirah 13 A.H. He was sixty three years old at the time and his caliphate lasted for two years, three months and ten days.

The Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "If I were to take a bosom friend from my ummah I would have taken Abū Bakr. However, it is the brotherhood and love of Islam [which transcends everything]."

Humility

He addressed the people after his appointment to the caliphate. He praised and glorified Allāh ta'ālā and said:

"O people! I have been appointed over you although I am not the best among you.¹ However, the Qur'ān came down and the Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam showed the Sunnah. He taught us and we learnt from him. Know that the best intelligence is piety and the worst stupidity is immorality. The strongest among you in my sight is the one who is weak until I fulfil his right. The weakest among you in my sight is the one who is strong until I compel him to fulfil his right. O people! I am merely a follower and I am not an innovator. If I do good, help me. But if I deviate, correct me."¹

Take stock of your self

Abū Bakr radiyallāhu 'anhu said in one of his sermons:

"Take stock of your selves before you are brought to account for your deeds. When any nation abandons waging jihad in the cause of Allāh ta'ālā, He most certainly inflicts them with poverty. When immorality [and licentiousness] spreads in a community, Allāh ta'ālā most certainly imposes a general calamity upon them."²

Warning

Abū Bakr radiyallāhu 'anhu said in one of his sermons:

Listen! By Allāh, I am not the best among you. I disliked this position of mine and I hoped there would be someone among you who would fulfil this responsibility for me. Do you think I will impose the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam on you and not uphold it myself? So if I become angry, remain aloof from me lest I harm your hair and skin. Listen! Be wary of me..."^{1 2}

Fundamentals and principles

When death approached Abū Bakr radiyallāhu 'anhu, he called for 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu and said to him:

"Fear Allāh, O 'Umar! Know that certain deeds have to be done for Allāh ta'ālā during the day which He does not accept when they are done by night. And there are certain deeds which have to be done at night which He does not accept when they are done by day."³

² Al-Hasan al-Basrī rahimahullāh said with regard to this sermon: "By Allāh, no one ever delivered a sermon like this after him."

"Furthermore, Allāh ta'ālā does not accept an optional deed until the obligatory deed is fulfilled."¹

"Those whose scale of deeds will be heavy on the day of Resurrection shall be so because they followed the truth in this world and considered it to be serious. Therefore, when the truth is placed in the scale tomorrow, it will most certainly be heavy."

"As for those whose scale of deeds will be light on the day of Resurrection, it will be so because they followed falsehood in this world and considered it to be trivial. Therefore, when falsehood is placed in the scale tomorrow, it will most certainly be light."² appointed time. Procrastination leads to work piling up, resulting in total failure in completing it.

² Man should look at the deeds which he is doing in this world and rectify them because they are going to be placed in his scale on the day of Resurrection, and he will be taken to account on the basis of these deeds. He should therefore assess his deeds before they are placed in the scale of Allāh ﷻ on the day of Resurrection.

"When Allāh ta'ālā described the inhabitants of Paradise, He spoke about their most virtuous deeds and the fact that He overlooked their evils. When I think of these people, I think to myself: 'I fear I will not be able to join them.'"

"When Allāh ta'ālā described the inmates of the Hell-fire, He spoke about their vilest deeds and rejected their good deeds. When I think of these people, I think to myself: 'I hope I am not placed with them.' A person has to possess the qualities of yearning and fear. He must neither place too much hope in Allāh's mercy, nor must he be despondent of Allāh's mercy."¹

"If you remember and uphold this advice of mine, there will be nothing of the unseen more beloved to you than death - which is bound to come to you. If you disregard this advice of mine, there will be nothing of the unseen more detestable to you than death - and you will not be able to escape it."²

¹ Man must be suspended between yearning and fear. He must not be so overpowered by fear that he becomes totally despondent. He must not be so overpowered by feeling secure that it leads him to lethargy and then having hopes in Allāh's mercy.

If man adheres to these fundamentals, he will never feel threatened by death. This is because he has made sufficient preparations for it.

In such a situation, you must adhere to the masājīd (plural of musjid), seek counsel from the Qur'ān, hold on firmly to obedience, and do not distance yourself from the jamā'ah (the main body of Muslims). The conclusion of sermons

This used to be the final supplication (du'ā') of Abū Bakr radiyallāhu 'anhu in his sermons:

Warning against this world

'Abd ar-Rahmān ibn 'Auf radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates:

"I went to visit Abū Bakr radiyallāhu 'anhu when he was on his death-bed. I offered salām (Islamic greeting) to him, and he said:

"I saw the attractions of this world approaching, but they have not fully approached as yet. But they are definitely coming nearer. You people will resort to curtains made of silk and pillows made of silk brocade. You will be pained by the woollen beds of Azerbaijan as though you were sleeping on a bed of thorns. By Allāh, if any one of you were to step forward and have his head chopped off without any due cause, it would be better for him than to swim in the abundance of this world."²

That in which there is no good

Abū Bakr radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Do you not know that you are departing in the morning and returning in the evening for an appointed time? There is no good in a statement in which the pleasure of Allāh ta'ālā is not sought. There is no good in wealth which is not spent for the cause of Allāh ta'ālā. There is no good in a person whose forbearance is overpowered by his ignorance. There is no good in a person who fears the criticism of critics in matters concerned with Allāh ta'ālā."¹

Reminding about the Hereafter

Abū Bakr radiyallāhu 'anhu delivered a sermon and said:

"I advise you to fear Allāh ta'ālā for your poverty and deprivation. I advise you to praise Him in a manner that is due to Him. And I advise you to seek His forgiveness for He is certainly most forgiving."

"You should realize that the more devoted you remain to Allāh ta'ālā, the more obedient you will be to your Lord, and the more of your rights you will be safeguarding."

"Where are those whom you knew of your companions and brothers? They reached the abode for which they had sent forth [either evil deeds or good deeds]. And so, they are either in torment or enjoying good fortune. Allāh ta'ālā has no family ties with any of His creation whereby He could give that person some good, and turn evil away from him. This can only be achieved through obedience to Him and following His orders."

"There is no goodness in any good if it leads you to the Hell-fire. And there is no evil in any evil if it leads you to Paradise. I now conclude this sermon of mine, and I seek forgiveness from Allāh ta'ālā for me and you."¹

Do not look down on anyone

Abū Bakr radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

Beware of boasting

The following is from a sermon of Abū Bakr radiyallāhu 'anhu:

"O People! I advise you to fear Allāh in every matter and under every situation. Adhere to the truth in both your likes and your dislikes. There is no good in anything apart from honesty in speech. The person who lies becomes immoral, and the one who becomes immoral is bound to be destroyed."

"O servants of Allāh! Fear Allāh and be constantly conscious of Him. Take a lesson from those who passed away before you. You should know that there is no escape from meeting your Lord and being recompensed for all your deeds – the minor and major deeds – except for what Allāh ta'ālā forgives. 'UMAR IBN AL-KHATTĀB radiyallāhu 'anhu

He is 'Umar ibn al-Khattāb ibn Nufayl ibn 'Abd al-'Uzzā ibn Riyāh ibn Quraz ibn Razāh ibn 'Adiyy ibn Ka'b ibn Lu'ayy, from the Quraysh tribe.

He was born thirteen years after the Year of the Elephants.

He embraced Islam a few days after Hamzah radiyallāhu 'anhu. This was after a few Muslims had departed for Abyssinia during their first emigration in the fifth year of prophet-hood.

He remained in the company of the Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam until he passed away and took part in all the battles. The Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam gave him the title of al-Fārūq (the one who distinguishes and differentiates truth from falsehood). He is one of the 'Asharah Mubash-sharah who were given the glad tidings of Paradise in this world.

Abū Bakr radiyallāhu 'anhu nominated him to the caliphate after him. He thus took over the reigns of caliphate after his demise, and was given the title of Amīr al-Mu'minīn (the leader of the believers).

The great conquests took place during his era.

This is one of the supplications which he used to make: "O Allāh! I ask You for martyrdom in Your cause and death in the city of Your Messenger sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam." Allāh ta'ālā accepted his supplication.

Abū Lu'lu' al-Majūsī struck him in the fajr salāh on Wednesday 26th Dhū al-Hijjah 23 A.H. and he passed away three days later. He was buried in the Prophet's sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam room on Sunday, the 1st of Muharram 24 A.H. May Allāh ta'ālā be pleased with him.

The Messenger of Allāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: "There were those in the nations before you who were inspired [by Allāh]. If there is any such person in my ummah, it is 'Umar ibn al-Khattāb."

Be wary of bounties

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu wrote to 'Utbah ibn Ghazwān radiyallāhu 'anhu, his governor in Basra, saying:

"You have now become a leader – whatever you say will be listened to, and whatever order you issue will be carried out."

"What a great bounty this is provided it does not elevate you beyond your true worth and does not cause you to transgress on those who are under you."

"Be more wary of bounties than what you are of calamities. Be on your guard against doing something which cannot be undone or committing a mistake which cannot be rectified. May peace be on you."¹

His advice to his son

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu wrote to his son, 'Abdullāh radiyallāhu 'anhu, when he absented himself:

"Allāh ta'ālā protects the one who fears Him, suffices for the one who places his trust in Him, gives more to the one who is grateful to Him, and recompenses the one who gives in His name."

"You should therefore make piety (taqwā) the building of your heart and the polisher of your eyesight."

"No deed of a person is accepted if it is not accompanied with an intention. There is no good in a person who does not possess the quality of fear [of Allāh ta'ālā]. No person should own any new [clothes] if he does not own any worn-out [clothes]."²

Supplication

Abstaining from sin is best

Humility

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"When a servant humbles himself for Allāh's sake, He elevates him with His wisdom. And it is said to him: 'Get up, Allāh will elevate you.' Such a person is insignificant to his self, but great in the eyes of people."³

Extravagance

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu went to his son, 'Abdullāh radiyallāhu 'anhu, and saw them eating meat. So he asked:

"What is this meat for?"

His son replied: "I felt like eating meat."

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "Do you always eat whatever you desire!? When a person eats whatever he desires, it is sufficient to consider him extravagant."¹

Dīn entails abstinence

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Dīn does not entail humming [engaging in dhikr] in the latter part of the night. Rather, Dīn entails abstinence."²

A man is gauged by his trustworthiness

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Do not look at the fasting and ṣalāh of a person. Rather, look at the honesty of his speech when he speaks, his trustworthiness when he is entrusted, and his abstinence when the material things of this world come to him."³

Sufficing with the basics

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The person who seeks independence through Allāh ta'ālā shall experience sufficiency. The person who directs himself to anyone apart from Allāh ta'ālā will become blind [to Allāh's bounties]."

"If a person is not satisfied with the little of the world which he has, a lot of what he accumulates will not benefit him."

"So suffice with the barest minimum, impose abstinence on your self, desist from malice because its accounting tomorrow [on the day of Resurrection] will be very long."¹

Encouragement towards work

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"We will praise those of you who work, and disparage those of you who do not work."²

Do not be dependent on people

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"O assembly of readers! Raise your heads and do not display more humility than what is in your hearts."

"Hasten towards good deeds, and do not become dependent on people because the path is clear."³

Asceticism

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu wrote to Abū Mūsā radiyallāhu 'anhu:

"You will not acquire the actions of the Hereafter with anything more superior than asceticism in this world. And beware of mixing good character with evil character."¹

Tranquillity for knowledge

"Study knowledge. Learn tranquillity and forbearance for knowledge. Humble yourself to those whom you teach, and those whom you teach must humble themselves before you. Do not be tyrannical 'ulamā' because your knowledge will not remain with your ignorance."²

The peak of humility

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The peak of humility is [in the following]: (1) You must be the first to offer salām to the Muslims whom you meet. (2) You must be happy to sit in the unreserved places of an assembly. (3) You must dislike to be described with righteousness and piety."³

The assemblies of knowledge

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"A person leaves his house while having the burden of sins as huge as the mountains of Tihāmah. When he listens to knowledge [which is being imparted], he becomes fearful and retracts from his sins. [In so doing], he returns home without a single sin against him."

"So do not remain aloof from the assemblies of the 'ulamā'. Allāh ta'ālā did not create any piece of land on the surface of the earth which is more honourable in His sight than the assemblies of the 'ulamā'."¹

Deeds of openness

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said to a man: "Adhere to doing deeds of openness."

The man asked: "O Amīr al-Mu'minīn! What are deeds of openness?"

He replied: "Your deeds which, if they are exposed, you will not be ashamed of them."²

Honour through Islam

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

² إحياء علوم الدين ١١٣/٤.

"We are a nation whom Allāh ta'ālā honoured through Islam. So we should not seek honour in anything else."¹

Bounties during calamities

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Whenever I suffered any tribulation, Allāh ta'ālā blessed me with four bounties in it:

1. It was not in my Dīn.
2. It was not worse than what it was.
3. I was not deprived of accepting it [and being pleased with it].
4. I hoped for reward for it."²

Encouragement towards work

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"O assembly of poor people! Raise your heads and take up a trade because the way is clear. Do not become dependent on people."³

A partnership for Allāh's sake

Abū Sālih, the freed slave of 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu, said: "Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu used to order three of us to become partners: one would obtain the goods, the second would sell, and the third would wage jihād in the cause of Allāh."

Abū Sālih was seen as a guard on the coast, so he said: "We are three partners, and it is now my turn to wage jihād."¹

Wear coarse clothing

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Wear coarse clothing, and beware of adopting the clothes of the non-Arabs: of Kisrā and Caesar [the Persians and Romans]."²

Being pleased with wealth and poverty

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"I do not worry whether I get up in the morning as a wealthy person or a poor man because I do not know which of the two is better for me."³

The most superior deeds

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The most superior deeds are: (1) fulfilling whatever Allāh ta'ālā made compulsory, (2) abstaining from whatever Allāh ta'ālā prohibited, (3) having a true intention for whatever [reward] is with Allāh ta'ālā."¹

Intelligence in transactions

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The person who has not acquired intelligence in Dīn should not trade in our markets."²

Abstinence

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"We used to abstain from nine tenths of the halāl (lawful) out of fear that we might fall into something which is doubtful or into something which is harām (unlawful)."³

Goodness in matters

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The goodness of your repentance lies in acknowledging your sin. The goodness of your action lies in casting aside your conceit. The goodness of your gratitude lies in acknowledging your shortcoming.”¹

Humility is in the heart

‘Umar radiyallāhu ‘anhu saw a man bending his neck, so he said to him:

“O you who are bending your neck! Straighten your neck. Humility is not in the necks, it is in the hearts.”²

Anything which hurts you is a calamity

The sandal strap of ‘Umar radiyallāhu ‘anhu snapped, so he said: “Innā lillāhi wa innā ilayhi rāji‘ūn (to Allāh we belong and to Him is our return).” He then said:

“Anything which hurts you is a calamity [and we have been instructed by Allāh ta‘ālā to say Innā lillāhi... when we are afflicted by any calamity].”³

Rejoicing over worldly beauty

‘Umar radiyallāhu ‘anhu said:

“O Allāh! We can do nothing but rejoice over whatever You beautified for us. O Allāh! I ask You to enable me to spend it in its rightful place.”¹

Advice to a commander

‘Umar radiyallāhu ‘anhu wrote a letter to ‘Utbah ibn Ghazwān radiyallāhu ‘anhu. The following is a part of what the letter contained:

“Fear Allāh ta‘ālā with regard to the responsibility which has been placed on you. Beware of pride overtaking you and thereby causing you to demoralize and abase your brothers. You were in the company of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam and you became honourable after you were downtrodden, and you became strong after you were weak. You have now become an amīr (leader) who wields authority, and a ruler who is obeyed. When you say something, people listen to you. When you issue an order, it is carried out.”

“What a great favour it will be provided it does not elevate you more than your worth, and does not cause you to disregard those who are under you.”

“Be on your guard from bounties just as you have to be on guard against sins. In fact, bounties are more frightening in my sight because they would delude you gradually and cause you to fall in a way which would cast you into the Hell-fire. I seek refuge in Allāh ta‘ālā for you and for myself from this.”

“People hastened towards Allāh ta‘ālā when the world was presented to them, but then they desired the world. You should rather desire Allāh ta'ālā and not the world. Beware of doing the same things which caused the downfall of the wrongdoers and oppressors.”¹

Conditions of employment

Whenever 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu appointed a person to a job, he wrote an agreement for him, and brought a group of the Muhājirūn (Emigrants) as witnesses. He made these conditions on him:

1. He will not ride a work horse.
2. He will not eat refined foods.
3. He will not wear fine clothing.
4. He will not shut his door from the needy.

If the person did any of the above, he would be eligible for punishment.²

His advice to the caliph after him

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

“I advise the caliph after me to fear Allāh ta'ālā.

I advise him to uphold the rights of the first Muhājirūn and to recognize their sanctity.

² البداية والنهاية ١٤٨\٧.

I advise him to be good to the residents of the cities because they are the support of Islam, the wrath of the enemy, and the collectors of revenue. He must only take their excess wealth after obtaining their approval.

As for the Anṣār (Helpers) who were abiding in this abode [Madīnah] and adopted īmān – I advise him to accept the one who does good from among them, and to overlook the one who does wrong.”

I advise him to be good to the Bedouins because they are the origins of the Arabs and the core of Islam. He must take their excess wealth and return it to the poor among them.

I advise him to fulfil the responsibility which he owes to Allāh ta'ālā and His Messenger sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam by fulfilling their covenants. He must not make them bear more than their capacity and he must fight [on their behalf] those who are behind them.”¹

What is harmful to you

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

“Stay away from whatever is harmful to you. Adhere to a righteous friend, but rarely will you find such a person. Consult – in your matters – those who fear Allāh ta'ālā.”¹

Do not procrastinate

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu wrote to Abū Mūsā al-Ash'arī radiyallāhu 'anhu thus:

“The power to do work lies in not deferring today's work for tomorrow. If you do this, several tasks will catch up with you and you will not know which one to do. In so doing, you will be wasting away everything. If you are given a choice between two matters, and one is for this world and the other is for the Hereafter, choose the one that is for the Hereafter over the one which is for this world because the world will perish while the Hereafter will remain.”

“Be forever vigilant of Allāh ta'ālā. Learn the Book of Allāh because it is the fountainhead of knowledge and the spring of the hearts.”²

Three types of women and three types of men

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

“Men are of three types, and women are of three types. As for the women, they are:

² كنز العمال ١٥٩/١٦ برقم ٤٤٢٠٥.

1. A woman who is chaste, submissive, easy going, loving, and fertile. She will support her family by her way of living, but she will not impose her way of living on her family. You will find very few women of this category.

2. A woman who is like a vessel. She can do nothing except produce children.

3. A woman who is of bad character. Allāh ta'ālā casts her on whichever of His servants He wills, and removes her whenever He wills.

As for the men, they are:

1. A man who is chaste, easy going and soft. He is a decision maker and a person whose counsel is sought. When any matter comes to him, he will deliberate over it and make his decision appropriately.

2. A man who has no opinion. When a matter descends on him, he consults decision makers and people of good counsel. He then acts on their opinions and counsel.

3. A man who is confused and cut off from everyone. He can neither come to a correct decision, nor does he follow the advice of a guide.¹

Bravery and cowardice are natural instincts

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The nobility of a person lies in his piety, religiosity and esteem. His manliness lies in his character."

"Bravery and cowardice are natural instincts in man. A brave man will fight in defence of the one whom he knows and the one whom he does not know. Whereas a coward will even flee from his father and mother."

"Esteem is in wealth."

"Nobility is in piety."

"I am no better than a Persian, Nabatean, nor a non-Arab except on the basis of piety."²

Wisdom

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Wisdom does not come with old age, rather, it is a bestowal of Allāh ta'ālā which He bestows on whomever He wills."¹

Words of wisdom

Sa'id ibn al-Musayyib rahimahullāh said: "'Umar ibn al-Khattāb radiyallāhu 'anhu laid down eighteen words of wisdom for the people. They are:

1. The best punishment to a person who disobeys Allāh ta'ālā in his treatment of you is to obey Allāh ta'ālā in your treatment of the person.
2. Think the best of your brother's affair until you receive overwhelming information about him.
3. Do not think evil of any statement made by a Muslim as long as you can find a good meaning to it.
4. The person who presents himself for accusations [by doing things which are blameworthy] should not blame those who think evil of him.
5. The person who conceals his secret will have good in his control.
6. Remain in the constant company of honest friends, and you will remain under their protection. They are embellishments during times of prosperity, and means of preparedness at times of adversity.

7. Adhere firmly to honesty even if it kills you.
8. Do not get involved in matters which do not concern you.
9. Do not ask about what is not present because what is present is sufficient to keep you occupied from bothering about what is not present.
10. Do not ask for the fulfilment of your need from a person who does not want you to succeed in fulfilling it.
11. Do not treat false oaths with disdain, or else Allāh ta'ālā will destroy you.
12. Do not accompany immoral people to learn their immorality.
13. Remain aloof from your enemy.
14. Beware of your friend except the one who is trustworthy. And the only trustworthy person is the one who fears Allāh ta'ālā.
15. Humble yourself when you are by a grave.
16. Lower yourself when you carry out an act of obedience [do not feel proud about it].

17. Seek protection at the time of sinning.

18. Consult those who fear Allāh ta'ālā in all your affairs. Allāh ta'ālā says: "From among His servants, it is those who have understanding that fear Allāh." (Sūrah Fātir, 35: 28)¹

It is a full meal

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Do not acidify flour because it is a full meal."²

Patience or gratitude

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu heard a man saying: "O Allāh! I seek to spend my life and my wealth for Your cause."

So 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "Man should rather remain silent. If he is put through a test, he must be patient. And if he is bestowed with well-being, he must be grateful."³

A bounty of Allāh

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu passed by a man who was suffering from leprosy, he was blind, deaf and dumb. So he asked those who were with him:

They replied: "No."

He said: "Indeed. Don't you see he can pass urine without any hardship and difficulty? His urine passes through easily. This is indeed a favour and bounty of Allāh ta'ālā."¹

When Allāh loves a servant

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu wrote to Sa'd ibn Abi Waqqās radiyallāhu 'anhu:

"O Sa'd! When Allāh loves a servant, He makes him beloved to His creation. You can gauge your position in Allāh's sight by seeing what position you hold among people. Thus, you are in the sight of Allāh as you are in the sight of people."²

Obedience to Allāh with regard to a person who disobeys Him

Say: I do not know

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu asked a man about something, so he replied: "Allāh knows best."

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "We would be most unfortunate if we did not know that Allāh knows best. If any of you does not know the answer to something which he is asked, he must say: I do not know."¹

Draw out tears

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Draw out excessive tears through pondering and reflecting."²

The bravest person

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

The bravest person is the one who is generous to the one from whom he does not hope for any reward.

The most forbearing person is the one who pardons despite having the power to exact revenge.

The most miserly person is the one who is miserly with Islam.

How to identify people

Kharshah ibn Abhur said:

A man testified before 'Umar ibn al-Khattāb radiyallāhu 'anhu. So he said to him: "I do not know you, and my not knowing you will not harm you. So bring someone who knows you."

A person who was present there said: "I know him."

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu asked: "What do you know about him?"

He replied: "As a just and virtuous man."

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu asked: "Is he your closest neighbour whereby you know how he spends his nights and days, his goings and comings?"

He replied: "No."

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu asked: "Did you deal with him in any dīnārs and dirhams through which you could gauge his piety?"

He replied: "No."

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu asked: "Did you go on any journey with him whereby you could gauge his excellent character?"

He replied: "No."

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "You do not know him." He then addressed the man and said: "Bring me someone who knows you."¹

'UTHMĀN IBN 'AFFĀN radiyallāhu 'anhu

He is 'Uthmān ibn 'Affān ibn Abī al-'Ās ibn Umayyah ibn 'Abd Shams, Abū 'Abdillāh al-Qurashī al-Umawī.

He is one of the earliest Muslims and one of the ten who were given the glad tidings of Paradise.

He undertook both emigrations [to Abyssinia and Madīnah] and was the first to emigrate with his family.

He is the husband of two daughters. Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam got him married to his daughter, Ruqayyah radiyallāhu 'anhā. She fell ill just before the battle of Badr. So Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam asked him to remain behind with her so that he could tend to her. Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam allotted a share of the booty to him and he received the reward of participating in Badr [although he did not take part in it]. When Ruqayyah radiyallāhu 'anhā passed away, Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam got him married to Umm Kulthūm radiyallāhu 'anhā. This is why he is given the title of Dhun Nūrayn (the possessor of two lights).

He provided provisions for Jaysh al-'Usrah.

He purchased Bi'r Rūmah (a well) and dedicated it for the free use of the Muslims.

When Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam spoke about extending the Musjid [an-Nabawī], 'Uthmān radiyallāhu 'anhu bought the adjoining land and attached it to the Musjid.

He renovated the Musjid an-Nabawī during his caliphate.

He brought the people together onto one recitation of the Qur'ān.

He took over the caliphate after 'Umar ibn al-Khattāb radiyallāhu 'anhu.

He was martyred on 18 Dhū al-Hijjah 35 A.H. His caliphate lasted for twelve days short of twelve years. He was eighty two years old at the time.

Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said with regard to him: "Should I not feel shy of a person when the angels are shy of him?" (Sahīh Muslim)

Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said with regard to him on the occasion of Jaysh al-'Usrah: "Uthmān will not be harmed by whatever he does after this day." (Aḥmad, Tirmidhī)

Piety

'Uthmān radiyallāhu 'anhu delivered a sermon:

"O people! Fear Allāh ta'ālā because the fear of Allāh ta'ālā is a boon. The most intelligent person is the one who subjugates his self, works for what is to come after death, and draws from Allāh's light to help him in the darkness of the grave. A person should fear Allāh ta'ālā resurrecting him as a blind person [blind to the truth] while he was able to see."

"Know that if Allāh is on a person's side, he has nothing to fear. But if Allāh is against him, who else can he have hope in?"¹

Preparing for death

Mujāhid rahimahullāh said: 'Uthmān radiyallāhu 'anhū delivered a sermon:

"O man! You should know that the angel of death who has been appointed over you never leaves you and goes to someone else ever since you came into this world. It is as if he left someone else to come to you and he sought you. You should therefore be on your guard, be prepared for him, and do not be unmindful of him because he is never unmindful of you."

"O man! You should know that if you become unmindful of your self and you do not prepare for it, no one else is going to prepare himself for it. Meeting Allāh ta'ālā is inevitable. You should take control of your self and do not leave it to anyone else."¹

How a Muslim looks at this world

'Uthmān radiyallāhu 'anhū delivered a sermon:

"Allāh ta'ālā gave you this world so that you may seek the Hereafter through it. He did not give it to you for you to become inclined to it. The Hereafter is eternal. Do not allow the temporary abode to make you reckless and do not let it preoccupy you from the eternal abode. Give preference to the eternal over the temporary. The world is certainly to come to an end, and the destination is certainly to Allāh ta'ālā."

"Fear Allāh ta'ālā because fearing Him is a shield against His torment and a means of proximity to Him."

"Beware of the changes in time which Allāh ta'ālā brings about, cling to the main body of Muslims, and do not fall into partisanship. [Allāh says]:

"Remember the bounty of Allāh upon you when you were enemies of one another, then He cast love in your hearts, now you became brothers by His grace. You were on the brink of a pit of fire, then He saved you from it. In this way Allāh expounds His verses to you so that you may be guided. There should be among you a group that continually invites towards good, and continually commands good deeds, and forbids evil. And it is they who have reached their goal." (Sūrah Āl 'Imrān, 3: 103-104)¹

'Uthmān's radiyallāhu 'anhu fear

'Uthmān radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"If I were made to stand between Paradise and Hell and I did not know to which of the two I am going to be sent, I would rather be reduced to ash before I know to which I am going to be sent."²

Looking at the Qur'ān

'Uthmān radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"I dislike a day coming to me in which I did not look at Allāh's covenant, i.e. the Qur'ān."³

A thing which disappears altogether cannot return

Someone asked 'Uthmān radiyallāhu 'anhu: "What stopped you from drinking alcohol during jāhiliyyah (pre-Islamic times) when there would have been no blame against you at the time?"

² تهذيب حلية الأولياء ٧٨/١.

³ الزهد للإمام أحمد ص ١٥٩.

He replied: "I saw it taking away one's intellect completely. And I have not seen anything which disappears completely, returning completely."¹

The calamity of this ummah

'Uthmān radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"There is a calamity for every ummah, and a malady for every bounty. The calamity for this ummah are the fault-finders and critics. They will display before you what you like, while they will conceal what you dislike. The common people are like ostriches; they will follow the first person [to come to them, without checking his credentials]."²

Righteous progeny

When 'Abdullāh ibn az-Zubayr radiyallāhu 'anhu arrived with the news of the conquest of Africa, 'Uthmān radiyallāhu 'anhu asked him to address the people. When he completed his speech, 'Uthmān radiyallāhu 'anhu said:³

"O people! Get the women married to those who are from their father's and brother's families. I have not seen any son of Abū Bakr aṣ-Ṣiddīq⁴ radiyallāhu 'anhu having more similarity to him than this [man - 'Abdullāh ibn az-Zubayr]."¹

The abode of deception

The following is a part of one of 'Uthmān's radiyallāhu 'anhu sermons:

"You are in an abode which is constantly changing and moving, and you are living the remainder of your lives. So hasten the remaining portion of your lives with the best which you can do. Death will certainly come to you in the morning or evening. Listen! The world is enwrapped in deception.

"O people! Continue being conscious of your Sustainer and fear the day when no father will be of any avail to his child and no child will be of any avail to his father in any way. Surely the promise of Allāh is true. Let not, then, the life of this world deceive you. And let not the deceitful one deceive you in the name of Allāh." (Sūrah Luqmān, 31: 33)

Take admonition from those who have passed on, then become determined, and do not be heedless. Surely Allāh is not heedless of you. Where are the sons and brothers of the world who lived and inhabited the earth, and were able to enjoy it for a long time? Did the earth not swallow them up?

Cast aside the world as Allāh cast it aside, and seek the Hereafter. Allāh ta'ālā sets forth a parable for this world and the abode which is better than it. He says:

"Set forth for them the parable of the worldly life: like water which We sent down from the sky on account of which the vegetation of the earth comes forth mingled with it. The following morning it is reduced to bits flying about in the air. Allāh has power over everything. Wealth and sons are an adornment in the worldly life. Good deeds of lasting merit are better with your Sustainer as a recompense and better as a source of hope." (Sūrah al-Kahf, 18: 45-46)¹

Ibn Muljam stabbed him on Friday 17th of Ramaḍān 40 A.H. and he passed away soon thereafter. May Allāh ta'ālā be pleased with 'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu.

When Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam asked him to remain behind on the occasion of Tabūk, 'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said to him: "Are you going to leave me behind with the women and children!?" Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam replied: "Does it not please you to be for me as Hārūn 'alayhis salām was for Mūsā 'alayhis salām? However, there is to be no Prophet after me." (Bukhārī, Muslim)

The Companions of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam

Abū Arākah said: I performed the fajr salāh with 'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu. [After completing the salāh], he turned to his right and remained seated in his place until the sun rose to the extent of a spear. He seemed to be very worried and in pain. He then said:

"I saw the Companions of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam, and I do not see anyone similar to them today. When they used to get up in the morning, they used to be dishevelled, dusty, and pale. Their foreheads were like the knees of a goat [their foreheads had the marks of excessive prostration]. They spent the night in prostration and standing before Allāh ta'ālā for His pleasure, reciting the Qur'ān, and giving a rest to their feet and foreheads.¹ When they engaged in the remembrance of Allāh ta'ālā, they would swing from side to side as a tree swings on a windy day. By Allāh, their eyes would flow with tears to the extent of causing their clothes to become wet."

"By Allāh, it seems as if the people² spent the night in heedlessness."

He then got up. He was never seen laughing with his mouth open until Ibn Muljam struck him.³

The lights of guidance

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Glad tidings to every unknown person. He knows the people but they do not know him. Allāh ta'ālā knows him with His pleasure. Such people are the lights of guidance through whom Allāh ta'ālā removes every dark tribulation. Allāh ta'ālā shall admit them into His mercy. These people are not those who go around publicising everything, nor are they the uncouth show offs."⁴

You should not hold his garment nor should you persist in asking him questions. He is like a date palm which is filled with ripe dates, and from which something or the other will continue falling upon you."¹

A description of this world

Someone asked 'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu: "Describe the world to us."

He said: "What can I say about an abode whose beginning is a distress and end is destruction, whose lawful has to be accounted for and whose unlawful would earn punishment, the person who is independent of it is put through tribulations, and the person who hankers after it is left in grief."²

"They exercise patience for a few days [of this world] so that they may earn eternal rest and comfort."

"They spend their nights lining their feet in salāh with tears flowing on their cheeks, calling on and beseeching their Lord saying: 'O our Lord! O our Lord!' asking Him to free their hearts."

"And by day, they are 'ulamā', forbearing people, obedient and righteous. They look like spears,¹ and when any person looks at them, he says: 'These people are sick', whereas they are not sick. [Or a person] says: 'They are terrorized.' Whereas fear [of Allāh ta'ālā] has terrorized them."²

The middle way

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu delivered a sermon. After praising and thanking Allāh ta'ālā, he said:

"A person should watch and safeguard his own self. The person who concerns himself about watching others will become preoccupied from striving for Paradise, and the Hell-fire will be before him."

"A person who strives shall be saved. A seeker has hope [of salvation]. A person who falls short [of both] shall go to the Hell-fire. These are three categories of people."

"The world is a place of trade for Allāh's auliyā' (close friends) – they profited in this world from His mercy and earned Paradise in it."

"So who can criticize it when it has announced its detachment and proclaimed its separation!?"

"By Allāh, by Allāh, by Allāh! If your eyes were to tear out of His fear and out of yearning for Him, and then you inhabited this world – this world which is temporary – and you were to spend all your efforts for His great favours which He showered on you by guiding you to Islam, you would not be eligible for His Paradise. Greeting grave dwellers

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhū passed by a graveyard, so he said:

"Peace be on you dwellers of desolate abodes and deserted resting places – of believing men and women, and Muslim men and women. You have preceded us, we are to follow you, and we will catch up with you soon."

"O Allāh! Forgive us and them. Pardon us and them through Your pardon."

"All praise is due to Allāh ta'ālā for making the earth a protection for the living on its surface in their homes, and for the dead in its belly."

"All praise is due to Allāh ta'ālā who created you, who will revive you on it [earth], and raise you from it."

"Glad tidings to the one who remembers the abode which he has to return to, who prepares for the accounting of deeds, and is content with what is sufficient."¹

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhū entered a graveyard and said:

O dwellers of these graves! O you who are being tried! O you who are in a desolate place! What can you tell us?

This is what we can tell you:

Your houses have been inhabited [by others].
Your wealth has been distributed.
Your wives have remarried.

This is what we can tell you. Now what can you tell us?

He then said:

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu delivered a sermon in Kūfah and said in it:

knowledge the most. Remember what I am saying to you.

People can be divided into three categories:

1. An 'ālim rabbānī (an 'ālim who is fully conscious of Allāh ta'ālā).
2. A student who is on the path of salvation.
3. The riffraff who follow every Tom, Dick and Harry. They are swayed by every wind. They neither illuminate themselves with the light of knowledge, nor do they seek refuge in a firm support [Allāh].

Knowledge is better than wealth because it will safeguard you, whereas you have to safeguard wealth. Knowledge increases with action, while wealth decreases when it is spent. Knowledge is the authority, while wealth is under an authority. The effects of wealth disappear when wealth disappears. Whereas love for an 'ālim is an obligation which can be fulfilled through it.

Knowledge earns an 'ālim obedience while he is alive, and people speak good about him after his death.

Those who hoarded wealth died even while they were alive. Whereas 'ulamā' remain forever – they may have departed [from this world], but their lessons are present in the hearts.

Oh, how sad! There is over here – he pointed to this chest – bearers of knowledge ('ulamā') who cannot be trusted. They use the Din as a tool to acquire this world. They use Allāh's favours on His servants to display their authority, and His proofs in His Book. Or you get those who oppose those who are on the truth. Such a person has no insight, and the first uncertainty to creep into his heart causes him to become doubtful. He is neither on this side nor on that side. Or you get the one who is desirous of pleasures, tightly bound to desires. Or you get the one who is fully engrossed with accumulating wealth and hoarding it. They have nothing whatsoever to do with inviting towards the Dīn. In fact, they have a closer resemblance to dumb grazing animals.

This is how knowledge dies with the death of those who bear it. By Allāh, this is how it will happen. The world will not be deprived of a person who stands up for Allāh with absolute proofs so that the proofs and evidences of Allāh are not disproved. Such 'ulamā' are very few in number, but of the highest value in Allāh's sight. Allāh ta'ālā safeguards His proofs through them so that they may convey them and embed them in the hearts of those who are like them. Knowledge reached the essence of the matter through them. They softened of it [knowledge] what the opulent considered to be rugged. They made familiar what the ignorant considered dreadful. They inhabited the world with the bodies of its souls to the highest abodes. They are the true deputies of Allāh ta'ālā in His land, and the callers to His Dīn. Oh if only I could see them!

I seek forgiveness from Allāh ta'ālā for myself and for you. You may now get up if you wish.”¹

Pure hearts

Nauf al-Bakālī said:

I saw 'Alī ibn Abī Tālib radiyallāhu 'anhu coming out and looking at the stars. He said:

“O Nauf! Are you sleeping or are you awake?”

I replied: “I am awake, O Amīr al-Mu'minīn!”

He said: “O Nauf! Glad tidings to those who are abstinent in this world, who are desirous of the Hereafter. They are people who made this earth a carpet, its soil a bed, its water a perfume, and the Qur'ān and du'ā' as inner and outer garments. In so doing, they considered the world as it was considered by al-Masīh [Isā] 'alayhis salām.”

“O Nauf! Allāh ta'ālā addressed 'Isā saying: 'Instruct the Banī Isrā'īl not to enter any of My houses [masājīd] except with pure hearts, lowered gazes, and pure hands. This is because I will not accept from any of them or from any of My creation who has any darkness [darkness of sin] in him.”

التحذیب حلیۃ الأولیاء ۸۵/۱ وصفۃ الصفوة ۱۷۲/۱.

“O Nauf! Do not be a poet, a sergeant, a policeman, a tax collector, nor a tithe collector. Dā'ūd 'alayhis salām stood up at night and said: This is a time when anyone who supplicates to Allāh ta'ālā, his supplication will certainly be accepted unless he is a sergeant, policeman, tax collector, tithe collector, a tunbur (a long necked stringed instrument resembling a mandolin) player or a drum player.”¹

Fountains of knowledge

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

“Become fountains of knowledge, glowing lights of the night, wearing worn-out clothes, and having pure hearts. You will be recognized by these qualities in the heavens [by the angels], and you will be remembered by those on earth [by people].”²

Piety is a safeguard

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

O servants of Allāh! I advise you with taqwā because it is a protection against every deviation and the path to every salvation.

It is as though the souls have left the bodies and the graves have attached themselves to them.

Every person among you will welcome a new day without another being subtracted from his lifespan.

I warn you of the du'ā' of a servant to his Almighty and all-powerful Allāh. The day when all traces of him [in this world] will be wiped off, his houses will be left deserted, and his children will become orphans. He will then end up in a hole in the ground, his cheek will be soiled, he will neither have a pillow nor a bed.

I ask the Being who promised us Paradise if we obey Him to protect us from His wrath, to keep us away from His torment, and to bestow us with His mercy.

The most eloquent speech is the Book of Allāh.¹

A messenger who does not knock on the door

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"O you who are engrossed in amusement and deceived by his self. It is as though I can see the messenger of your Lord coming to you. He will not knock on your door, you will not be given any cover to conceal yourself, he will not accept anything in exchange from you, he will not take any guarantee from you, he will not show any consideration to you out of mercy for your juniors, and he will not let you go out of respect for your elders. He will convey you to a dark pit whose sides are desolate and terrifying. He will do to you as he did to past nations and bygone times.

Where is the person who strove and worked hard, who accumulated and counted [the riches which he accumulated], who built and fortified whatever he built, who decorated and upholstered, who was not content with little, and could not enjoy the many things which he possessed?

Where is the one who commandeered the armies and despatched the troops?

They have been reduced to dead bodies beneath the ground. You are also going to drink from their cup and tread their path.¹

"The nafs is affected by love, clings to comfort, is inclined towards amusement, orders one towards evil, accommodates laziness, desirous of rest, and flees from work. If you compel it, you will straighten it. If you let it free, you will destroy it."¹

The leaders of people

A calamity is a test

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"O man! Do not rejoice over wealth, do not grieve over poverty, do not worry over calamity, and do not rejoice over prosperity and ease. This is because gold is tested by fire, and a righteous servant is tested by calamity. You will not acquire what you want unless you cast aside what you desire. You will not reach what you hope for unless you are patient over what you dislike. Spend all your efforts in fulfilling whatever has been made incumbent on you."³

What should an 'ālim speak about

An inevitable journey

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"You are certain to die, you will be resurrected after death, you will be presented with your deeds, and you will be recompensed for them."

"So do not let this worldly life deceive you. It is an abode which is encompassed by calamity, it is known to be temporary, and is described as being treacherous. Whatever is in it is bound to perish, and the people in it experience ups and downs."

"Its conditions do not remain the same, and its inhabitants are never safe from its evil. While its inhabitants are enjoying prosperity and happiness, they are suddenly cast into calamity and deception."

"Conditions are constantly changing and moments are always moving. Life in this world is despicable and comfort in it does not continue forever. Its inhabitants are targets which the world shoots with its arrows, and breaks them with death. Each person's death is decreed, and each person shall receive his full share in it."

"O servants of Allāh! You and the attractions of the world which you are enjoying are the same as those who have passed on. They had longer lives than you, they were more powerful than you, they inhabited their abodes more than you, and they left behind more traces. Their wealth and riches have become stagnant after they had been vibrant, their bodies have been reduced to bits, their abodes are deserted, and their traces are wiped out."

"Their fortified castles and laid out cushions have been replaced with rocks and stones in graves which are made on deserted fields, whose buildings are strengthened with soil. They are very close to each other, but their inhabitants feel like strangers among people who are lonely and occupied. They do not experience comfort with inhabitants, nor do they interact with each other as neighbours and brothers interact with each other. This, despite the fact that their neighbours are so close to them and their abodes are so near each other."

"How can there be contact between them when severe decomposition has pounded them to dust, and rocks and soil are above them? So they have become dead after they were alive, and are reduced to soil after they had been enjoying a comfortable life."

"Their beloveds had to bear the loss of their departure, they inhabited the soil and departed, and they will not be returning."

"Their return is impossible, their return is impossible."

"Never! It is merely a word which he utters. Behind them is a veil till a day when they shall be raised." (Sūrah al-Mu'minūn, 23: 100)

"It is as though you have also become decomposed like them, you are also living a life of solitude in the abode of rest, you have been mortgaged in that resting place, and the place of safekeeping [grave] has embraced you. What will you do when matters come to an end, when the graves are opened, and whatever is in the chests is exposed?"

"You have been made to stand for the accounting of deeds before the Grand King [Allāh ta'ālā], and so, your hearts are fluttering out of fear over your past sins. All the veils have been lifted from you, and all your faults and secrets have been made bare. It is at this point that:

"every soul will be rewarded with what it earned." (Sūrah al-Mu'min/al-Ghāfir, 40: 17)

Allāh ta'ālā says:

"so that He may requite the evil doers for what they did and reward those who did good with ultimate good." (Sūrah an-Najm, 53: 31)

He says further:

"The book of records will be placed [before them]. You will then see the sinners afraid of what is written therein, and they will say: 'Woe to us! What is it with this book that it does not leave out anything small or big without having enumerated it?' They will find whatever they did placed before them. Your Sustainer will not wrong anyone." (Sūrah al-Kahf, 18: 49)

May Allāh ta'ālā make me and you among those who practise on His Book and follow His auliyā' (close friends) so that He settles me and you in the permanent abode [of Paradise] by His grace, surely He is worthy of all praise, glorious."¹

His letter to his son, Muḥammad

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu wrote to his son, Muḥammad ibn al-Ḥanafīyyah:

Acquire true understanding of Dīn and make yourself accustomed to patience over hardships. Place your trust for all matters in Allāh ta'ālā. If you do that, you will be entrusting them to a strongly fortified cave and powerful defence.

Beg solely from Allāh ta'ālā because bestowing and depriving are solely in His hands.

Always turn to Him for goodness in all matters.

The one who spends his day and night in His worship shall be conveyed to Him even if he is not moving. This is because Allāh ta'ālā has decreed the destruction of this world and for the Hereafter to be inhabited. If you are able to be totally abstinent in this world, do it.

If you do not accept my advice to you, then know with certainty that you will never reach your goals and you will not live beyond your appointed time because you are treading the path of those before you.

Honour your self by keeping away from every despicable act even if it drives you towards desires. This is because whatever you do for your self will never be replaced. Beware of greed hastening you forward, and saying to yourself: 'I will retract when I am held back.' This is what destroyed those who were before you.

Withhold your tongue because what you lose out from remaining silent is less and easier than what you would obtain had you spoken.

Safeguard what is in your chest by controlling your tongue. Good planning with equity will last longer than a lot which is accompanied with corruption.

Working while living a chaste life is better than wealth which is accompanied by immorality.

A person guards his secret the best, and he may well do things which harm him.

Beware of relying on hopes and wishes because these are the possessions of the foolish, and they will hold you back from the Hereafter and from doing what is best.

A righteous companion is from among the good things of this world. Remain in the company of good people and you will become part of them. Stay aloof from evil people and you will remain far from them.

Do not allow evil thoughts to have the better of you because they will never allow you to reconcile with a friend.

Kindle your heart with etiquette just as fire is kindled with firewood.

Remember: it is ignoble to be ungrateful for a bounty, and unfortunate to be in the company of a foolish person.

Prohibiting the unlawful is an act of honour. The person who is forbearing will lead, and the person who makes an effort to understand will increase his understanding.

Be sincere in giving advice to your brother irrespective of whether it is good or bad.¹

Do not separate from your brother merely on the basis of doubts, and do not sever ties from him without a reprimand.

Do not recompense a person who brings joy to you by causing him grief.

Sustenance is of two types: sustenance which you seek, and sustenance which seeks you. If you do not go to it, it will come to you.

O my son! Remember: You own nothing of this world except what you set right for your Hereafter. So spend the best of your wealth and do not hoard what does not belong to you. If you are distressed over what slips out of your hands, you should rather be distressed over what did not reach you.

Many a time, a person with eyesight misses his goal, while a blind person sees his rectitude.

A person who follows a middle [balanced] path will not be destroyed. And a person who is abstinent will never experience poverty.

¹ Advice cannot be bad, but the occasion of advice may entail asking the person to refrain from something which is bad.

Time is treacherous to the person who trusts it, and disgraces the one who honours it.

The peak of Dīn is conviction (yaqīn), and the best statement is the one which is backed by action.

Ask about who your travelling companion is going to be before you can ask about the path. Ask about who your neighbour is going to be before you look for a house.

Be forbearing to your friend when he does anything to distress you, and accept the apology of the one who apologizes to you.

Defer evil as much as you can because you can hasten it if you wish.

Do not allow your friend to be more desirous of severing ties with you than your desire to maintain ties with him. And do not allow him to cause you more harm than the good you desire for him.

Do not give a woman control over a matter which surpasses her ability. A woman is a sweet basil and not one to be responsible for affairs. This will extend her condition and is more relaxing for her. Lower her gaze by lowering your own gaze, and restrain her by observing hijāb yourself. Honour her relatives through whom she gains confidence. If she becomes insolent, she will become wearisome to you.

I ask Allāh ta'ālā to inspire you with gratitude and rectitude, to give you the strength to do every type of good, and to avert every danger from you through His mercy. May the peace, mercy and blessings of Allāh ta'ālā be on you.¹

Man's strength lies with his clan

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The clan of a man is better for him than the man for the clan. If he extends one hand in their defence, they extend several hands in his defence. This is in addition to their love, protection and help. A man will get angry for another man solely on the basis of his lineage.

I will read to you some verses of the Qur'ān in this regard. Allāh ta'ālā says with regard to Lūṭ 'alayhis salām:

"He said: "If only I had the strength to resist you or that I could take refuge in a powerful support." (Sūrah Hūd, 11: 80)

The "powerful support" which he is referring to is a clan, and he had no clan [in the town where he was].

I take an oath in the name of the Being in whose control is my life, Allāh ta'ālā did not send a Prophet after Lūṭ 'alayhis salām without giving him authority among his people, and without having the support of his clan.

¹العقد الفريد ١١٥٠١.

Allāh ta'ālā then speaks about Shu'ayb 'alayhis salām when his people said to him:

"We see that you are a weak person among us. Were it not for your family, we would have certainly stoned you [to death]." (Sūrah Hūd, 11: 91)

He was blind. By Allāh, they feared nothing but his clan.¹

Words of wisdom

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

The one who is forbearing shall lead, and the one who leads, benefits.

The one who is shy is deprived, and the one who is afraid loses out.

The one who seeks leadership has to exercise patience over administration and management.

The one who is vigilant over his own faults is blind to the faults of others.

The one who unsheathes the sword of rebellion shall be killed by it. The one who digs a hole for his brother shall fall into it himself.

The one who forgets his own mistakes considers the mistakes of others to be very serious.

The one who exposes the concealed sins of others shall have the concealed sins of his own house exposed.

The one who treats matters with disdain shall be destroyed.

The one who plunges headlong into dangers is bound to drown.

The one who is self-opinionated shall go astray.
The one who considers his intellect to be sufficient is bound to err.

The one who is oppressive towards people becomes despicable in their sight.

The one who engrosses himself excessively in work is bound to become weary.

The one who joins mean people becomes mean in the sight of others. The one who sits in the company of 'ulamā' is accorded respect.

The one who goes to evil places shall have suspicions levelled against him.

The one who has good character shall have ease in all his affairs.

The one whose speech is good shall have awe before him.

The one who fears Allāh ta'ālā is successful.

The one who is led by ignorance shall leave the path of equity and justice.

The one who is mindful of his death shall have few hopes.

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu then quoted these couplets:

Cover the faults of your brother, and conceal his sins. Be patient over the false accusations of a foolish person, and the mishaps of time. Refrain from giving a reply [to accusations] out of courtesy, and leave the one who wronged you to be taken to task by the One [Allāh] who is bound to take him to task."¹

Distances

His letter to his son, Hasan

O my son! The turning away of the world from me, the approach of the Hereafter to me, and the ³العقد الفريد ٢/١٥٨.

defiance of time against me have made me disinterested in others and caused me to pay attention to what is ahead of me.

But when I became concerned about myself, and not about people, my thoughts proved to be correct, turned me away from my desires, and made clear to me that I should worry about my own self. My thoughts thus conveyed me to seriousness without being tainted by any play and amusement, and towards truth which is not tarnished by falsehood.

O my son! I consider you to be part of me. In fact, you are the whole of me. So much so, that if anything were to afflict you, it would afflict me. If death were to come to you, it would come to me. That is when I felt I should be concerned about you just as I am concerned about my self.

O my son! I wrote this letter to you to express to you through it, that whether I live or die, I advise you to fear Allāh ta'ālā, to inhabit your heart with His remembrance, and to hold on to His rope. Allāh ta'ālā says:

"Hold fast to the rope of Allāh altogether and do not sow dissension. Remember the bounty of Allāh upon you when you were enemies of one another, then He cast love in your hearts, now you became brothers by His grace." (Sūrah Āl 'Imrān, 3: 103)

My son! Hold on to the rope of Allāh ta'ālā and you will find no rope stronger than it.

Revive your heart through admonition, illuminate it with wisdom, kill it with abstinence, subdue it with death, strengthen it by remaining independent of people, warn it of the calamities of time and the ups and downs of days and nights, and present to it the stories of past peoples. Walk through their abodes and their relics, see what they did and where they settled. You will find that they moved from the abode of deception and settled in the abode of desolation. My son! In a short while you will become one of them.

So sell your world for the sake of your Hereafter, but do not sell your Hereafter for the sake of your world.

Abstain from making statements on subjects which you have no knowledge and on matters which you are not responsible for.

Enjoin good with your hand and tongue, prohibit evil with your hand and tongue, and remain aloof from the one who commits evil.

Bear adversities for the sake of the truth, and do not let the criticism of anyone stop you from doing what you are doing for the sake of Allāh ta'ālā.

Remember my advice and do not disregard it. There is no good in knowledge which does not benefit.

You cannot do without a good resting place [in the Hereafter] together with sufficient provision to convey you to it. If you can find a poor person to carry your provision for you and who will then give it to you in the Hereafter, then consider him to be a great boon.¹ An insurmountable obstacle lies ahead of you. None will be able to cross it except those who have the lightest load. So search for the best ways and ensure you earn the best reward.

Remember: no wealth can equal Paradise, and there is no poverty worse than the Hell-fire.

May Allāh's peace, mercy and blessings be on you.²

People of knowledge

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

placed in his grave, his family began weeping and crying. So he asked them:

"What are you crying for? By Allāh, if they were to see what their deceased is seeing, it would cause them to forget about their deceased relative. Death most certainly returns to them again and again until it leaves not one of them."

He then stood up and said:

"O servants of Allāh! I advise you to fear Allāh who set forth parables for you, laid down an appointed time for your death, gave you ears which remember what discomforts them, eyes to see what is concealed from them, and hearts to understand what baffles them."

"Allāh ta'ālā neither created you in vain nor did He disregard you completely. Instead, He honoured you with countless favours, aided you with the most copious streams, and set aside rewards for you in prosperity and calamity."

"So fear Allāh ta'ālā, O servants of Allāh! Be serious in your quest, hasten with good deeds the thing [death] which severs all desires and puts an end to all pleasures. Surely the bounties of this world are temporary, and one is not safe from its misfortunes. It is a deception which comes as a barrier [to the Hereafter]."

"O servants of Allāh! Take admonition from warnings, draw lessons from signs, restrain yourselves when you are warned, and take benefit from exhortations."

"The claws of death are on the verge of clinging to you, the abode of soil [grave] has embraced you, and the absolute matters – the blowing of the trumpet, the rising from the graves, being driven towards the field of resurrection, and standing before [Allāh ta'ālā] for the accounting of deeds – have come upon you suddenly. All this is encompassed by the all-powerful and all-mighty Allāh ta'ālā. Every soul has a herder who herds it forward towards the field of resurrection, and a witness who testifies against it."

"The earth will shine with the light of its Lord, the register [of deeds] will be placed, the Prophets and witnesses will be presented, and judgement will be passed on them with equity, and they will not be wronged." (Sūrah az-Zumar, 39: 69)

"The lands will tremble on that day, a caller will call out, it will be a day of meeting, when the shank will be exposed, the sun will be in eclipse, wild animals will be assembled, secrets will be exposed, the wretched ones will be destroyed, and the hearts will tremble."

"An assault from Allāh ta'ālā will descend on the inmates of Hell, the Hell-fire will appear with a roar and thunder, and with fury and threats. Its fire will be kindled, its heat will intensify, and its hot wind will be spurred on. Its sighs of pain will not cease, and its massive chain links will not break. The inmates of Hell will have angels who will give them the 'glad tidings' of scalding water and going headlong into the flames of the fire. They will be veiled away from Allāh ta'ālā, kept away from His auliyā' (friends), and they will be proceeding towards the fire."

"O servants of Allāh! Fear Allāh like a person who is on his guard, who is watchful, and is restraining himself. In so doing, he is spurred on in his quest [for Paradise], he saves himself [from the Hell-fire] by fleeing from it, he sends forward [good deeds] for the Hereafter, and gains felicity with his provisions [of good deeds]."

"Allāh is sufficient as an exacter of revenge and a helper. The book [of deeds] is sufficient as a disputant, Paradise is sufficient as a reward, and the Hell-fire is sufficient as a torment and punishment. I seek forgiveness from Allāh ta'ālā for my self and for you."¹

Consolation

When 'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu consoled any people, he would say:

"If you are going to become worried, it is your relatives who deserve your concern. If you exercise patience, there is certainly a recompense from Allāh ta'ālā for everything that is taken away. The worst calamity which the Muslims suffered was when Muḥammad sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam passed away. You received a great reward."¹

He used to say:

"Remain patient. A resolute person exercises patience immediately, while a terrified person has to eventually return to patience."²

Knowledge and wealth

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Knowledge is better than wealth. You have to safeguard wealth while knowledge safeguards you. Wealth gets used up when it is spent, while knowledge increases when it is spent [passed on to others]. Knowledge is the ruler, while wealth is ruled. The treasurers of wealth are dead even when they are alive, while the 'ulamā' remain for as long as time remains. They may not be present, but their teachings are found in the hearts of people."³

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu: "This man is now a Muslim, whereas he was an unbeliever just now [when he asked the question about predestination]."

The man: "Is it not by the first will with which Allāh willed me into existence that I stand, sit, hold, stretch out my hand?"

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu: "You are after the will [of Allāh]. Let me ask you three questions, and if you reply in the negative to any one of them, you will be an unbeliever. If you reply in the affirmative, you will be as you are."

The people who were present stretched out their necks to listen to what he says.

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "Tell me about yourself. Did Allāh ta'ālā create you as you willed or as He willed?"

The man: "He created me as He willed."

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu: "Did Allāh ta'ālā create you when you willed or when He willed?"

The man: "He created me when He willed."

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu: "On the day of Resurrection you will go to Him with what you will or with what He wills?"

The man: "With what He wills."

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu: "Go, you have no will of your own."¹

Those who lag behind in jihād

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu delivered a sermon, and the following is a part of it:

"Jihād is one of the gates of Paradise. The person who abandons jihād out of disinterest, Allāh ta'ālā will cause him to wear the garment of humiliation, cover him with miseries, impose disgrace and degradation upon him, and deprive him of justice. By Allāh, when a nation was attacked in its very homes, it was certainly abased."

"I am astonished at how serious they [the enemy] are despite being on falsehood, and how spineless you are despite being on truth. Disgrace to you when you became a target that is shot at and a booty which is snatched away. You are attacked and you do not retaliate!? Battle is waged against you and you do not respond!? Allāh is being disobeyed and you are pleased with it!?!..."

"O you who only look like men but are not real men! O you who have the brains of children, and the intelligence of [women] who tend to the decorated canopies in weddings..."

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhū delivered another sermon on the same theme. He said:

"O people who are together physically, but whose desires are different. Your speech would weaken solid rocks [you speak very confidently and bravely], but your actions [are so cowardly] that they cause your enemies to want to attack you."

"When you are sitting in your assemblies, you say: 'We will do this and we will do that.' But when the time comes to fight, you say: 'I am adopting a neutral position [I am not going to fight].' You do not take the call of the one who is calling you seriously, while the heart of your enemy is not resting [they are anxious to go to battle against you]. You are acting like sick people, while they are displaying their bravery."

"You asked me to delay the battle, like a person trying to defer a long debt for an even longer time. It is not possible for a despicable person to repulse an injustice, and the truth can only be achieved through earnestness."

"Is there any other place which you can defend? Is there any other leader after me whom you are going to join in battle?"

"By Allāh, the person whom you deceive [must be really foolish] to be deceived by you. And the person who gains your support will get the support of a defeated sword [you will not be able to benefit him in any way]."

The value of a person

Alī radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"The value of every person lies in what he excels in."

He also said:

"People are devoted to those who excel, and the value of every person lies in what he excels in. So speak on matters of knowledge and your value will become manifest."¹

For his own self

Alī radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"No person really wrongs another, and no person really harms another because Allāh ta'ālā says:

"Whoever did good, it is for his own self. Whoever did evil, it is to his own detriment." (Sūrah Hā Mīm Sajdah/Fussilat, 41: 46)¹

Good fortune

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"The good fortune of a person lies in five things:

1. His wife must be in agreement with him.
2. His children must be obedient.
3. His brothers must be pious.
4. His neighbours must be righteous.
5. His sustenance must be in the place where he lives."²

The person who has a family ought to carry it

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhū purchased dates for one dirham and carried them in a blanket. So some people said to him: "We will carry it for you, O Amīr al-Mu'minīn!"

He replied: "No, the person who has a family ought to carry it himself."²

On the path

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said to 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu:

"If you wish to join your two companions [Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam and Abū Bakr radiyallāhu 'anhu], you must patch your clothes, mend your shoes, curtail your hopes and desires, and eat less than your fill."¹

Seeking wisdom

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Knowledge is the lost item of a believer, so take it even if it be from the hands of the polytheists. No one should disdain accepting wisdom from the person who heard it."

He also said:

"Wisdom is the lost item of a believer; he seeks it even from the hands of the police."²

Patching one's kurtah

He replied: "The heart is humbled and a believer may emulate this practice."¹

The position of a Muslim towards the end of time

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"There will come a time when Muslims will only be able to govern through killing and force. A wealthy person will maintain himself solely through arrogance and miserliness. And the companionship of people will only be maintained by following desires."

The paucity of those who disapprove evil

10. Do not sit in front of him.
11. If he has a need, you must be the first among those who are present to serve him."¹

The laughter of an 'ālim

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Acquire knowledge. Once you have acquired it, protect it. Do not mix it with laughter nor with play or else the heart will reject it. When an 'ālim laughs just once, he discards a part of knowledge."²

Knowledge and practice

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"O 'ulamā! Practise on your knowledge because a true 'ālim is one who acquires knowledge and then practises on it, whose actions are in conformity with his knowledge."

"There will be people who will bear knowledge but it will not go beyond their collarbones. Their inner actions will contradict their outer actions, and their actions will be in conflict with their knowledge. They will sit in circles and boast over each other to the extent that a person will become angry at his companion for leaving him and sitting in the company of another. Beware of following people

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Beware of following people because a person does a deed of the people of Paradise, he then turns around and does a deed of the inmates of Hell. Tillage

Seeking Paradise

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

The person who possesses six qualities would have left no other thing by which he could quest Paradise, and by which he could flee from Hell. They are:

1. He recognizes Allāh ta'ālā and obeys him.
2. He recognizes Satan and disobeys him.
3. He recognizes the truth and follows it.
4. He recognizes falsehood and keeps away from it.
5. He recognizes this world and casts it aside.
6. He recognizes the Hereafter and seeks it.¹

The signs of ostentation

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

There are three signs of a show off:

2. He is energetic when he is among people.
3. He does more deeds when he is praised, and less when he is criticized."²

'Alī ibn Ja'far al-Warrāq said to 'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu:

"Wear good clothes because they are the beauty of men. It is through clothes that they are honoured and accorded respect. Give up humility in your clothes because Allāh ta'ālā knows fully well what you conceal [Allāh ta'ālā knows what lies beneath the clothes]. Your worn out clothes will not take you closer to Allāh ta'ālā while you are a sinful criminal. Your splendid clothes will not harm you if you fear Allāh ta'ālā and abstain from His prohibitions."¹

Carrying needs

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"A great person will not lose his greatness as long as he carries something to his family."²

The intelligent ones are poor

Someone asked 'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhū: "How is it the intelligent ones are poor?"

He replied: "The intellect of a person is calculated against his sustenance."³

Despondency is the most serious sin

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhū said to a person whose fear led him to despondency because of his many sins:

Your losing hope in Allāh's mercy is more serious than your sins."

The world is an immediate presentation

Alī radiyallāhu 'anhū delivered a sermon. The following is a part of what he said:

"Listen, O people! This world is nothing but something which is presented to a person at present - the obedient and the sinner eat from it. On the other hand, the Hereafter is a true promise in which an all-powerful king [Allāh ta'ālā] will rule."

"Listen! Satan promises you destitution and orders you to immorality, whereas Allāh promises you His forgiveness and bounty. And Allāh is extremely bountiful, all-knowing." (Sūrah al-Baqarah, 2: 268)

"O people! Do good while you are alive, and you will be safeguarded in what is to follow. Allāh promised Paradise to the one who obeys Him, and threatens with the Hell-fire to the one who disobeys Him. It is a fire whose flames do not subside, whose prisoner is not freed, and the one who is broken in it does not regain his strength. Its heat is intense, its pit is deep, and its water is pus. The thing which I fear the most for you is the following of desires and having high hopes. Following desires diverts a person from the truth, and having high hopes causes him to forget the Hereafter."¹

Examples of the hearts

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Allāh ta'ālā has a vessel on earth, it is the heart. The most beloved heart in His sight is the heart which is softest, purest, and hardest."

He then explained this as follows:

"Hardest in matters of Dīn, purest in conviction, and softest with one's fellow brethren."²

Lust and Paradise

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The person who desires Paradise severs himself from lust in this world."³

The one who ought to be humble

Someone said the following couplets to 'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu:

"The one who is sure to die ought to be humble. The minimum food for survival should suffice a person. A person gets up in the morning with worries and greed which are beyond description. Yet, whatever our Master does is excellent and beautiful. His sustenance will not miss us. O man! You will soon go to a people whose speech is silence [i.e. the deceased ones in the graves]."¹

A seeker and the one who is sought

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu delivered a sermon. The following is a part of what he said:

"I advise you to fear Allāh ta'ālā and to cast aside this world which casts you aside, even if you do not want to cast it aside. This is the same world which wears out your bodies while you want to renew them. The similitude of you and the world is like a group of travellers who followed a path, and they feel they have already traversed it, they come to knowledge and they feel they have already acquired it."

"Many a person continues on his path until he reaches his goal. Many a person thinks he has more day in this world but death comes upon him suddenly and separates him from it."

Relief is near

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"When the hearts enfold people, when the wide chests become constricted, when hardships become embedded and difficulties become firmly implanted in them, and you see no way in which the adversity can be removed, and the plans of a resourceful person are of no benefit; then when you have lost all hope, there comes to you the help of the One who is close to you and who responds to your calls. The harm of governors keeping away from their populace weak, the juniors will assume seniority, good will be disliked, evil will be liked, and the truth will become tainted with falsehood."

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

Eternal brotherhood

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

Sins and Allāh's mercy

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

A balance between fear and hope

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said to one of his children:

"O my son! Fear Allāh ta'ālā in such a manner that you think if you were to go to Him with the good deeds of all the people of this world, He will not accept them from you. And have such hope in Him that you think if you were to go to Him with the evil deeds of all the people of this world, He will forgive you."²

Four special times

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"An intelligent person ought to have four special times during the day: (1) a time in which he engages in private conversation with Allāh ta'ālā, (2) a time in which he takes stock of his self, (3) a time in which he goes to the 'ulamā' who give him insight and advise him on his religious and worldly matters, (4) a time in which he gives vent to his self (nafs) to fulfil its lawful pleasures."

The appointed time is a shield

A person said to 'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu: "Be on your guard because there is someone who intends killing you."

He replied: "Every person has two angels who protect him against things which he does not have the power to defend himself. But once his destined time arrives, they allow it to come. A person's appointed time is thus a strong shield."¹

Course clothing

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu was reprimanded for his course clothing, so he said: "It is more humbling and more likely that a Muslim will emulate this."

He also said:

"Allāh ta'ālā ordered the leaders of guidance to be like the lowest of people so that the wealthy may emulate them, and the poor may not scorn their own poverty."²

Death and what follows it

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu delivered a sermon. He praised and thanked Allāh ta'ālā and spoke about death. He said:

"O servants of Allāh! There is no escape from death. If you wait for it, it will seize you. If you flee from it, it will catch up with you. So seek salvation, seek salvation. Hasten! Hasten!"

"There is behind you a seeker who is swift: it is the grave. Beware of its pressure, darkness and desolation. Listen! The grave is either a pit of Hell or a garden of Paradise. Listen! It calls out three times every day: 'I am a place of darkness, I am a place of insects, I am a place of desolation.'"

"Listen! After it is a day which would turn young people grey, and intoxicate the seniors.

"every suckling mother will forget her suckling, and every pregnant woman will deliver her burden, and you will see the people intoxicated yet they are not intoxicated, but the punishment of Allāh is severe." (Sūrah al-Hajj, 22: 2)

"Listen! After it there is something which is much more severe: it is a fire whose heat is intense, whose pit is deep, whose rods are of iron, whose water is pus, and whose guard is Mālik – he has no mercy in him for Allāh's sake."

He cried and the Muslims who were around him also cried. He then said:

"Listen! After it is Paradise whose width is equal to the heavens and earth, prepared for the pious. May Allāh ta'ālā safeguard me and you from the painful punishment."¹

Giving up enjoining good

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The first thing with regard to jihād which you will be overpowered with is jihād with your hands, then jihād with your tongues, and then jihād with your hearts. Once the heart does not recognize good and does not disapprove evil, it will be turned upside down."²

Hastening towards noble character

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"I am astonished at a Muslim man to whom his Muslim brother comes for a need but he does not see any good for his self. If he does not hope for reward and does not fear punishment, he should

Enjoining good

‘Alī radiyallāhu ‘anhu said:

“The most superior deeds are: enjoining good, prohibiting evil, and hating a flagrant sinner. The person who enjoins good has actually strengthened a believer, and the one who prohibits evil has actually disgraced a hypocrite.”²

Intelligence in transactions

‘Alī radiyallāhu ‘anhu said:

“If a trader is not a faqīh (well versed with the rules and regulations of trade), he will drown in usury [interest], then drown in it, and continue drowning in it.”³

The abstinent ones

‘Alī radiyallāhu ‘anhu said:

“The abstinent people in this world made the earth a carpet, the soil a bed, and water a perfume. Listen! The person who yearns the Hereafter extricates himself from all desires. The person who fears the Hell-fire desists from all prohibitions. The person who seeks Paradise hastens towards good deeds. The person who is abstinent in this world disregards all calamities.”¹

Four plus four points

‘Alī radiyallāhu ‘anhu said to his son, al-Hasan, radiyallāhu ‘anhu:

“O my son! Remember four plus four points. As long as you have them with you, whatever you do will not harm you.”

He said: “O my father! What are they?”

He replied: “Intelligence is the most valuable wealth. Stupidity is the worst poverty. Self-conceit is the most terrifying desolation. Good character is the most honourable form of nobility.”

Al-Hasan radiyallāhu ‘anhu said: “O my father, these are four points, now teach me the other four.”

He said: “Beware of befriending a foolish person because he will want to benefit you but will harm you instead. Beware of befriending a liar because he will cause you to attract a distant person and alienate a close person from you. the most. Beware of befriending an immoral person because he will sell you for the most paltry sum.”¹

Hope without action

‘Alī radiyallāhu ‘anhu delivered a sermon saying:

“O people! Do not be a person who hopes for the Hereafter without doing any deeds [for it], and delays repentance because of high hopes. He speaks in this world like an abstinent person but does deeds like one who is desirous [of this world]. When he is given of this world, he is not satiated, and when he is deprived of it, he is not content. He is not grateful for what he receives and desires for more in what remains. He commands [others] but does not practise himself. He prohibits but does not desist himself. He [claims to] love the righteous but does not do deeds like them. He [claims to] detest the wrongdoers while he is with them. His self overpowers him in his assumptions, but he does not overpower it on what he is convinced about.”

“When he is wealthy, he is tried by his wealth [into committing evil]. When he falls ill, he becomes grieved. When he becomes poor, he becomes despondent and broken. He is thus dangling between sins and bounties.”

“When he experiences well-being, he does not express thanks. When he is put through tribulation, he does not exercise patience. It is as though everyone except him is warned about death, and someone else is being threatened and reprimanded.”

“O the targets of this world! O you who are mortgaged items of death! O you who are vessels for illnesses! O you who are the booty of days! O you who are burdens of time! O you who are the fruits of time! O you who are the flowers of the ups and downs of time! O you who are dumb when proofs are presented! O you who are submerged by tribulations! O you who are prevented from taking admonition! I am stating a fact: The person who is triumphant does so solely by recognizing his self. The person who is destroyed does so solely by what his own hands earned. Allāh ta‘ālā says:

“O believers! Save yourselves and your family from a fire...” (Sūrah at-Tahrim, 66: 6)

“May Allāh ta‘ālā make me and you among those who hear an admonition and accept it, who are called towards action, and they do it.”¹

Calamity and patience

‘Alī radiyallāhu ‘anhu said:

"The person who pretends to be poor becomes poor, the person who is given a long life is put through tribulation, the person who does not prepare for a calamity cannot exercise patience when he experiences a calamity, the person who is given authority becomes monopolizing, the person who does not consult will regret."¹

Islam in name

'Alī radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"There will soon come a time when nothing of Islam will remain except its name, and nothing of the Qur'ān will remain except its customs."²

Congratulations on life after death

'Alī radīyallāhu 'anhu received news about the death of one of his companions. He then received information that he did not really die. So he wrote to him saying:

"I commence in the name of Allāh, the most beneficent, the most merciful."

"We received information which alarmed your friends. We then received information denying the first information. This really made us happy. But this happiness will soon come to an end because it will be followed by an affirmation of the first information [because death is bound to come]."

"Now can you be a like a person who saw death and witnessed what is after it, and therefore asked to be returned?! He thus complies with its wishes, is prepared, and welcomes it [the arrival of death]. He conveys his beloved wealth to the abode of his Hereafter, and does not consider any other wealth to be his wealth."

"The night and day are continuously decreasing life-spans, finishing wealth, and completing the lives. They accompanied the 'Ād and the Thamūd, and many nations between them. They went to their Sustainer and were presented with their deeds before Him. The night and day are fresh and new, the passage of time has not worn them out, they are just as prepared for the future as they had been with the past."

"You are just like your brothers [who passed on]. You are like a body whose strength has dissolved, just the last spark of life remains, waiting for the caller to summon him."

The companionship of the pious

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu said to his son, al-Hasan radiyallāhu 'anhu:

"O my son! The peak of Dīn lies in remaining in the company of the pious. The perfection of sincerity lies in abstaining from all that is prohibited. A description of this world

'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu was asked about this world, so he said: "Should I give you a long or short reply?"

The person said: "A short reply."

He said: "You will have to give an account for the lawful, and you will be punished for the unlawful. So stay away from the lawful because of the lengthy accounting which you will have to give. And stay away from the unlawful because of the lengthy punishment which you will have to suffer."²

When he read the letter, he said:

"I know very well what the Amīr al-Mu'minīn intends. He wants to keep longer a person who is not destined to remain longer." He wrote the following reply to 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu:

"I know what you intend, so free me from your decision. I am among the Muslim soldiers and I cannot see myself turning away from them."

Provision for the lengthy journey

Sufyān ath-Thaurī rahimahullāh said: Abū Dharr al-Ghifārī¹ radiyallāhu 'anhu stood near the Ka'bah and said:

"O people! I am Jundub al-Ghifārī. Come to a brother who is kind and desires your well-being."

On hearing this, people assembled around him. When they all gathered, he said:

"Tell me, when any of you decides to go on a journey, will he not take provisions which will keep him going and convey him to his destination?"

¹ His name is Jundub ibn Junādah. He embraced Islam in Makkah during the early stages. He was the fourth or fifth person to embrace Islam. He then returned to the land of his people and remained there until Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam emigrated to Madīnah. He emigrated after the battle of the Trench and remained close to Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam all the time – when he was at home and when he was on journey. He settled down in Shām until a dispute arose between him and Mu'āwiyah radiyallāhu 'anhu. So 'Uthmān radiyallāhu 'anhu asked him to come to Madīnah. He then settled down in Rabadhah and remained there until his death in 32 A.H. May Allāh ta'ālā be pleased with him.

The people replied: "He will certainly do this." He said: "The journey to the Hereafter is a very long journey. You should therefore take provisions which will be of benefit to you." The people asked: "What are they?" He said: "Perform one hajj in preparation for the major events, fast on a hot day in preparation for the day of Resurrection, perform two rak'ats of ṣalāh in the darkness of the night in preparation for the solitude of the grave. Speak good things and remain silent from evil statements. Give in charity in preparation for the major day in which you will stand before Allāh ta'ālā. Hopefully, you will gain salvation from its severity. Divide your worldly life into two assemblies: (1) in search for halāl sustenance, (2) in your quest for the Hereafter. A third assembly will be harmful. Do not intend such an assembly. Divide your wealth in two: (1) spend one portion on your family and children, (2) make the second a provision for the Hereafter. Any third type will be harmful to you; it will not benefit you, so do not seek it." He then said at the top of his voice: "An intense greed which you will never acquire has destroyed you."¹

(3) You are the third partner. Try not to be the weakest of the three because Allāh ta'ālā says: 'You will never attain piety until you spend of what you love.'¹ Listen, these camels are from among the wealth which I love. So I preferred sending them forward for my self [by giving them in Allāh's cause]."²

The doors of the rulers

Abū Dharr radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Do not enter the doors of the rulers because they will take away of your *Dīn*¹ far more than what you acquire of their worldly possessions."²

A short du'ā'

Abū Dharr radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"A short du'ā' with piety suffices as much as a little salt suffices food."³

A person possessing little will be admired

Abū Dharr radīyallāhu 'anhu said.

"There will come a time when a person of little wealth and family will be admired just as a person with a big family is admired today."⁴

A righteous companion

Abū Dharr radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"A righteous companion is better than solitude, and solitude is better than an evil companion. A person who directs you towards good is better than a person who remains silent. A person who

If only you knew

Abū Dharr radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"By Allāh, if only you knew what I know, you would not engage in conjugal relations with your wives, and you would not get rest on your beds. By Allāh, I wish that when Allāh ta'ālā created me, He created me into a tree which grows strong and whose fruit is eaten."²

My soul is my steed

A person saw Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhu trying to make a house, so he asked him: "What are you trying to do, O Abū Dharr?" He replied:

"I am seeking a place in which I can sleep. This soul of mine is my steed, if I am not kind to it, it will not convey me [to my destination]."¹

The large number of people

Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Can you see how the number of people has increased!? There is no good in them except the person who is pious or repentant."²

A message

Nāfi' at Ṭahī relates: "I passed by Abū Dharr, so he asked me: 'From where are you?' I replied: 'I am from Iraq.' He asked: 'Do you know 'Abdullāh ibn 'Āmir?' I replied: 'Yes.' He said:

'He used to study with me and remain in my company. He then sought leadership. When you go to Basra, you must go in front of him so he sees you. He will ask you: 'What do you want?' Say to him: 'I want to speak to you in private.' Then say to him: 'I have been sent to you as a messenger from Abū Dharr. He conveys salām to you and says: 'We eat dates and drink water, and we are living as you are living.'"

"When I went [to Basra], I stood in front of him until he saw me. He asked me: 'What do you want?' I replied: 'I want to speak to you in private.' I then said: 'I have been sent as a messenger to you from Abū Dharr - when I said this, his heart trembled - he conveys salām to you and says: 'We eat dates and drink water, and we are living as you are living.'"

"[On hearing this], he loosened his lower garment, covered his head in his pocket, and cried until he filled his pocket with crying."¹

I fear more

Ḥabīb ibn Maslamah - the governor of Shām - sent 300 dinārs to Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhu with a message: "Use it to fulfil your needs."

Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Take it back to him, could he not find anyone more deceived in Allāh's sight than me?"

"All we need is a shade to shield us, a few goats which come to us in the evening, and a slave woman who is charitable to us with her services. I am fearful of having anything more.”¹

The bridge of Hell

Abū Asmā' ar-Rahbī said: “I went to Abū Dharr radīyallāhu 'anhū in Rabadhah. There was a black shabby-looking woman with him. She was neither wearing any coloured clothes nor did she have any effect of perfume on her.” He said:

“Do you know what this black woman is asking me to do? She wants me to go to Iraq. If I go to Iraq, the people will incline me towards their material world.”

“Whereas my bosom friend [Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam] said to me: ‘Beyond the bridge of Hell is a slippery path. We will be more likely to be saved from it if we carry a light burden as opposed to carrying a heavy burden.’”²

I will never conceal knowledge

A man came to Abū Dharr radīyallāhu 'anhū and said: “The alms collectors of ‘Uthmān are committing excesses against us. Can we conceal of our wealth an amount which is equal to their excesses against us?”

¹صفة الصفوة ٣٠٣/١.

²تهذيب حلية الأولياء ١٣٦/١.

He replied: “No. Hold your wealth and say [to them]: ‘Take what is rightfully yours and leave what is not your right.’ Whatever extra they take will be placed in your scale on the day of resurrection.”

A youngster from the Quraysh was standing near him, and he said: “Did the Amīr al-Mu'minīn not prohibit you from issuing fatāwā (plural of fatwā)?”

Abū Dharr radīyallāhu 'anhū replied: “Are you a guardian over me? I take an oath in the name of the Being in whose control is my life, if you were to place a sword here [he pointed to his neck], and I feel I could utter a word which I heard from Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam before you cut me, I would definitely say it.”¹

Two different eras

Abū Dharr radīyallāhu 'anhū said:

Previously, people were leaves without any thorns. Now they have become thorns without any leaves.”² us. You should rather leave a place for reconciliation because we will not say in return to a person who disobeys Allāh ta'ālā with regard to us with anything more than obeying Allāh ta'ālā with regard to him."¹

Where are your possessions?

A man went to Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhu and began looking around in his house. He then said to him! O Abū Dharr! "Where are your possessions?"

He replied: "We have a house to which we direct our righteous possessions."

The man said: "You have to have possessions as long as you are living here [in this world]."

Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "The owner of the house [Allāh ta'ālā] does not permit us to keep anything in it."²

¹ In other words, if he disobeys Allāh ta'ālā in his treatment of us, we will respond by obeying Allāh ta'ālā in our treatment to him.

العقد الفريد ١٢٤٠٢.

² What he means is that he sends his "possessions" to the Hereafter because it is the abode which he is really heading towards. As for this world, it is not a permanent place. When a person lives in a temporary abode, he does not have many possessions because he is going to leave it soon.

صفة الصفوة ٣٠٣/١.

It will enslave me

Uthmān ibn 'Affān radiyallāhu 'anhu sent some wealth to Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhu together with a slave for him. He said to the slave: "If he accepts it from you, you are free."

When the slave went with the wealth to Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhu, he did not accept it. The slave said to him: "O master! My freedom lies in your accepting this wealth."

Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "Your freedom may lie in it, but it entails my enslavement."¹

Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

evil ones are those who take of this world more than what suffices him."¹

My wish

Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"I wish I was a tree which grows strong. I wish I was not created."²

Making knowledge one's pillow

A man came to Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhū and said: "I want to study but I fear I will waste it and not practise on it."

He said: "It is better for you to make knowledge your pillow [the thing which you rely on] than making ignorance your pillow."³

An insurmountable obstacle

Umm Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhā complained to Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhū about her livelihood. So he said to her:

"O Umm Dharr! There is an insurmountable obstacle before us [the day of Resurrection]. The person who is light [having few worldly possessions] will pass it easier than the one who is heavy [having many worldly possessions]."¹

Accepted deeds

'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd¹ radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"I would rather know that Allāh ta'ālā accepted a deed of mine than having the entire earth filled with gold."²

The feast provided by Allāh

'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"This Qur'ān is a feast provided by Allāh ta'ālā, so whoever is able to learn something from it, he should do so. The house which is most deprived of good is the one in which there is no part of the Qur'ān. A house which has no part of the Qur'ān is like a deserted house which has no inhabitants."

¹ He is 'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd ibn Ghāfil al-Hudhalī, Abū 'Abd ar-Rahmān. He is one of the early adherents to Islam. He undertook the second emigration to Abyssinia, returned to Makkah, and then emigrated to Madīnah. He took part in the battle of Badr and the battles after it. He remained in the close companionship of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam and was responsible for his shoes. He was an erudite imām, the jurist of this ummah, and from among the distinguished 'ulamā'. He narrated a lot of knowledge. He passed away in Madīnah in 32 A.H. May Allāh ta'ālā be pleased with him.

"Satan leaves a house in which Sūrah al-Baqarah is heard."

He said:

"These hearts are vessels, so occupy them with the Qur'ān and do not occupy them with anything else."¹

Knowledge and practice

'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Learn knowledge. Then once you have learnt it, practise on it."

He said:

"Destruction to the one who does not know. Had Allāh ta'ālā willed, He would have taught him."

"Seven times destruction to the one who knows but does not practise."²

Flattery

'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

takes an oath in Allāh's name and flatters him with numerous qualities. He returns without having any of his needs fulfilled,¹ and Allāh ta'ālā is angry with him."²

How excellent these detested things are

'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"How excellent these detestable things are: death and poverty."

"O servants of Allāh! One either experiences affluence or poverty, and I am not worried about which of the two I am tested with. If it is affluence, it at least gives me an opportunity to show kindness to the poor. If it is poverty, I get an opportunity to exercise patience."³

The essence of īmān

'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"A person cannot reach the essence of īmān until he reaches its peak. And he cannot reach the peak of īmān until poverty is more desirous to him than affluence, humility is more desirous to him than honour, and the person who praises him and the one who criticizes him are equal in his eyes."

¹ In other words, his flattery did not help him in any way and he was not given anything by the person.

³ تهذيب حلية الأولياء ١٢٠/١.

The companions of 'Abdullāh explained the above as follows:

"Until poverty in the lawful is more beloved to him than affluence in the unlawful, humility in the obedience of Allāh ta'ālā is more beloved to him than honour acquired from disobedience to Allāh ta'ālā, and the person who praises him and the one who criticizes him in matters of the truth are equal in his eyes."¹

Affluence

'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Be pleased with what Allāh ta'ālā allotted to you and you will be the wealthiest person. Abstain from what Allāh ta'ālā made unlawful to you and you will be the most abstentious person. Carry out what Allāh ta'ālā made compulsory on you and you will be the most ardent worshipper. Do not complain about the one who is more merciful to you to the one who has no mercy for you. Seek assistance from Allāh ta'ālā and you will be from among His choicest servants."²

As you sow so shall you reap

'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"You are passing the days and nights, your life-spans are shortening, your deeds are recorded, and death will come suddenly."

"The person who sows good may well reap enthusiasm. The person who sows evil may well reap remorse."

"Every planter shall reap similar to what he sowed. The person who is slow will not be able to get his harvest any earlier. The person who is greedy will only get what was destined for him. The person who receives good should know that it is Allāh ta'ālā who gave him. The one who is protected against evil should know that it is Allāh ta'ālā who protected him."

"The pious ones are the leaders."

"The jurists are guides, and sitting in their assemblies increases [one in knowledge and cognizance]."¹

Humility

'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Allāh ta'ālā abases the person who tries to elevate himself in order to display his greatness.

Allāh ta'ālā elevates the person who lowers himself out of humility. The person who is a show off in this world, Allāh ta'ālā will make a display of him on the day of Resurrection.¹

Futile talk

'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"I warn you of your futile talks. A person should confine himself to speaking to the extent that it fulfils his need."²

The hearts and kindness

'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The hearts are intrinsically made to love those who are kind to them."³

Acceptance [of Allāh's decree]

'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

Holding on to Dīn

'Abdullāh ibn Mas'ūd radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"I take an oath in the name of the Allāh ta'ālā apart from whom there is none worthy of worship, if a person gets up in the morning while holding on to Islam and spends the evening while holding on to Islam, then anything which afflicts him of this world will not harm him."²

Three qualities for entry into Paradise

Conviction and contentment

Conviction entails some of the following:

- (1) You must not please people by earning Allāh's wrath.
- (2) You must not thank anyone for Allāh's sustenance.
- (3) You must not blame anyone for anything which Allāh ta'ālā did not give you.

This is because Allāh's sustenance is not brought by the greed of a greedy person, nor repulsed by the hating of a hateful person. Being vulgar and abusive to a believer is a flagrant sin, killing him is an act of kufr, and the sanctity of his wealth is like the sanctity of his blood [life].

Allāh ta'ālā shall pardon the one who pardons others. Allāh ta'ālā shall reward the one who suppresses his anger. Allāh ta'ālā shall forgive the one who forgives others.

Allāh ta'ālā will give replacement to the person who exercises patience over a calamity.

The worst form of earning is the earning of interest [usury].

The worst food is devouring the wealth of an orphan.

A fortunate person is the one who is admonished by looking at others. An unfortunate person is the one who was unfortunate while in his mother's womb.

An amount with which his soul is content is sufficient for a person. He is surely to go to a place which is just four hand spans [the grave].

An order must be carried out to its end. The peak of an act is its end.

The worst narrations are the false narrations [rumours].

The most honourable death is the death of martyrs.

The person who recognizes a calamity will exercise patience over it. The person who does not recognize it will renounce it.

Allāh ta'ālā will abase the person who acts proud.

The person who assumes control of the world, it will outlive him.

The person who obeys Satan disobeys Allāh ta'ālā. And Allāh ta'ālā shall punish the person who disobeys Him.¹

We have been informed that the distance between one leaf of a door and the other leaf is a distance of a journey of forty years, yet there will come a time when it will be filled with a crowd of people.

I was one of seven people with Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam when we had no food except leaves of trees. The corners of our mouths became ulcerated. I took a sheet, tore it in half and gave one half to Sa'd ibn Mālik.¹ I used one half as a lower garment, and he used the other half as a lower garment. Now, almost every one of us has become a governor over one of the cities.

I seek refuge in Allāh ta'ālā from considering myself to be great while I am insignificant in Allāh's eyes.

There was always succession in prophet-hood. This continued [until the demise of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam], and it ended in kingship. You will see and experience rulers and governors after us.²

ABŪ MŪSĀ AL-ASH'ARĪ radiyallāhu 'anhu

Speaking without knowledge

Abū Mūsā¹ radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"When Allāh ta'ālā teaches something to a person, he must teach it to others. He must not speak about things which he does not have knowledge about or else he will be from among the pretenders and will slink out of Dīn."²

Leadership and kingship

Abū Mūsā radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Leadership is established after consultation. Kingship is established by the sword."¹

This world

Abū Mūsā radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Everything about this world causes anguish, or it is a tribulation."²

Striving before death

Abū Mūsā radiyallāhu 'anhu strove severely before his death. So someone said to him: "Why don't you take it easy and be kind to yourself?"

He said: "When a horse is given rein [to move fast] and it approaches its destination, it spends all its energies [to reach its goal as quickly as possible]. The time of my life is even less than that."³

This world has been hastened for them

Anas ibn Mālik radiyallāhu 'anhu narrates: Abū Mūsā radiyallāhu 'anhu said to me: "O Anas! What is causing the people to be so slow in matters of the Hereafter?"

I replied: "Desires and Satan."

He said: "No. By Allāh, it is because the world has been hastened for them and the Hereafter has been deferred. If they were to see the Hereafter, they will neither transgress nor will they incline towards this world."¹

The dirham and dīnār

Abū Mūsā radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"This dirham and dīnār have destroyed those who were before you, and I think it will certainly destroy you as well."²

Cry!

Abū Mūsā radiyallāhu 'anhu addressed the people of Basra saying:

"O people! Cry [to Allāh ta'ālā]. If you cannot cry, then adopt the appearance of a crying person. The people of the Hell-fire will cry until their tears run dry. They will then cry tears of blood to such an extent that ships will be able to sail in their blood."³

The fluttering of the heart

Abū Mūsā radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The heart is known as a qalb because it is in constant motion. This heart is like a feather on an open field – the winds sway it upside down as they like."¹

The one who causes dissent

Abū Mūsā radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Only the child of a prostitute will strive to cause dissent among people. He destroys his self, his brother, and the one to whom he conveys his rumours."²

The limits of Islam

Abū Mūsā radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Everything has a limit, and the limits of Islam are: abstinence, humility, gratitude, and patience."

"Abstinence is the peak of all matters."

"Humility earns freedom from pride."

"Patience earns salvation from the Hell-fire."

"Gratitude earns Paradise."¹

The person with the piece of bread

When death approached Abū Mūsā radiyallāhu 'anhu, he said:

"O my sons! You must remember the person with the piece of bread."

He said: "There was a man who worshipped in a monastery for seventy years. He only came out of it for one day."

"Satan caused him to be attracted to a woman, and he remained with her for seven days. He then realized his folly and left in repentance. For every step he took, he prayed and went into prostration [as part of his repentance]."

"By nightfall, he reached a shop in which there were twelve poor people. Fatigue overtook him and he fell between two of the men. There was a monk who used to send bread every night to these poor men, and each one would receive one piece. The person who was responsible to bring the bread arrived, and gave each of them one piece of bread."

"He passed by the man who had left [the woman] in repentance. He thought he was a poor man as well, so he gave him a piece of bread as well. The person who did not get a piece of bread said: "Why are you not giving me my piece of bread?" He replied: "Do you think I withheld it from you? Ask around and see if anyone received two pieces." They all replied: "No."

"He said: 'Do you think I withheld it from you? By Allāh, I will not give you anything tonight.'"

"The repentant man took the piece of bread which he received and handed it over to the person who did not receive. The repentant man then died by the next morning."

Abū Mūsā radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"His seventy years of worship was weighed against the seven nights. The seven nights outweighed the seventy years. The seven nights were then weighed against the piece of bread. The piece of bread outweighed the seven nights."

Abū Mūsā radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"O my sons! You must remember the person with the piece of bread."¹

The moral of this story is that a small action – returning a piece of bread to its rightful owner – was weightier than his worship of seventy years.

HUDHAYFAH IBN AL-YAMĀN radiyallāhu 'anhu

Purchasing a part of Dīn with another part.

Hudhayfah ibn al-Yamān¹ radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"I purchase some of my Dīn with some of it out of fear I may lose all of it."

He said: "Every Sahābī purchased some of his Dīn with some of it."

Someone asked him: "Even you?"

He replied: "By Allāh, even me. I go to one of them – and every single person has good qualities and Hudhayfah ibn al-Yamān al-'Abasī radiyallāhu 'anhu is among the senior Sahābah. His father had killed someone so he fled to Madīnah and became a confederate of the Banū 'Abd al-Ash-hal. His people referred to him as al-Yamān because he became a confederate of the al-Yamāniyyah.

He and his father embraced Islam and wanted to take part in the battle of Badr, but the polytheists stopped them. They then took part in the battle of Uhud and al-Yamān was martyred in it. Hudhayfah radiyallāhu 'anhu took part in the battle of Khandaq and other battles which followed.

He is known as the one who was a confidant of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam because he had knowledge of the hypocrites and tribulations. He passed away in Madā'in in 36 A.H. at an old age. May Allāh ta'ālā be pleased with him.

evil qualities – and mention his good qualities and cast aside his other [evil] qualities.”¹

Words without action

Hudhayfah ibn al-Yamān radīyallāhu ‘anhu was asked about hypocrisy, so he said:

“It entails your speaking about Islam but not practising on it.”²

Being particular about halāl

Hudhayfah radīyallāhu ‘anhu said:

“The person who sells alcohol is like one who consumes it. The person who keeps pigs is like the one who consumes them. Investigate the income of your slaves and see where they are obtaining it from because flesh which has been sustained with harām will not enter Paradise.”³

Leaders who have no weight

Hudhayfah radīyallāhu ‘anhu said:

The living dead

Hudhayfah radiyallāhu 'anhu was asked about the living dead, so he said:

"He is the one who does not prohibit evil – neither physically, verbally, nor with his heart [by thinking of it as evil]."¹

Hypocrisy

Hudhayfah radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The hypocrites of today are worse than those of the era of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam. In those days, they used to conceal their hypocrisy, but today they display it openly."

He also said:

"Hypocrisy has disappeared, there is no hypocrisy. There is only kufr after īmān."

He also said:

"In the time of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam, a person would utter a statement just once and become a hypocrite because of it. But today I hear you making the same statement four times in one assembly."²

The absence of humility

Hudhayfah radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Humility is the first thing which you will find lacking in your Dīn, and salāh is the last thing which you will find lacking in your Dīn."¹

Become accustomed to patience

Hudhayfah radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Become accustomed to patience because a calamity may well befall you. Listen! You will be afflicted with a calamity which is worse than what we were afflicted with when we were with Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam."²

Fear of hypocrisy

Hearts are tested at times of tribulation

Hudhayfah radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"A tribulation is presented to the hearts. If a heart is inclined to it, a black dot will be marked on it. If a heart rejects it, a white dot will be marked on it. If anyone would like to test whether a tribulation has afflicted him or not, he must look whether he considers the unlawful to be lawful or vice versa. If he does, then tribulation has certainly afflicted him."²

Warning against tribulations

Hudhayfah radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"Beware of tribulations, none of you should wait in anticipation for it. By Allāh, when a person waits in anticipation for it, it wipes out all traces of him just as flood waters wipe out all traces of people. When you see tribulations, remain confined to your homes, break your swords, and cut off your bow-strings."³

then good is not enjoined
Hudhayfah radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"There will come a time when the best among you will be the one who does not enjoin good and does not prohibit evil."¹

Your beloved has come in poverty

Hudhayfah radiyallāhu 'anhū said: "One of the people who visited Hudhayfah radiyallāhu 'anhū when he was on his death-bed related to me that he said:

"Were it not for the fact that I consider this day to be my last in this world and the first of the hereafter, I would not have spoken about it."

"O Allāh! You know that I preferred poverty to affluence, lowness to honour, and death to life. Your beloved has come to you in poverty. The one who regrets is not successful."

He then passed away. May Allāh ta'ālā be pleased with him."²

Moderation

Hudhayfah radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The best of you are not those who cast aside the world for the Hereafter, nor those who cast aside the Hereafter for this world. Rather, the best are those who derive benefit from both."¹

Desire for seclusion

Hudhayfah radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"By Allah, I wish I had a person who would be responsible for my wealth so that I could lock my door and no one would come to me until I meet Allah ta'ālā."²

What they see and what they know

Hudhayfah radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The thing which I fear most for this ummah is when they give preference to what they see over what they know, and they go astray without even perceiving it."³

The changing of the heart

Hudhayfah radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"A person enters a place wherein it was incumbent on him to speak for Allah's sake but he does not speak. In such a case, his heart will never return to its original state."¹

A dislike for enjoining good

Hudhayfah radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"There will come a time when the assemblies of people will be like a dead donkey, and a dead donkey will be more liked to them than sitting in the company of a believer who enjoins them with good and prohibits them from evil."²

The hearts

Hudhayfah radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Hearts are of four categories:

1. A heart which has a covering over it. This is the heart of an unbeliever.
2. A heart which is tilted. This is the heart of a hypocrite.

3. A heart which is bare. It has a brilliant light. This is the heart of a believer.

4. A heart which has hypocrisy and īmān. īmān is like a tree which grows with wholesome water. Hypocrisy is like a boil which grows with pus and blood. Such a heart is overpowered by whichever of the two overpowers it."¹

Hudhayfah radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"Beware of going to places of tribulation."

He was asked: "O Abū 'Abdillāh! What are the places of tribulation?"

He replied: "The doors of the rulers. When you go to a ruler, you end up affirming his falsehood and saying what is not in your heart."²

Hudhayfah radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"There will come a time when no one will be saved from it except the person who makes du'ā' like the du'ā' of a drowning man."¹

The levels of prohibiting evil

Hudhayfah radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"O people! Will you not ask me? People used to ask Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam about good, and I used to ask him about evil. Will you not ask about the living dead?"

He said: "Allāh ta'ālā sent Muḥammad sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam who invited people from deviation towards guidance, and from kufr towards īmān. There were those who accepted his call. In this way, the one who was 'dead' came alive through the truth. And the one who was alive 'died' because he remained on falsehood."

"Prophet-hood then came to an end, and caliphate came on the pattern of prophet-hood. This will be followed by clinging kingship."

"There will be the one who will prohibit [evil] with his heart, hand and tongue. He would have fulfilled his responsibility."

"There will be the one who will prohibit with his heart and tongue, but withhold his hand. He would have left aside one branch of his responsibility."

"There will be the one who will prohibit with his heart, but withhold his hand and tongue. He would have left aside two branches of his responsibility."

"There will be the one who will not prohibit with his heart and tongue. He is the living dead."¹

The changing times

Hudhayfah radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"What you consider to be good today was considered evil in past times. What you consider evil today, will be considered good in times to come. You will remain on good as long as you recognize the truth, and the 'ālim among you does not consider the truth to be unimportant."²

Change in rules

He was presented before Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam before the battles of Badr and Uhud but Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam considered him to be too young to take part. He then permitted him to take part in the battle of Khandaq. He was fifteen years old at the time. He was from among those who pledged allegiance (bay'ah) to Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam under the tree [on the occasion of Hudaybiyyah] and took part in the conquest of Makkah. The one who compiles the Qur'ān cannot be incapable

Al-Hajjāj ibn Yūsuf wrote to 'Abdullāh ibn 'Umar radīyallāhu 'anhu thus:

"I heard that you are seeking the caliphate. The caliphate is not suited to a person who is incapable, a miser, and a self-respecting person."

Ibn 'Umar radīyallāhu 'anhu wrote to him: "With regard to your reference to my seeking the caliphate, you should know that I never sought it nor am I bothered about it."

"As for your reference to stammering, miserliness, and self-respect: a person who compiles the Qur'ān cannot be incapable, and the one who pays the zakāh of his wealth cannot be a miser. As for your reference to self-respect, those who are most deserving of my self-respect are my children – someone else should not partner me with regard to their lineage."¹

They would eat one day and remain hungry the next

A person said to Ibn 'Umar radīyallāhu 'anhu: "Have you set aside a laxative for you?"

He asked: "What is a laxative?"

the man said: "When you are overburdened by a meal, you take a laxative to ease your stomach."

he said: "I have not eaten to my fill for the last four months. And it is not because I did not have sufficient to eat, but because I met people [the Sahābah radīyallāhu 'anhum] who would eat and they were satiated one day, and remain hungry the next."¹

'Abdullāh radīyallāhu 'anhu said to him: "Patch your lower garment and wear it."

The youngster was not too happy with this suggestion.

So 'Abdullāh radīyallāhu 'anhu said to him: "Woe to you! Fear Allāh, and do not be of those people who place the sustenance which Allāh ta'ālā provided to them in their stomachs and on their backs [by wasting it on excessive food and clothing]."²

Where are the abstinent ones?

The more a person acquires of this world, the less his rank decreases in Allāh's sight, even if He has been generous and kind to him."¹

People at a time of tribulation

Rasūlullah ibn 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

Our similitude in this tribulation is like a group of people travelling on a road which they knew. While they were travelling, clouds and darkness enveloped them. Some of them turned to the right and left and lost the way. But we remained where we were until Allāh ta'ālā cleared the clouds and darkness for us. We saw our original path, recognized it, and proceeded on our way."

Replying to a letter

'Abdullāh ibn 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"I take an oath, I consider the duty to reply to a letter similar to the duty of replying to a salām."

Giving up a thing which preoccupies the heart

Ibn 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu sold one of his camels, so someone said to him: "Why did you not retain it?"

He replied: "It was very agreeable to me, but it took away a part of my heart, and I did not want my heart to become preoccupied with anything."

You do not know what your name is going to be tomorrow

'Abdullāh ibn 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"When you get up in the morning, do not think about what you are going to do in the evening. When evening arrives, do not think about what you are going to do in the morning. Take full advantage of your good health before you fall ill, and of your life before death overtakes you. O servant of Allāh! You do not know what your name is going to be tomorrow."³

The laughing of the Sahābah radiyallāhu 'anhum

'Abdullāh ibn 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu was asked: "Did the Companions of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam laugh?"

He said: "Yes, but īmān was firmer than mountains in their hearts."¹

Imulating Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam

Muḥammad rahimahullāh said: "If you were to see Ibn 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu when he was following the footsteps of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam, you would say he is a mad man."²

"I said: 'O ruins! What happened to your people?'"

"Ibn 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu said: 'They departed from this world and their deeds remain.'"³

Long-windedness in du'ā'

Some people said to Ibn 'Umar radīyallāhu 'anhu: "Make du'ā' to Allāh ta'ālā for us with many du'ā's."

He said: "O Allāh! Have mercy on us, bestow on us with well-being, and give us sustenance."

They said: "O Abū 'Abd ar-Raḥmān! Make a longer du'ā' for us."

He replied: "We seek refuge in Allāh ta'ālā from long-windedness."¹

I do not like to utter this word

Az-Zuhrī said: "Ibn 'Umar radīyallāhu 'anhu wanted to curse his servant, so he said: 'O Allāh! Cur...' and he did not complete the word. He then said: 'This is a word which I do not like to utter.'"²

'Abdullāh ibn 'Umar radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

It is hypocrisy

Hypocrisy

'Abdullāh ibn 'Umar radīyallāhu 'anhu heard a man speaking out against al-Ḥajjāj. So he said to him: "Tell me, had he been present here and listening, would you say what you are saying about him?" The man replied: "No."

He was asked: "Who are the ghurabā'?"

UBAYY IBN KA'B radiyallāhu 'anhu

Acceptance of the truth

A person said to Ubayy ibn Ka'b¹ radiyallāhu 'anhu: "Advise me, but let it be brief."

He said: "Accept the truth from whoever brings it, even if he is a distant and abhorrent person. Reject falsehood from the one who brings it to you, even if he is a close and beloved person."²

Knowledge is not for embellishment

Ubayy ibn Ka'b radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Seek knowledge and practise on it. Do not seek it to embellish yourselves with it. There may well

¹ He is Ubayy ibn Ka'b ibn Qays al-Anṣārī an-Najjārī, Abū al-Mundhir. He is known as Sayyid al-qurrā' (the chief of the readers). He was from among those of the 'Aqabah Thāniyah (the second pledge undertaken by the Anṣār). He took part in the battle of Badr and the other battles. Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said to him: "May knowledge be wholesome and palatable to you, O Abū al-Mundhir." He also said to him: "Allāh ta'ālā instructed me to read to you."

² Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu used to refer to him as: Sayyidul Muslimīn (the chief of the Muslims). There is difference of opinion with regard to the year of his demise. In his book, al-Isābah, Ibn Hajar rahimahullāh gives preference to his demise being in 30 A.H. May Allāh ta'ālā be pleased with him.

...a time when knowledge will be used for self-embellishment as clothes are worn for self-embellishment."¹

The believer is on light

Ubayy ibn Ka'b radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

A believer is found in four situations:

- (1) When he is put through a tribulation, he exercises patience.
- (2) When he is blessed [with prosperity], he is grateful.
- (3) When he speaks, he speaks the truth.
- (4) When he passes judgement, he is just."

He moves around in five lights, and this is referred to by Allāh ta'ālā as: 'Light upon light.' (Surah an-Nūr, 24: 35). They are:

- (1) His speech is light.
- (2) His knowledge is light.
- (3) His entrance is in light.
- (4) His exit is from light.

(5) And he will proceed towards light on the day of Resurrection."

"The unbeliever moves around in five forms of darkness:

- (1) His speech is darkness.
- (2) His actions are darkness.
- (3) His entrance is in darkness.
- (4) His exit is from darkness.
- (5) He will proceed towards darkness on the day of Resurrection."¹

Adhering to the Sunnah

Ubayy ibn Ka'b radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Adhere to the path [of Islam] and the Sunnah because any servant who is on the path and Sunnah, remembers the Merciful, and his eyes shed tears out of Allāh's fear, then the Hell-fire will not touch him."

"A servant who is on the path and Sunnah, remembers the Merciful, and he has goose flesh out of Allāh's fear, then he is like a tree whose leaves became dry. While it is still dry, a wind blows and its leaves fall off. This servant's sins fall off him just as the leaves fall off this tree."

"Moderation on the path and Sunnah is better than independent judgement which is against the path and Sunnah. So look at your deeds – whether they are based on independent judgement or on moderation – they must be on the path and Sunnah of the Prophets 'alayhimus salām."¹

The Book of Allāh

A man said to Ubayy ibn Ka'b radiyallāhu 'anhu: "Advise me."

He said: "Take the Book of Allāh as an imām, accept it as a judge and arbiter, because this is the Book which your Messenger sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam left behind for you. It is an intercessor whose intercession is accepted, and a witness which is beyond accusation."

"It contains your accounts and the accounts of those before you, it is a judge between you, and it contains information for you and those after you."²

What he left for Allāh

Ubayy ibn Ka'b radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"When a servant leaves something for Allāh's sake, He most certainly replaces him with something far better from avenues he never imagined. When a servant scorns a thing and takes it from an unsuitable place, Allāh ta'ālā gives him something more distressing to him from places he never imagined."¹

Be on your guard with your friend

A man said to Ubayy radiyallāhu 'anhu: "O Abū al-Mundhir! Advise me."

He said: "Do not get involved in matters which do not concern you, remain aloof from your enemy, be on your guard with your friend, only desire what a living person has if you would desire what a dead person has [since a dead person has nothing, do not desire anything which another person has], do not seek the fulfilment of a need from a person who does not bother about fulfilling it for you."²

The world is a conveyance towards the Hereafter

Abū Nadrah said: I had some work with 'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu during his caliphate. I reached Madīnah at night and went to him the next morning. Allāh blessed me with intelligence and the ability to speak well. I had become engrossed in the world, then considered it to be insignificant, and cast it aside as though it was nothing. There was a man sitting at his side with white hair and wearing white clothes. When I completed my speech, he said:

"Everything you said was to the point, except for your engrossment in the world. Do you know what this world is?"

"This world contains the means for our journey to the Hereafter, and in it are our deeds for which we will be recompensed in the Hereafter."

"He added: 'A person who is more knowledgeable than me became engrossed in this world as well.'"

"I said: 'O Amīr al-Mu'minīn! Who is this man sitting at your side?'"

"He replied: 'He is the chief of the Muslims, Ubayy ibn Ka'b.'"¹

Maintain brotherhood to a certain extent

MU'ĀDH IBN JABAL radiyallāhu 'anhu

A warning against four things

Mu'ādh ibn Jabal¹ radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

“There are four qualities which a person should try to avoid as far as possible”

Some people asked: “What are they?”

He replied:

¹ He is Mu'ādh ibn Jabal ibn 'Amr Anṣārī Khazrajī, Abū 'Abd ar-Rahmān. He was present in the pledge of al-'Aqabah ath-Thānīyah, took part in the battle of Badr and all the other battles after it. He was one of the four people from the Khazraj who compiled the Qur'ān during the era of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam. Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam testified in his favour by saying that he is the most knowledgeable of the ummah with regard to halāl and harām.

Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said to him: “O Mu'ādh! I love you...” Before Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam passed away, he sent Mu'ādh radiyallāhu 'anhu to Yemen. And so, he was in Yemen at the time of Rasūlullāh's sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam demise. He was a senior person and the Sahābah radiyallāhu 'anhum acknowledged his status. He passed away in the plague of 'Amawās in 18 A.H. May Allāh ta'ālā be pleased with him. There is difference of opinion with regard to his age at the time of his death. The most popular opinion states that he was 33 years old.

- (1) A time will come when falsehood will become obvious.
- (2) A person will get up in the morning on a particular Dīn and would have changed to another Dīn by the evening.
- (3) A man will say: 'By Allāh, I do not know on what [Dīn] I am. He is neither living with insight nor does he die with insight.
- (4) A man will be given wealth from Allāh's wealth¹ to speak falsehood which obviously displeases Allāh."²

The status of knowledge

Mu'adh ibn Jabal radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"Acquire knowledge because acquiring it for Allāh's sake produces fear for Him, seeking it is an act of worship, discussing it is a tasbīh (glorification of Allāh ta'ālā), and researching it is a jihād."

"Teaching it to the one who does not know it is an act of charity, and giving it to its worthy recipients is a means of proximity to Allāh ta'ālā because it is a guide-post for the lawful and unlawful, a lighthouse for the people of Paradise, a solace in distress, a companion in a strange land, and a company in solitude."

"It shows you occasions of joy and sadness, it is a weapon against the enemy, and a beautification among friends. Allāh ta'ālā elevates some people through it, makes them leaders and imāms in good, their ways are adopted, their actions are emulated, and their opinions are accepted. The angels desire their friendship and they touch them with their wings. Every creature seeks forgiveness for them – even the fish and reptiles in the ocean, birds of prey, and cattle."

"This is because knowledge is a life for the hearts from ignorance, and a light to the eyes from darkness. Through knowledge a person reaches the ranks of the virtuous, and the highest position in this world and in the Hereafter."

"Pondering and reflecting on knowledge is equal to fasting, and mutual learning and teaching is equal to spending the night in worship."

"Ties of kinship are joined through knowledge, and the lawful is distinguished from the unlawful."

"It is the leader of those who do deeds, and deeds are subservient to it. The fortunate are inspired by it, and the unfortunate are deprived of it."¹

Leadership of children

A plague broke out in Shām and remained there. People said: "This is nothing but a flood without water." When Mu'ādh ibn Jabal radīyallāhu 'anhu heard this, he delivered the following sermon:

"I have heard what you are saying. This is most certainly a mercy from your Allāh, a du'ā' of your Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam,² and it embraced the righteous before you. But they feared what was more dangerous than it, i.e. a man leaves his house in the morning without knowing whether he is a believer or a hypocrite, and they feared the leadership of children."³

Innovation (bid'ah) is deviation

Mu'ādh ibn Jabal radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

التحذير الأولياء ١٨٨\١.

² Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said with regard to a plague: "... Allāh ta'ālā made it a mercy for the believers. A person who experiences a plague and remains in his place patiently and in expectation of reward, believing fully that he will only be afflicted by what Allāh ta'ālā has destined for him, then he will certainly receive the reward of a martyr." (أخرجه البخاري برقم ٢٤٧٤)

³ حلية الأولياء ٢٤٠\١، وتحذير الحلية ١٨٨\١.

"There will be tribulations which will follow you, in which there will be an abundance of wealth, the Qur'ān will be opened and read by a believer, a hypocrite, a child, an adult, the light-skinned and the dark-skinned."¹

"A time will come when a person will say: 'Why should I read the Qur'ān to the people when they are not following me in it? I don't think they will follow me in it unless I read something else to them.'"

"Beware, beware of what he innovates, because what he innovates is deviation."

"I warn you of the deviation of the wise man, because Satan utters a statement of deviation in the wise man, and a hypocrite may well make a statement of truth."

"Accept the truth because there is light on the truth."²

¹ The first tribulation is that of wealth. The second tribulation is memorizing the Qur'ān while being very far from understanding it, reflecting over its verses, and practising on it. Allāh ta'ālā says: "It is a blessed Book which We revealed to you so that people may contemplate over its verses and intelligent people may comprehend it." (Sūrah Sād, 38: 29)

² This means that a person must go with the truth wherever it goes. His attachment must not be with individuals unless they are within the circle of truth. If they deviate from this circle, he must cast them aside.

Some people said: "May Allāh have mercy on you, how do we know that a wise man may well make a statement of falsehood?"

He said: "It will be a statement which you will not be accustomed to hearing from him. And you will say: 'What is this?' He will not commend you, and he may well retract some of what you know."

"Knowledge and īmān are such that whoever seeks them until the day of Resurrection will find them."¹

Moderation

A man said to Mu'adh ibn Jabal radiyallāhu 'anhu: "Teach me."

He asked: "Will you follow my instructions?"

The man said: "I am extremely desirous of obeying you."

Mu'adh ibn Jabal radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "You must alternate between fasting and not fasting, you must engage in night ṣalāh and you must also sleep at night, you must earn a living but do not commit a sin, ensure you die as a Muslim, and beware of the du'ā' of the oppressed."²

Du'ā' at the time of tahajjud

When Mu'adh ibn Jabal radiyallāhu 'anhu used to get up for tahajjud at night, he would say:

"O Allāh! The eyes are asleep, the stars have penetrated deeply, but You are ever-living, sustaining all."

"O Allāh! My quest for Paradise has been slow, and my fleeing from the Hell-fire has been weak."

"O Allāh! Reserve guidance for me which You will give to me on the day of Resurrection, surely You do not go back on Your word."¹

The ṣalāh of a person departing from this world

Mu'adh ibn Jabal radiyallāhu 'anhu said to his son:

"O my son! When you perform ṣalāh, perform it as though you are about to depart from this world; do not think you will ever return to it again."

"O my son! Remember – a believer dies between two good deeds – a deed which he sent forward and a deed which he deferred."²

Give preference to your share of the Hereafter

A man came with some of his friends to Mu'adh ibn Jabal radiyallāhu 'anhu to greet him and bid him farewell. So Mu'adh ibn Jabal radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"I advise you to do two things, if you safeguard them, you will be safeguarded. You cannot do without your share of this world, but you are more in need of your share of the Hereafter. You should therefore give preference to your share of the Hereafter over your share of this world. Arrange it in the proper manner and it will remain with you wherever you go."¹

The remembrance of Allāh ta'ālā

"I prefer engaging in the remembrance of Allāh ta'ālā from morning to evening than being carried on the best horse in the cause of Allāh ta'ālā from morning to evening."²

The tribulation of women

Mu'adh ibn Jabal radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

Turning to Allāh when people are heedless of Him

Mu'adh ibn Jabal radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"You will inevitably sit in the company of people who will engage in conversations. When you see them becoming heedless [of Allāh ta'ālā], you must turn with full enthusiasm towards Allāh ta'ālā."²

Salāh with congregation

Mu'adh ibn Jabal radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The person who would like to go to Allāh ta'ālā while feeling safe and secure must perform these five salāhs where the call to them is made [i.e. in the musjid]. They are from among the ways of guidance and Sunnah which your Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam left for you. Do not say: 'I have a place for salāh in my house and I will perform salāh there. If you do this, you will be abandoning the Sunnah of your Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam. And if you leave the Sunnah of your Prophet sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam, you will go astray."¹

Speak less with people

Mu'adh ibn Jabal radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Speak less with people, but speak a lot with your Allāh. Perhaps your heart will see Allāh ta'ālā."²

This is when the heart will be at rest

Mu'adh ibn Jabal radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

The tribulation of an 'ālim

Mu'adh ibn Jabal radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"O assembly of Arabs! How will you respond to three things: (1) a world which chops off your necks, (2) an error of an 'ālim, (3) a hypocrite disputing with the Qur'ān?" The people remained silent. So he said:

"If the 'ālim is guided, relegate affairs of your Dīn to him. If he is put through tribulation, do not sever your patience with him because a believer is put through tribulation and he repents."

"As for the Qur'ān, it has light like the light for the path. It is not concealed from anyone. Whatever you know about the Qur'ān, do not inquire about it. Whatever you have doubt about, refer it to the one who has knowledge of it."

"As for this world, the one in whose heart Allāh ta'ālā placed contentment has surely triumphed. As for the one who is not blessed with such contentment, his world is not going to benefit him in any way."²

Humility

Mu'adh ibn Jabal radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The person who wilfully knows who is to his right and left when he is in ṣalāh has not really performed his ṣalāh."¹

The remembrance of Allāh ta'ālā

Mu'adh ibn Jabal radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Man has not done a deed which is as great a saviour from Allāh's punishment than the remembrance of Allāh ta'ālā."

The people asked: "O Abū 'Abd ar-Rahmān! Not even jihād in the cause of Allāh ta'ālā?"

He replied: "Not even when he strikes with his sword until it is broken. This is because Allāh ta'ālā says: 'The remembrance of Allāh is the greatest.'"² (Sūrah al-'Ankabūt, 29: 45)

Hope at the time of death

When death approached Mu'adh ibn Jabal radīyallāhu 'anhu, he said:

"O Allāh! I used to fear You, and now I have hope in You."

² الزهد للإمام أحمد ص ٢٢٩.

"O Allāh! You know that I did not love this world and did not want to live long in it in order to make streams flow and trees grow. Rather, I wanted to live in it to experience the thirst of hot days, to endure difficult times, and to hasten in going to the 'ulamā' at the time when they conduct assemblies of dhikr."¹

Towards the end of time

Mu'adh ibn Jabal radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Towards the end of time there will be readers [of the Qur'ān] who will be flagrant sinners, ministers who will be immoral, trustworthy people who will be treacherous, monitors who will be oppressive, and rulers who will be liars."²

ABŪ AD-DARDĀ' radiyallāhu 'anhu

As though you can see Him

Abū ad-Dardā'¹ radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Worship Allāh ta'ālā as though you can see Him. Consider yourself to be among the dead. Beware of the supplication of the oppressed."

"Remember! A little which suffices you is better than a lot which makes you heedless. Righteousness does not wear out, and a sin is not forgotten."²

'Umar radiyallāhu 'anhu sent him to Hims and then to Damascus to teach the Qur'an. He became the judge of Damascus during the caliphate of 'Uthmān radiyallāhu 'anhu.

He is an imām who is followed, the physician of this ummah, and the chief of the readers [of the Qur'an] in Damascus.

He passed away in 32 A.H. in Damascus.

Be fully concerned about your brother

Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Reprimanding one's brother is better for him than losing him. Do you really have a completely perfect brother? Give to your brother, be affectionate towards him, and do not obey one who is jealous of him or else you will be like the jealous person."

"Death will come to you tomorrow and you will lose him. How, then, can you cry for him after death when you broke ties with him when he was alive."¹

Have love for the best among you

Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"You will continue experiencing goodness as long as you have love for the best among you. Whatever is said to you in the name of the truth, you will recognize it. The one who recognizes the truth is like the one who practises on it."²

Gratitude for bounties

Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The one who only acknowledges Allāh's favours in his food and drink has in fact done very little deeds, and his punishment has arrived. The person who is not independent of this world does not really own the world."

He also said:

"How many favours of Allāh ta'ālā are lying concealed in a motionless vein!"¹

What follows death

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"If you only knew what you are going to see after death, you will not eat any food with desire, you will not drink any liquid with desire, and you will not enter a house to shade you. You will go out to the highlands beating your chests, and you will cry over yourselves. And I wish I was a tree which grows strong and is eaten thereafter."²

The peak of īmān

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The peak of īmān is: to be patient over whatever order is issued, to accept Allāh's decree, to be sincere in reliance on Him, and to submit completely to Allāh ta'ālā."³

Be concerned about your self

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Do not impose on people what they have not been imposed [by Allāh ta'ālā]. Do not be judgemental of them."

"O man! Worry about your self because the person who bothers about what he sees in people will experience lengthy grief and his anger will not subside."¹ [He will always find something to grieve about, or to be angry at].

Allāh ta'ālā loves him

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu wrote to Maslamah ibn Mukhallad al-Anṣārī saying:

"Peace be to you. When a servant acts in obedience to Allāh ta'ālā, Allāh ta'ālā loves him. When Allāh ta'ālā loves him, He makes him beloved to His servants. When a servant acts in disobedience to Allāh ta'ālā, Allāh ta'ālā detests him. When Allāh ta'ālā detests him, He makes him detestable to His servants."²

Until you detest your self

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"You cannot fully comprehend until you study different aspects of the Qur'ān. You cannot fully comprehend until you detest people for Allāh's sake. And then, you must look at your self and detest it more than how you detested people."¹

Admonition is an act of charity

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"A believer does not carry out an act of charity which is more beloved to Allāh ta'ālā than an admonition which he imparts to his people. They then disperse with Allāh ta'ālā having enabled them to benefit from the admonition."²

Two types of du'ā'

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Beware of the du'ā' of two people, viz. the du'ā' of an orphan and the du'ā' of an oppressed. Their *du'ā'*s go up to Allāh ta'ālā at night while people are asleep."³

O people of Damascus!

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"You are our brothers in Dīn, our neighbours where we live, and our helpers against the enemies."

"What prevents you from befriending me, whereas my expenses are paid by someone else [and not by you]?"

"How is it I see your 'ulamā' departing and the ignorant among you not learning?"

"I see you devoting yourselves to what has already been guaranteed for you [i.e. you are devoting yourselves to acquiring sustenance which is already destined for you], while you are casting aside whatever you have been ordered to do."

"Listen! There were nations who built fortified buildings, amassed a lot of wealth, and had many distant hopes. But their buildings were reduced to graves, their hopes were shattered to deception, and whatever riches they amassed were all ruined."

"Listen! Study and teach to others because an 'ālim and a student are equal in reward. And there is no good in people after these two."¹

I order you but I do not do it myself

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"I order you to do something but do not do it myself, yet I hope for reward for it. The one I would dislike to wrong the most is the person who seeks help from none other than Allāh ta'ālā."¹

The reward for pondering and reflecting

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Pondering and reflecting for some time is better than spending the entire night in worship."²

Remember Allāh ta'ālā during prosperity

A man said to Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu: "Advise me."

He said: "Remember Allāh ta'ālā during prosperity and He will remember you during adversity. When you hanker after something of this world, look where it is heading to."³

When they abandoned Allāh's order

Jubayr ibn Nufayr said: "When Qabrus was conquered, its people were separated, and they began crying to each other. I saw Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu sitting alone and crying. I said: 'O Abū ad-Dardā'! Why are you crying on a day in which Allāh ta'ālā honoured Islam and the Muslims?"

"He replied: 'Woe to you, O Jubayr! Look at how insignificant people become in Allāh's sight when they abandon His orders, whereas they were a powerful and influential nation, and they had the kingdom. When they abandoned Allāh's orders, they were reduced to what you see before you.'"¹

Taking admonition from death

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said when he saw a funeral procession:

"You may depart in the morning and we will depart in the evening. Or you may depart in the evening and we will depart in the morning. What a forceful admonition, yet our heedlessness in this regard is so swift. Death is sufficient as an admonisher. One person and then the next departs, and the next one is left with no dreams [and hopes]."²

The grave protects the believer

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Nothing but the grave can protect a believer from evil people."²

Things which cause me to laugh and cry

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Three things caused me to laugh, and three things caused me to cry.

The following caused me to laugh:

- (1) A person who has hopes in this world while death is seeking him.

² البيان والتبيين ٣/١٥٧.

- (2) A person who is heedless yet [Allāh] is not heedless of him.

- (3) A person who laughs a mouthful, but he does not know whether Allāh is pleased or displeased with him.

The following caused me to cry:

- (1) The terror of what is to follow soon after death.

- (2) The end and termination of all deeds.

- (3) My standing before Allāh ta'ālā – I do not know whether He will admit me into Paradise or cast me into the Hell-fire."¹

I detest his actions

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu passed by a man who committed a sin, and people were hurling abuses at him.

So he said: "Tell me, if you were to find him in a well, will you not try to take him out of it?"

The people said: "Yes."

He said: "So do not swear your brother. Rather, thank Allāh ta'ālā for having saved you [from committing the same sin]."

The people asked: "Do you not detest him?"

He replied: "I only detest his action. If he gives it up, he is my brother."¹

I love three things

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"I love death out of yearning to meet my Allāh. I love poverty out of humility before my Allāh. I love sickness as an atonement for my sins."²

A letter on how to deal with one's sons

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu wrote to one of his brothers saying:

"People of the past were also involved in the matters of this world which you are involved in at present. And people who are to come after you will also be involved in the same matters. There is nothing for you except what you sent forward for your self."

"So give preference to yourself over worrying about setting right your children's affairs, because you are giving to someone who will not excuse you and accumulating for someone who will not thank you."

You actually accumulate for one of two people:

(1) One who acts in it in obedience to Allāh ta'ālā. If such is the case, he will be enjoying what you deprived yourself of. (2) One who acts in it in disobedience to Allāh ta'ālā. If such is the case, you will regret what you accumulated for him."

Allāh, neither of the two deserves your back-breaking efforts, nor do you have to give preference to him over your self."

"Hope for Allāh's mercy for those of them who have passed on, and entrust the provision and sustenance of Allāh ta'ālā for those of them who are still alive. Peace be to you."¹

A strict accounting

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Destruction to every accumulator who opens his mouth wide [out of greed] as though he is a mad man. He looks at what people have and not at what Allāh ta'ālā has. If it were possible for him, he would have joined the night to the day [worked 24 hours to accumulate the riches of this world]. How unfortunate! He will have to face a strict accounting and a severe punishment."²

The closest a person is to Allāh's anger

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The closest a person is to Allāh's anger is when he is himself angry. Beware of wronging the one who has no helper except Allāh."¹

The legacy of the 'Ād

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"O people of Damascus! Are you not ashamed?!"

"You are amassing what you cannot eat, constructing what you cannot live in, and hoping for what you cannot realize."

"Nations before you amassed plenty, had many hopes, and constructed fortified buildings. Whatever they amassed was ruined, their hopes were shattered into deception, and their homes were reduced to graves."

"Here are the 'Ād before you who filled the entire area between Aden and Oman with wealth and children. Now who is there who will buy the legacy of the 'Ād for even two dirhams?"²

² حلية الأولياء ٢١٧/١، وتغذيب الحلية ١٧٤/١.

Did you know or did you not know?

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The thing which I fear the most on the day of Resurrection is that I be asked: 'Did you know or did you not know?'"

"If I were to say: 'I knew', there will not remain a single verse of order or prohibition for which I will not be answerable for. I will be asked about the verses of order: 'Did you carry out its order?' and I will be asked about the verses of prohibition: 'Did you desist from its prohibition?'"

"So I seek refuge in Allāh ta'ālā from knowledge which does not benefit, a soul which is not satisfied, and a du'ā' which is not heard."¹

Sitting in the market places

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"What an excellent monastery a home is for a person. [By remaining in his house], he safeguards his self, eyes and private part in his house. Beware of sitting in the market places because they cause a person to engage in futile conversations and they divert him [from Allāh ta'ālā]."²

Remembrance of death

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

He said:

"When you think of the dead, consider yourself to be like one of them."²

A letter to Salmān al-Fārsī radīyallāhu 'anhu

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu wrote to Salmān radīyallāhu 'anhu saying:

"My brother, make the best of your health and free time before an affliction [death] which man cannot repulse descends on you."

"Make the best of the du'ā' of a person who is afflicted [because his du'ā' is certainly accepted]."

"My brother, make the masjid your house because I heard Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam saying: 'The masjid is the house of every pious person. Allāh guarantees comfort, mercy, and crossing the sirāt (the bridge over Hell) and proceeding towards the pleasure of Allāh ta'ālā for those who make the masājīd their homes.'"

My brother! Show mercy to the orphan, bring him close to you, and feed him of your food. I heard Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam saying to a person who was complaining about his hard-heartedness: 'Would you like your heart to become soft?' The man replied: 'Yes.' Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said to him: 'Take an orphan close to you, pass your hand [of affection] over his head, and feed him the food which you eat. This will soften your heart and you will be able to fulfil your need.'"

My brother, do not accumulate what you cannot be grateful for because I heard Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam saying: 'A person who accumulated of this world and obeyed Allāh ta'ālā with regard to his wealth will be brought forward on the day of Resurrection. He will be in front of his wealth and his wealth will be behind him. Each time the sirāt turns him around, his wealth will say to him: 'Proceed forward because you fulfilled your duty which was placed on you.'"

Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam said: 'The person who did not obey Allāh ta'ālā with regard to his wealth will be brought forward. His wealth will be placed on his shoulders, and it will cause him to stumble. It will say to him: 'Destruction to you! Why did you not obey Allāh ta'ālā?' This will continue until he himself will cry for his own destruction.'"

"My brother, I have been informed that you purchased a servant (khādim). I heard Rasūlullāh ṣallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam saying: 'A person will remain attached to Allāh ta'ālā and He to him as long as he is not served [by a servant]. Once he is served [by others], the accounting [of deeds] becomes obligatory on him.' [My wife], Umm ad-Dardā' asked me for a servant at a time when I was quite wealthy. But I disapproved of it because of the accounting [of deeds] which I heard about."

"My brother, do not be deluded into thinking that you are a Companion of Rasūlullāh ṣallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam. We have lived a long time after his departure, and Allāh ta'ālā alone knows what we attained after his departure."¹

The severity of the accounting of deeds

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"I was a businessman when Rasūlullāh ṣallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam was commissioned as a Prophet of Allāh ta'ālā. I tried to combine worship with business but the two could not combine. So I gave up my business and devoted myself to worship."

"I take an oath in the name of the Being in whose control is Abū ad-Dardā's life, I do not even wish I had a shop today which is right outside the masjid so that I do not miss a single ṣalāh, wherein I make a profit of forty dīnārs daily, and give all of it as charity in Allāh's cause."

was asked: "O Abū Dardā'! What do you make about this?"

he replied: "The severity of the accounting of deeds."¹

A part of you departs every day

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"O man! Tread the earth with your feet because it will soon become your grave. O man! You are merely a collection of days. A part of you departs with each passing day. O man! You have been destroying your life-span ever since your mother gave birth to you."²

Do not be the fourth

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Leave in the morning as an 'ālim, a student, or a person who is going to listen attentively [to knowledge which is imparted]. But do not be the fourth, or else you will be destroyed."

Al-Hasan rahimahullāh said: "The fourth is a mubtadi' (one who practices bid'ah - innovations)."³

There is no good in the riffraff

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"People are divided into three categories: an 'ālim, a student, and the third are the riffraff – there is no good in them."¹

He also said:

"The 'ālim and the student are partners in good. And all other people are the riffraff in whom there is no good."²

Competing in acts of obedience

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"There is no greatness in having a lot of wealth and children. Rather greatness lies in your being very forbearing, possessing a lot of knowledge, and in competing with people in worshipping Allāh ta'ālā. And when you do good, you thank Allāh ta'ālā. When you do wrong, you seek forgiveness from Allāh ta'ālā."³

"The one who frequents the doors of kings will have to stand and sit [he will have to demean himself]. The one who finds a door shut, will find an open door next to it. When he make du'ā' [at this door], his du'ā' will be accepted. And when he begs, he will be given."¹ [This is the door of Allāh ta'ālā].

Have love for the people of knowledge

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Seek knowledge. If you do not seek it, have love for those who possess knowledge (the 'ulamā'). If you do not love them, then do not detest them."²

Desires and deeds

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

The scattering of the heart

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhū said:

"O Allāh! I seek refuge in You from the scattering of the heart."

He was asked: "What is the scattering of the heart?"

He replied: "When it is placed in every deviated valley [it is easily influenced towards evil]."¹

Sins in privacy

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhū said:

"A person should be cautious of the hearts of believers detesting him without his perceiving it."

He was asked: "How does that happen?"

He replied: "A person becomes involved in disobeying Allāh ta'ālā in privacy. And so, Allāh ta'ālā casts loathing towards him in the hearts of the believers without his perceiving it."²

Pick up spikes of grain

Umm ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhā said to Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhū: "If I become needy after you pass away, must I eat from charity?"

He replied: "No. You must work and eat from your earnings."

She asked: "What if I am too weak to work?"

He replied: "You must pick up spikes of grain [and eat them], but do not eat from charity."¹

Those with the lightest load

Umm ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhā complained to Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhū, so he said:

"Impose patience on yourself because there is a difficult pass ahead of us, and only those with the lightest load will be able to cross it."²

Knowledge and action

"One time destruction to the person who does not know. Had Allāh willed, he would have known it. Seven times destruction to the person who knows but does not practise."³

Imām Aḥmad rahimahullāh narrates the above as follows: "When you are need, you must walk behind those who are harvesting grain and see what falls [from their bags of grain]. You must pick it up, grind it into flour and eat it. But do not ask anything from people. (az-Zuhd, p. 175)

Where will her Dīn be on that day?

Yazīd ibn Mu'āwiyah sent a proposal to Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu for his daughter, ad-Dardā', but he refused the proposal. One of those who was sitting there said: "May Allāh make you prosperous, will you permit me to marry her?"

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said: "Is it so far-fetched!?"

The man said: "So permit me, may Allāh make you prosperous."

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said: "Yes."

The man asked for her hand in marriage, and Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu got his daughter married to him.

People began speaking among themselves: "Yazīd sent a proposal to Abū ad-Dardā' but he refused. Yet, when one of the poor Muslims proposed, he accepted his proposal."

So Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said: "I was more concerned about ad-Dardā's welfare. Do you think I am not concerned about her? [If she were to get married to Yazīd] and she had attendants at her beck and call, and she looked at the rooms which dazzle her eyes [with all the comforts which she sees], where will her Dīn be on that day?"¹

He said: "One hundred clerks from a person's wealth is a very large number. But if you want, I can tell you of something superior to this: your īmān remaining attached to you by night and day, and your tongue remaining moist with the remembrance of Allāh ta'ālā."¹

The remembrance of Allāh

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"I prefer saying Allāhu Akbar 100 times to giving 100 dinārs in charity."

He said: "Those whose tongues are moist with the remembrance of Allāh ta'ālā will enter Paradise while they are smiling."

He said: "Do you want to know your best deed, the one which is most beloved to your Allāh, which would elevate your ranks the most, which is better than fighting against your enemy in which they kill you and you kill them, and better than giving dirhams and dinārs in charity?"

They asked: "What is it, O Abū ad-Dardā'!"

He said: "The remembrance of Allāh. And the remembrance of Allāh is the greatest."²

I fear drowning

Someone said to Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said: "Make du'ā' for us."

He replied: "I cannot swim well and I fear drowning."¹

Harmony between husband and wife

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said to his wife:

"When you see me angry, you must do things to make me happy. When I see you angry, I will do things to make you happy."²

Starvation from knowledge

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"I fear a hidden desire in a bounty which diverts your attention. This will be when you are satiated with food and are starving from knowledge."

The quick approach of death

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The best of you is the one who says to his friend: 'Come, let us fast before we die.' The worst of you is the one who says to his friend: 'Come, let us eat, drink and enjoy ourselves before we die.'"

Buildings

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu passed by some people who were constructing a building, so he said:

"You are renovating this world whereas Allāh ta'ālā wills its destruction. And Allāh's will always supersedes."

Mak-hūl said: "Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu used to go to ruined buildings and say: 'O ruined buildings! Where have the destroyed nations of the past gone to?'"

The wealthy

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"O assembly of wealthy people! Save yourselves from the heat of the Hell-fire by spending your wealth in Allāh's cause before you and I become equal in it. That is, if you do not spend your wealth, you will be merely looking at it. And those who do not have wealth also merely look at the wealth of the wealthy. [In this way, the wealthy and the poor will be equal]."¹

A bounty

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Whenever people cause me a calamity on any day, I believe there is certainly a bounty of Allāh ta'ālā in it."¹

Advice

A man said to Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu: "Teach me something through which Allāh ta'ālā will benefit me."

He said: "There are two, three, four and five things which if a person does, Allāh ta'ālā will reward him with high ranks:

1. Eat only what is pure and wholesome.
2. Earn only what is pure and wholesome.
3. Permit only the pure and wholesome into your house.
4. Beg of Allāh ta'ālā to provide you with sustenance one day after the other.
5. When you get up in the morning, consider yourself to be among the dead – as if you have already joined them.
6. Hand over your honour and dignity to Allāh ta'ālā, and if anyone swears you, is abusive to you, or fights with you, leave him for Allāh's sake.

7. When you do wrong, seek forgiveness from Allah ta'ala.⁷

We have an abode for which we are accumulating

Some guests went to Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhū. One of them passed the night on a bed blanket while another passed the night in the clothes he was wearing.

Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhū went to them then next morning and noticed how they spent the night. So he said: "We have an abode for which we are accumulating and to which we are to return."⁸

For an hour like mine

Umm ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhā relates that when Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhū was on his death-bed, he began saying: "Who is going to do for a day like mine? Who is going to do for an hour like mine? Who is going to do for a sleeping place like mine?" He then said: "We shall overturn their hearts and their eyes just as they did not believe in the signs the first time." (Sūrah al-An'am, 6: 110)⁹

A mark of intelligence

Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"A mark of a person's intelligence is his kindness in his way of life."

He also said: "The mark of a man's intelligence is his walking, entering, leaving, and sitting with people of knowledge ('ulamā')."

The list of foolish people

Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"How excellent is the sleep and eating of the intelligent ones! How they fault the remaining awake and fasting of foolish people! An atom's weight of good performed by a man of piety and conviction is greater, superior to, and better than mountains of worship of those who are arrogant."¹

Were it not for three things

Abū ibn Khulayd said: Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"Were it not for three things, I would not want to remain in this world."

This means that Allāh ta'ala does not look at the amount of fasting and spending the night in worship. Rather, he looks at piety which is in the heart. And so, piety is the measure of a Muslim.

الحمد لله الذي

I asked: "What are they?"

He replied:

(1) "Placing my facing in prostration before my Allāh during hours of the day and night as a way of sending forward for my life [in the Hereafter].

(2) Feeling thirsty in the heat of the afternoon [when I am fasting].

(3) Sitting in the company of people who select topics for discussion as fruit are selected. [That is, they discuss matters of intelligence and knowledge].

Perfection in taqwā is when a servant is fearful of Allāh ta'ālā to the extent of fearing Him even with regard to an atom's weight. So much so that he leaves out a thing which is lawful out of fear that it may be unlawful. This fear comes as a barrier between himself and what is unlawful.

Allāh ta'ālā explained to His servants their lot and destiny. He says: 'Whoever does an atom's weight of good shall see it. Whoever does an atom's weight of evil shall see it.' So do not disregard abstaining from the most insignificant evil, and do not disregard doing the most insignificant good deed."¹

The tongue

Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"There is no part of a believer which is more beloved to Allāh ta'ālā than his tongue. He will admit him into Paradise through it. There is no part of an unbeliever which is more abhorred by Allāh ta'ālā than his tongue. He will cast him into Hell through it."¹

Following desires

Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhu said to the people of Damascus:

"Are you content with filling yourselves with wheat bread year after year, while Allāh ta'ālā is not even remembered in your meetings? How is it your 'ulamā' are departing and the ignorant ones are not seeking knowledge? Had your 'ulamā' wanted, they would have increased, and had your ignorant people searched for knowledge, they would have found it."

"I take an oath in the name of the Being in whose control is my life, no nation was destroyed except for having followed its desires and considering itself to be pure and pious."²

Desire which resulted in grief

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Many a person thinks he is honouring his self when he is really dishonouring it."

"Many a desire fulfilled in a single moment results in a long grief for the person."¹

The gift of salām

A person said to Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu: "So and so person conveys salām to you."

He replied: "It is an excellent gift, and a light weight to carry."²

Allāh's pleasure and people's pleasure

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"When a person seeks Allāh's pleasure even if it means earning the displeasure of people, Allāh suffices him from the needs of people. When a person seeks people's pleasure while earning Allāh's displeasure, Allāh ta'ālā leaves him to the people."³

Building without a need

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"When a person refuses to pay his dues [obligations to Allāh ta'ālā] from his wealth, Allāh destroys his wealth in water and soil [Allāh causes him to waste it on buildings]."¹

Lame love

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Our wealthy brothers have not been fair with us. One of them says to me: 'O Abū ad-Dardā'! I love you for Allāh's sake.' But when I seek anything of this world from him, he leaves me and flees."

"It is sufficient honour for us when the wealthy run to us when they are in difficulty, and we do not run to them."²

We and the wealthy

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The wealthy eat and we also eat. They drink and we drink. They wear and we also wear. They have extra possessions which they look at. We also join them in looking at their possessions. But they will have to give an account for their possessions while we will be absolved of it.”¹

Do not abandon your brother

Abū ad-Dardā’ radīyallāhu ‘anhu said:

“If your brother changes and diverts from the condition in which he was, do not abandon him because of that. Your brother goes wayward at times, and comes onto the path at times.”²

The sign of an ignorant person

Abū ad-Dardā’ radīyallāhu ‘anhu said:

“There are three signs of an ignorant person: self-conceit, speaking excessively in matters which do not concern him, prohibiting something while doing it himself.”³

People have become thorns

Abū ad-Dardā’ radīyallāhu ‘anhu said:

The consequence of not enjoining good

Abū ad-Dardā’ radīyallāhu ‘anhu said:

“You must certainly enjoin good and forbid evil or else Allāh ta’ālā will impose an unjust ruler over you who will neither respect your seniors nor show mercy to your young ones. The best of you will make du’ā’ against him but the du’ā’ will not be accepted. You will ask for help but you will not receive it. You will seek forgiveness but you will not be forgiven.”¹

Learning a mas’alah (ruling)

Abū ad-Dardā’ radīyallāhu ‘anhu said:

“Learning a single mas’alah (ruling of the Shari’ah) is more beloved to me than spending the night in worship.”²

Abstinence

Abū ad-Dardā’ radīyallāhu ‘anhu said:

“Perfection in taqwā is when a servant is fearful [of Allāh ta’ālā] to the extent of fearing Him even with regard to an atom’s weight. So much so that he leaves out something which is lawful out of

Companions from another world

Abū ad-Dardā’ radīyallāhu ‘anhu was in the habit of sitting near graves. When someone asked him about it, he said: “I am sitting near people who remind me of my destination, and when I get up and leave them, they do not backbite me.”²

Admonishing in privacy

Abū ad-Dardā’ radīyallāhu ‘anhu said:

“The person who admonishes his brother in public has actually dishonoured him. And the one who admonishes him in private has actually embellished him.”³

The eyes

Abū ad-Dardā’ radīyallāhu ‘anhu said:

“O my son! Do not look at everything which you see in people because the one who does this will have to endure lengthy grief and his anger will not subside.”

“The one who only acknowledges Allāh’s favours in his food and drink has in fact done very little deeds, and his punishment has arrived. The person who is not independent of this world does not really own the world.”¹

The insignificance of this world

Abū ad-Dardā’ radīyallāhu ‘anhu said:

“These are among the signs of how insignificant this world is in the sight of Allāh ta’ālā: (1) this is the only place where He is disobeyed, (2) His treasures can only be acquired by discarding this world.”²

Knowledge and jihād

Abū ad-Dardā’ radīyallāhu ‘anhu said:

“The one who thinks that going out to seek knowledge in the morning and evening is not a jihād, then his intellect and opinion are certainly deficient.”

He also said: “The reward of a mujāhid is certainly recorded for the person who goes to the musjid to learn some good or teach it. He certainly returns with booty [reward].”³

Who is the dead man?

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu saw a man in a funeral who was asking [about the identity of the deceased person: "Who is this?"]

My complaint is my sins

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu fell ill, so his companions went to visit him. They asked him: "O Abū ad-Dardā! What is your complaint?"

He replied: "My complaint is my sins."

They asked: "What do you desire?"

He replied: "I desire Paradise."

They asked: "Should we call a doctor for you?"

People walking behind a person

The ignorant are not seeking knowledge

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

More knowledge makes one more accountable

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhū said:

"The person who increases in knowledge increases in the pain as well."³

Three beliefs of jāhilīyyah

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhū said:

"Knowledge is acquired through study, forbearance is acquired by imposing it on one's self, the person who makes an effort to seek good is bestowed with it, and the person who makes an effort to avoid evil is safeguarded against it."

أنتيه العافلين للمعرقدي ص ١٦٧.

It is sufficient

Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"To continue fighting is sufficient to render you a sinner. To continue disputing is sufficient to render you a wrongdoer. To continue relating whatever you hear – except what is connected to Allāh ta'ālā – is sufficient to render you a liar."¹

Excessive speech

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

“Those with the most sins on the day of Resurrection will be those who speak the most in matters concerning disobedience to Allāh ta’ālā.”¹

Noble ancestry

Someone asked Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu: “What is your ancestry?”

He replied: “My nobility lies in my Dīn, and my ancestry is soil. I was created from soil and I will return to soil. I will then be resurrected and proceed towards the scales [for the weighing of my deeds]. If my scales are weighty, my ancestry will indeed be very noble. And how honourable I will be in the sight of my Allāh who will admit me into Paradise! But if my scales are light, my ancestry will definitely be very ignoble. And how despicable I will be in the sight of my Allāh who will punish me – unless He showers forgiveness and mercy over my sins.”²

Knowledge does not decrease

A man from the Banū ‘Abas accompanied Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu. This man drank some water from the Tigris River.

1 حلية الأولياء ٢٠٢/١، وتحذیب الحلیة ١٦٣/١.

2 الزهد الكبير برقم ٧٦٣.

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu said to him: "Go and drink again."

He replied: "My thirst is quenched."

He said: "Do you think the little water which you drank from this [mighty] river reduced its water?"

He replied: "How can what I drank reduce its water?"

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "In like manner, knowledge does not decrease. So seek knowledge which would be of benefit to you."¹

Three categories of people

Tāriq ibn Shihāb relates that he spent a night with Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu to see what worship he engages in. Tāriq says: "He got up and began performing ṣalāh in the latter part of the night." Tāriq thought he would see him engaging in more worship, so he mentioned this to him.

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "Safeguard the five ṣalāhs because they atone for sins provided they are not major sins. When people complete the 'ishā ṣalāh, they depart in three ways:

- (1) The one who has a record against him and nothing in his favour.

¹حلية الأولياء ١٨٨/١، وتهذيب الحلية ١٥٦/١.

- (2) The one who has a record in his favour and nothing against him.

- (3) The one who has no record in his favour and nothing against him.

The first one makes use of the darkness of the night and the obliviousness of people to get engrossed in sin. He has a record against him and nothing in his favour.

The second one makes use of the darkness of the night and the obliviousness of people to stand up in prayer. He has a record in his favour and nothing against him.

The third one performed ṣalāh and went to sleep. He has no record in his favour and nothing against him.

Beware of overburdening yourself. Impose moderation and continuity [in your worship]."¹

Flowery speech

Some people in al-Madā'in heard that Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu is in the masjid, so they went in droves to him, until about 1000 assembled around him.

He stood up and began saying: "Sit down, sit down."

¹حلية الأولياء ١٨٩/١، وتهذيب الحلية ١٥٧/١.

When they sat down, he opened Sūrah Yūsuf and began reading it. So the people began parting and leaving until only about 100 were left. Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu became angry and said: "You wanted to hear some embellished and flowery speech? Then when I started reading the Book of Allāh ta'ālā to you, you departed!!"¹

The land does not sanctify anyone

Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhu wrote to Salmān al-Fārsī radiyallāhu 'anhu saying: "Come to the sanctified land [Bayt al-Maqdis]."

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu wrote a reply: "The land does not sanctify anyone. It is man's actions which sanctify him. I have heard that you have been appointed as a doctor.² If you are able to treat people, then good for you. But if you are merely posing as a doctor [without really being one], then beware of killing anyone because you will enter the Hell-fire for it."

So when Abū ad-Dardā' passed judgement between two people and they turned to depart, he would look at them and say: "By Allāh, I am merely posing as a doctor. Come back and relate your story to me once again."¹

² In other words, you have been appointed as a judge to sort out peoples' social problems and disputes just as a doctor treats illnesses.

When modesty and shame is removed

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"When Allāh ta'ālā wills bad or destruction for a person, He removes modesty from him. You will therefore find him to be detestable and despicable."

"When he is detestable and despicable, mercy is removed from him. And so, you will find him to be stern and hard-hearted. When this happens, trustworthiness is removed from him. This will result in his becoming treacherous and deceitful. When his happens, the rope of Islam is removed from his neck. This will result in his becoming accursed and doomed."²

The salām (Islamic greeting) is a trust

A man came to Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu and said: "O Abū Abdillāh! Such and such person conveys salām to you."

² حلية الأولياء ٢٠٤/١، وتحذیب الحلیة ١٦٤/١.

He replied: "Listen! Had you not conveyed it to me it would have been a trust around your neck [for which you would have been accountable]."¹

The heart and the body

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"The similitude of the heart and body is like a person who is paralysed and one who is blind. The paralysed man says: 'I see a date but I cannot stand up to get it, so carry me up.' The blind man carries him, he eats the date and also feeds it to the blind man."²

A wise word from an unbeliever

Hudhayfah radiyallāhu 'anhū and Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhū [were travelling] and stopped over by a Nibṭī woman. They asked her: "Is there a pure place where we can perform ṣalāh?"

She replied: "Purify your heart."

One of them said to the other: "Look at her! A wise word from the heart of an unbeliever."³

Illness is a form of admonishment

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhū went to visit one of his friends from Kindah who had fallen ill, and said to him:

"Allāh ta'ālā tests His believing servant with a misery, then gives him well-being. This becomes an atonement for his past sins, and a means for him to take admonition for the future."

"Allāh ta'ālā tests His immoral servant with a misery, then cures him. This causes him to become like a camel whose owner had tied and then released. He does not know why his owner tied him and why he released him."¹

Things which caused me to laugh and cry

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhū said:

"Three things caused me to laugh, and three things caused me to cry."

I laughed at:

(1) A person who has hopes in this world while death is pursuing him.

(2) A person who is heedless, whereas Allāh is fully aware of him.

¹صفة الصفوة ٢٨٢/١.

(3) A person who laughs with his mouth wide open, but does not know whether Allāh is angry with him or pleased with him.

I cried over:

(1) The separation from my beloveds - Muḥammad sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam and his companions.

(2) The terrifying scene at the time when I will have to experience the pangs of death.

(3) When I will stand before Allāh ta'ālā, not knowing whether I will be going towards the Hell-fire or towards Paradise."¹

When the soul gets its food

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu went into the market and bought some food. Zayd ibn Sauhān said to him: "O Abū 'Abdillāh! Are you doing this while you are a Companion of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam!"

He replied: "When the soul gets its food, it is satisfied, it becomes free for worship, and evil whisperings despair of having any influence on it."²

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The similitude of a believer in this world is like a sick man who has his doctor with him. The doctor knows his illness and the medicine which will treat him. When he desires something which will be harmful to him, the doctor refuses to give it to him, and says: 'Do not even go near it because if you consume it, it will destroy you.' The doctor continues prohibiting him until he is fully cured from his ailment."

"Similar is the case of a believer - he desires many things which others have been blessed with. But Allāh ta'ālā does not give them to him and keeps him away from them until He takes his life away and admits him into Paradise."¹

An offering of a fly

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"A man entered Paradise on account of a fly, and another entered Hell because of a fly."

People asked: "How did that happen?"

He replied: "Two men from one of the past nations came across some people with their idol.

Whenever anyone came to them, he had to make an offering to the idol."

The people said to one of them: "Make an offering."

He replied: "I do not have anything."

They said: "Give anything, even if it is a fly."

So he gave a fly as an offering, and continued on his way. He entered Hell because of this.

They said to the other man: "Make an offering."

He replied: "I cannot make an offering to anyone apart from Allāh ta'ālā."

So they killed him, and he entered Paradise.¹

Follow an evil deed with a good deed

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"When you commit an evil in privacy, follow it with a good deed in privacy. When you commit an evil in public, follow it with a good deed in public. In this way, the latter will be an atonement for the former."²

The external and the internal

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Every person has an external and an internal. When a person rectifies his external, Allāh ta'ālā rectifies his internal. When a person corrupts his external, Allāh ta'ālā corrupts his internal."¹

Silence and honesty

A man came to Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu and said: "Advise me."

He said: "Do not speak."

The man said: "A person who is living among people cannot abstain from speaking."

He said: "If you have to speak, speak what is right or remain silent."

The man said: "Give me more advice."

He said: "Do not become angry."

The man said: "I am overcome and unable to control myself."

He said: "When you become angry, restrain your tongue and hand."

The man said: "Give me more advice."

He said: "Do not intermingle with people."

The man said: "It is not possible for a person who lives among people not to intermingle with them."

He said: "If you have to intermingle with them, speak the truth and fulfil your trusts."¹

The angels' intercession for a person making du'ā'

Salmān radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"A person used to make du'ā' to Allāh ta'ālā during times of prosperity. He is then afflicted by adversity. Now when he makes du'ā', the angels say: 'We recognize this voice which is now coming from a weak man.' They intercede in his favour."

"If a person was not in the habit of making du'ā' to Allāh ta'ālā during times of prosperity, and now makes du'ā' when he is afflicted by adversity, the angels say: 'We do not recognize this voice which is coming from a weak man.' They do not intercede in his favour."²

A letter to Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu

Salmān radīyallāhu 'anhu wrote to Abū ad-Dardā' radīyallāhu 'anhu:

أسماء الصفوة ١/٢٨١.

"You will never acquire what you want unless you cast aside what you desire. You will never acquire what you hope for unless you exercise patience over what you dislike."

"Your speech should therefore be the remembrance of Allāh ta'ālā, your silence must be for reflection, and your looking must be for admonishment. This world is constantly shifting and its splendour is changing, so do not be deceived by it. Make the masjid your house. Peace be to you."¹

Moderation and continuity

Salmān radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Adhere to moderation and continuity in your deeds, and you will be the horse which wins."²

Abstinence

Salmān radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"If you befriend a wealthy person, beware of asking him anything if you want to maintain your position with him. This is because begging is a blight on the face of the beggar. The giver is forced to think highly of the person who returns what is given to him."¹

Obligatory and optional acts

Salmān raḍiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The person who engages in excessive optional acts while leaving out the obligatory ones is like a trader who loses his capital while he is seeking profits."²

The one with the most sins

Salmān raḍiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"The one with the most sins on the day of Resurrection will be the one who used to speak the most in matters of disobedience to Allāh ta'ālā."³

The appearance of knowledge

Salmān raḍiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"A time will soon come when knowledge will be in the open but practising on it will be hidden; people will maintain mutual contact verbally but their hearts will be cut off from each other. When they do this, Allāh ta'ālā will set a seal on their hearts, ears and eyes."¹

The fall of an 'ālim

Salmān raḍiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"What will you do in the following three situations: (1) when an 'ālim errs, (2) when a hypocrite disputes through the Qur'ān, (3) when the world chops off your necks [i.e. when you are reduced to poverty]?"

"As for the 'ālim, do not hand over matters of your Dīn to him."

"As for the hypocrite who disputes through the Qur'ān, you should know that the Qur'ān has a light like the light of the road. So accept from him what you recognize as being from the Qur'ān, and what you do not recognize, leave it to Allāh ta'ālā."

Dislike for leadership

Someone asked Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu: "What do you dislike about leadership?"

He replied: "It is very sweet when one is 'breast-fed' with it, but very bitter when one is 'weaned' off it."¹

Knowledge is like springs

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu wrote to Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhu:

"Knowledge is like springs which people crowd, and this person and that person and many others are filled with it. Thus, Allāh ta'ālā enables many people to benefit from it. Words of wisdom which are not uttered are like a body without a soul. Knowledge which does not emanate [from a person] is like a treasure which is not spent."

"The similitude of an 'ālim is like a man who holds a lamp on a dark road. All those who pass by obtain light from it, and each of them makes du'ā in his favour."²

If only the salt contained thyme

Abū Wā'il relates: "My friend and I went to visit Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu. He offered us barley bread and crushed salt. My friend said: "This salt would have been excellent if it had thyme."

"Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu left with his washing utensil and mortgaged it for thyme.¹ [He returned with the thyme] and when we all completed eating, my friend said: 'All praise is due to Allāh ta'ālā for making us content with what He gave us to eat.'"²

"So Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu said: 'Had you been content with what you were given to eat, my washing utensil would not have been mortgaged.'"²

Boasting

One day, the Quraysh were boasting [about their ancestry] before Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu. So he said:

"But I was created from a dirty drop [of semen], I will then become a rotting corpse, and then proceed towards the scale [of deeds]. If my scale is heavy, I am a noble person. If my scale is light, I am a wretched and ignoble person."³

Farewell advice

Sa'd radiyallāhu 'anhu went to visit Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu, and the latter began to cry. So Sa'd radiyallāhu 'anhu said to him:

"O Abū 'Abdillāh! Why are you crying? Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam was pleased with you when he passed away. You will go to him at the Fount [the Haud-e-Kauthar], and you will meet your companions."

Salmān radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "Listen! I am neither crying out of fear for death nor desire to remain in this world. Rather, it is because Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam had said to us: 'Your possessions in this world should be like what a rider carries [for his journey].' Now look at all these possessions around me."

Sa'd radiyallāhu 'anhu says: "The only items which he had around him were a vessel to wash clothes, a pair of tweezers and a washing utensil."

So Sa'd radiyallāhu 'anhu said to him: "O Abū 'Abdillāh! Give us some advice which we could hold on to after you."

ZAYD IBN THĀBIT radiyallāhu 'anhu

The conveyer of the heart

Zayd ibn Thābit¹ radiyallāhu 'anhu wrote to Ubayy ibn Ka'b radiyallāhu 'anhu:

"Allāh ta'ālā made the tongue a conveyer for the heart, and the heart a vessel and supervisor. The tongue submits to the instructions of the heart. If the heart is in line with the tongue, the statement will be balanced and the tongue will not stutter and falter. A person cannot be forbearing if his heart is not in front of his tongue. If a person leaves his speech to his tongue while his heart is not in agreement, it will result in his humiliation.

¹ Zayd ibn Thābit ibn ad-Dahhāk al-Anṣārī al-Khazrajī an-Najjārī. He was a scribe of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam, recording revelation for him, the senior teacher of the readers [of the Qur'ān], those proficient with the laws of inheritance, and the muftī of Madīnah. His father was killed in the battle of Bu'āth. Zayd radiyallāhu 'anhu was eleven years old when Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam emigrated to Madīnah. He had the honour of combining knowledge and companionship [with Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam]. The battle of Khandaq was the first battle in which he took part. He learnt the 'Ibrānī language by the instruction of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam. He was the one who compiled the Qur'ān for the first time during the era of Abū Bakr radiyallāhu 'anhu. He possesses many virtues and merits. He passed away in 45 A.H., (and in 51 A.H. according to some scholars). May Allāh ta'ālā be pleased with him.

If a person were to weigh his speech with his actions, they will coincide with his speech.

He thinks: Did you see a miserly who is only generous with words and counts his deeds as favours. This happens when his tongue is in front of his heart.

He thinks: Do you see honour and respect in a person if he does not uphold what he says, and then follows it? He says what he says while knowing it is his duty to say it at the time when he utters it.

He is not too interested in looking at the faults of others because the one who looks at the faults of others considers his own faults to be insignificant. He is like a person who imposes upon himself to do something which he was not ordered to do. May peace be on you."¹

Shyness

Zayd ibn Thābit radiyallāhu 'anhu came out with the purpose of going for the Jumu'ah ṣalāh. But he saw people returning. So he went into a house. When someone asked him the reason for doing this, he said: "The one who is not shy before people cannot be shy before Allāh ta'ālā."²

ABŪ SA'ĪD AL-KHUDRĪ radiyallāhu 'anhu

Means of salvation

Abū Sa'īd al-Khudrī¹ radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

"Be particular about fear (taqwā) of Allāh ta'ālā because it is the peak of everything."

"Be particular about jihād because it is the monasticism of Islam."

"Be particular about the remembrance of Allāh ta'ālā and recitation of the Qur'ān because it is your soul among the angels, and the cause of your remembrance among the inhabitants of earth."

¹He is Sa'd ibn Mālik ibn Sinān, Abū Sa'īd al-Khudrī al-Khazrajī. His father was martyred in the battle of Uhud. Abū Sa'īd radiyallāhu 'anhu took part in the battle of Khandaq and those which followed.

I was presented before Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam before the battle of Uhud when I was thirteen years old. My father said: "O Rasūlullāh! He has well-rounded bones." Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam began inspecting me [to see if I was old enough to take part in the battle]. He then said: "Send him back." And my father sent me back [I did not take part in this battle].

He was a senior 'ālim and muftī of Madīnah. He passed away in 74 A.H. May Allāh ta'ālā be pleased with him.

"Be particular about remaining silent except in matters of the truth. If you do this, you will overpower Satan."¹

Abstain from ostentation

Abū Salamah radiyallāhu 'anhu relates: "I said to Abū Sa'īd al-Khudrī: 'What do you think of the new things which people introduced with regard to their clothing, drinks, animals of conveyance, and food?'"

He replied: "O my nephew! Drink for the sake of Allāh, eat for the sake of Allāh, and dress for the sake of Allāh. Now if pride, boasting, showing off, or the desire to be heard enters any of this, it is a sin and extravagance. Carry out the domestic tasks in your house which Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam used to carry out in his house."²

Deeds which destroy a person

Abū Sa'īd al-Khudrī radiyallāhu 'anhu said:

Admonition at a grave

Sulaym ibn 'Āmir relates: "We joined a funeral at the Damascus gate, and Abū Umāmah al-Bāhili radīyallāhu 'anhu was with us. When he completed performing the janāzah ṣalāh and the people began burying the body, Abū Umāmah radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

'O people! You are spending your days and nights in an abode wherein you commit both good and evil deeds. Soon you will proceed to another abode, and it is this – and he pointed towards the grave – abode of solitude, darkness, worms and insects, and a constricted and cramped abode except for the one for whom Allāh ta'ālā expands. Then from this abode you will proceed to different places on the day of Resurrection.'

'In one of those places, Allāh's order will cover the people resulting some faces to be whitened and others to be blackened. You will then proceed to another place where pitch darkness will envelop the people. Light will then be distributed – the believer will receive it while the unbeliever and hypocrite will receive nothing. A similitude of this is related by Allāh ta'ālā in His Book when He says:

'Or [their deeds are] like the depths of darkness in a deep sea covered by a wave, topped by another wave, overcast by clouds – depths of darkness one above another. When he holds up his hand, he can hardly see it. He to whom Allāh gives no light, shall find no light at all.' (Sūrah an-Nūr, 24: 40)

The unbeliever and hypocrite will not be able to obtain any light from the believer just as a blind man cannot obtain any light from the sight of the one who can see.

The male and female hypocrites will say to the believers:

'Wait for us so that we may take some light from you! It will be said to them: 'Go back to your rear and search [for your own] light.' (Sūrah al-Hadīd, 57: 13)

They will go back to the place where light is being distributed but will not find anything. They will turn towards the believers but a wall with a door would have been placed between them 'within it will be mercy and on its outside, punishment.' (Sūrah al-Hadīd, 57: 13)

The hypocrite will remain at a loss until all the light is distributed and Allāh ta'ālā will separate the hypocrites from the believers."¹

Miserliness

Abū Umāmah radīyallāhu 'anhu said:

"O people! You are more mistaken than the people of jāhiliyyah. Allāh ta'ālā said that if you spend a single dīnār in His cause, He will give you the reward of 700 dīnārs, and 700 dirhams for one single dirham. Yet you are hoarding!"²

Sulaymān ibn Habīb said: "We went to visit Abū Umāmah radīyallāhu 'anhu. But when he saw some silver ornamentation on our swords, he became angry and said:

"If you spend three nights as a guard [guarding the Islamic borders], those engaged in worship may continue worshipping as much as they like [you will surpass them in reward]."²

Satan is still alive

When Abū Hurayrah radiyallāhu 'anhu used to go into sajdah (prostration), he would seek refuge from committing adultery, stealing, becoming an unbeliever, or committing a major sin.

Man's appointed time guards him

When 'Amr ibn al-'Ās¹ radiyallāhu 'anhu was about to die, he called his guards and asked: "What type of person was I to you?"

They said: "You were an upright person who used to honour us, give us, and do such and such good things."

He said: "I used to do that so that you would defend me from death. But death has approached, so get rid off it from me."

They started looking at each other and said: "By Allāh, we never expected you to make such a ¹ 'Amr ibn al-'Ās al-Qurashī as-Sahmī embraced Islam in the period of the peace treaty [of Hudaibiyah] six months before the Conquest of Makkah. Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam appointed him over the military detachment which went to Dhāt as-Salāsil, and appointed him as a zakāh assessor over Oman. He held this position until the demise of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam, and Abū Bakr radiyallāhu 'anhu retained him in this position.

He supported Mu'āwiyah radiyallāhu 'anhu in his dispute with 'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu. Consequently, Mu'āwiyah radiyallāhu 'anhu appointed him as an amīr of Egypt. He retained this position until his death in 43 A.H. May Allāh ta'ālā be pleased with him.

crooked statement. You know fully well that we cannot help you against death in any way."

He said: "I said it and I know what I said. But the reason for saying it is so that you may take admonition. Not taking any one of you to defend me against death is more beloved to me than such and such things. How correct ['Alī] ibn Abī Tālib was when he used to say: 'A person's appointed time is his guard [against death].'"¹

He then said: "O Allāh! I am not innocent whereby I could offer an excuse, nor do I have the power to exact revenge. If Your mercy does not encompass me, I will be destroyed."²

On the verge of the Hereafter

'Amr ibn al-'Ās radiyallāhu 'anhu said before he could pass away:

"We consider the shahādah – lā ilāha illallāhu Muḥammadur Rasūlullāh to be most superior."

I went through three stages in my life:

(1) I remember a time when there was no one who hated Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam more than me. And I did not desire anything more than the ability to get hold of him and kill him.

¹ Someone advised 'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhu to hire a personal guard, so he gave the above reply.

² طبقات ابن سعد ٤/٤٠٠، وسير أعلام النبلاء ٣/٧٦.

Had I died in such a condition, I would have been from the inmates of Hell.

(2) When Allāh ta'ālā placed Islam in my heart, Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam became the most beloved and most honourable of all to me. I could not look at him full in the face out of awe for him. Had I died in that state, I hope I would be among the people of Paradise.

(3) We were then made responsible for many things, and I do not know what my condition is.

When I die, I do not want any wailing woman to accompany my funeral, and no fire should be lit for me. Once you have buried me, throw soil over my grave then stand around it for as long as it takes to slaughter a camel and distribute its meat. Do this so that I could gain from your company and be able to see what answers I give to my Allāh's angels."¹

The following is related in al-'Iqd al-Farīd:

When 'Amr ibn al-'Ās radiyallāhu 'anhu was on his death-bed, he assembled his sons and said:

"O my sons! Can you help me in any way from Allāh's decree?"

They replied: "O beloved father! It is death. Had it been anything else, we would have protected you with our lives."

He said: "Make me sit up." So they made him sit up.

He then said: "O Allāh! You ordered me but I did not carry out Your orders. You reprimanded me but I did not pay heed. I am not innocent whereby I could offer an excuse, nor do I have the power to exact revenge. I am not proud, but I am seeking forgiveness. I seek forgiveness from You and turn to You in repentance. There is none worthy of worship except You. Glory to You. I was certainly from among the wrongdoers."

He continued repeating the above words until he passed away.¹

Dhāt as-Salāsil

Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam sent 'Amr radiyallāhu 'anhu on the military expedition of Dhāt as-Salāsil. The Sahābah radiyallāhu 'anhum experienced severe cold, so 'Amr radiyallāhu 'anhu said to them: "No one is allowed to light a fire." When they returned [to Madīnah], they complained [to Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam]. So 'Amr radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "O Prophet of Allāh! And I prohibited them from pursuing the enemy because I feared they might have someone waiting to ambush us."

Seeking help through patience and ṣalāh

'Abdullāh ibn 'Abbās radiyallāhu 'anhumā was given the news of one of his daughter's death while he was on a journey. So he said Innā lillāhi wa innā ilayhi rāji'ūn (to Allāh we belong and to Him is our return). He then said:

"She was an 'aurah (something which has to remain concealed) whom Allāh ta'ālā kept concealed, a responsibility which Allāh ta'ālā fulfilled for me, and a reward which Allāh ta'ālā sent to me." He then descended from his mount, performed two rak'ats of ṣalāh, and said:

"We have done what Allāh ta'ālā ordered us to do: 'Seek help through patience and ṣalāh.'"² (Sūrah al-Baqarah, 2: 153)

Those who are fearful

'Abdullāh ibn 'Abbās radiyallāhu 'anhumā was asked about those who are fearful, so he said:

"Their hearts are ulcerated on account of fear and their eyes are constantly crying. They say: 'How can we rejoice when death is behind us, the grave is in front of us, the Resurrection is our appointed time, our path is over Hell, and we are to stand before Allāh ta'ālā, our Sustainer?'"¹

The choicest servants

'Abdullāh ibn 'Abbās radiyallāhu 'anhumā said:

"Allāh ta'ālā has His choicest servants from His creation: They take delight from doing good, seek forgiveness when they do wrong, are grateful when bounties are bestowed to them, and are patient when they are put through trials and tribulations."²

Speak what the intellects can comprehend

'Abdullāh ibn 'Abbās radiyallāhu 'anhumā said:

"Speak to people with what they can understand. Do you want Allāh ta'ālā and His Messenger ṣallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam to be rejected?"³

Four virtuous qualities

'Abdullāh ibn 'Abbās radīyallāhu 'anhumā said:

"A person who has the following four qualities has certainly triumphed: honesty, modesty, good character, and gratefulness."¹

Good and evil

'Abdullāh ibn 'Abbās radīyallāhu 'anhumā said:

"Pondering over good urges a person to do it. Remorse over an evil propels a person to abstain from it."²

The doors of the kings

'Abdullāh ibn 'Abbās radīyallāhu 'anhumā said:

"Keep away from the doors of the kings [do not go to them] because you will not acquire any material benefit from them while they will damage your Hereafter."³

Crying

'Abdullāh ibn 'Abbās radīyallāhu 'anhumā said:

"The eye sheds a tear solely by the grace of Allāh ta'ālā. And a person only sheds a tear when an angel passes his hand over the person's heart."¹

The departure of knowledge

When Zayd ibn Thābit radīyallāhu 'anhu passed away, 'Abdullāh ibn 'Abbās radīyallāhu 'anhumā said:

"If anyone would like to see how knowledge departs, this is how it departs." [i.e. by the death of 'ulamā']

He also said:

"One 'ālim after another will continue dying and traces of the truth will get wiped off until there will be an abundance of ignorant people, and the 'ulamā' would have departed. The people will then practise on their ignorance, they will adopt creeds which are not on the truth, and in this way, they will deviate from the straight path."²

A materialistic mind

'Abdullāh ibn 'Abbās radīyallāhu 'anhumā said:

"The person who honours wealth and scorns poverty is cursed."¹

The Qur'an and Sunnah

'Abdullāh ibn 'Abbās radīyallāhu 'anhumā said:

"We have to confine to the Qur'an and the Sunnah of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam. If anyone then says anything on the basis of his person opinion, I do not know whether he will find it recorded in his good deeds or evil deeds."²

Five things

'Abdullāh ibn 'Abbās radīyallāhu 'anhumā said:

There are five things which are more beloved to me than having horses which are left for Allāh's cause [for jihād]. They are:

1. Do not speak about matters which do not concern you because this amounts to futility, and it may well be a sin. Do not speak about matters which concern you until you find an appropriate occasion for them. Many a time, a person speaks about a matter which concerns him, but at an inappropriate occasion. And so, this causes him fatigue and hardship.

This refers to a person who honours a wealthy person because of his wealth and scorns another because of his poverty.

² جامع بيان العلم وفضله ٢٢/٣٢.

2. Do not dispute with a foolish person nor a forbearing person. The forbearing person will cause you to become angry and the foolish person will offend you.
3. Speak about your brother in his absence as you would like him to speak about you. Pardon him for the things which you would want him to pardon you.
4. Treat your brother as you would like him to treat you.
5. Do deeds like a person who is fully aware that he will be rewarded for good and taken to task for sinning.¹

Advice

'Āmir ash-Sha'bī rahimahullāh relates that 'Abdullāh ibn 'Abbās radīyallāhu 'anhumā said:

"My father said to me: 'O my son! I see the Amīr al-Mu'minīn [Umar radīyallāhu 'anhu] summoning you, keeping you close to him, and seeking your counsel together with [senior]

Companions of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam. Now I want you to bear in mind the following three points:

1. Fear Allāh ta'ālā - 'Umar must never find you lying.
2. Do not disclose any secret of his.
3. Do not backbite about anyone before him.

'Amir rahimahullāh says: "I said to Ibn 'Abbās radiyallāhu 'anhu: 'Each one of these statements is better than a thousand.'"

Ibn 'Abbās radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "Each one of them is better than ten thousand."¹

Seeking knowledge

'Abbās radiyallāhu 'anhu said to his son 'Abdullāh radiyallāhu 'anhu:

"O my son! Do not seek knowledge for the following three reasons: (1) to show off with it, (2) to dispute with others through it, (3) to boast over others through it. And do not cast it aside for the following three reasons: (1) a desire for ignorance, (2) feeling you have too much of knowledge, (3) feeling shy to learn."²

'ABDULLĀH IBN AZ-ZUBAYR radiyallāhu 'anhu

Signs of the people of taqwā

Wahb ibn Kīsān rahimahullāh said: 'Abdullāh ibn az-Zubayr¹ radiyallāhu 'anhumā wrote the following admonition to me:

"The people of taqwā have certain hallmarks by which they are identified and which they themselves know: patience at the time of trials and tribulations, accepting the decree of Allāh ta'ālā, gratitude at times of prosperity, and submitting totally to the order of the Qur'ān."

"The imām is like a market place – whatever sells a lot in it will be taken to it. So if the imām disperses the truth, the truth will be taken to him and the people of the truth (ahl al-haqq) will go to him. If he disperses falsehood, the people of falsehood will go to him and it will be dispersed from him."¹

A sermon during the hajj season

Muhammad ibn 'Abdillāh ath-Thaqafī relates: I was present when ['Abdullāh] ibn az-Zubayr radiyallāhu 'anhu delivered a sermon during the hajj season. He appeared before us one day before the day of tarwiyah (8th of Dhū al-Hijjah) while he was in a state of ihrām. He said the talbiyah (labbayk Allāhumma labbayk...) in the most beautiful voice I ever heard. He then praised and thanked Allāh ta'ālā and said:

"You have come from different regions as delegates before Allāh ta'ālā. Allāh ta'ālā takes it upon Himself to honour His delegates. So whoever has come to seek from what Allāh ta'ālā has, let him know that the one who seeks from Allāh ta'ālā never goes empty-handed. Now show the truth of your words with deeds because deeds are the essential prerequisites of words. Be mindful of your intention, be mindful of your intention! Set right your hearts, set right your hearts!"

"Fear Allāh, fear Allāh in these days, because these are the days in which sins are forgiven."

¹حلية الأولياء ٣٣٦/١، وتهذيب الحلية ٢٣٦/١.

"You have come here from different regions – not for trade, not in search for wealth, nor to acquire of this world. Rather, you hope for what is here."

He then said the talbiyah and the people followed suite. I never saw more people crying than on that day.¹

AL-HASAN IBN 'ALĪ IBN ABĪ TĀLIB radiyallāhu 'anhu

This world

Al-Hasan ibn 'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhumā said:

"The person who seeks this world will be hampered by it. The one who is abstinent of it will not bother about who devours of it. The one who is desirous of it is actually a slave of the one who has it."

"The minimum of this world is sufficient, while having all of it will not make a person independent."

¹ He is al-Hasan ibn 'Alī ibn Abī Tālib al-Qurashī al-Hāshimī, the grandson of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam - the son of his daughter, Fātimah az-Zahrā radiyallāhu 'anhā. He was born in the 3rd year of the hijrah. There are many Ahādīth which mention Rasūlullāh's sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam love for al-Hasan and al-Husayn radiyallāhu 'anhumā. They are the leaders of the youth of Paradise. He took over the caliphate after his father, but was more concerned about safeguarding the lives of Muslims, and therefore relinquished the caliphate in favour of Mu'āwiyah radiyallāhu 'anhu. He was poisoned on more than one occasion. He passed away in 49 A.H. after a poisoning which he did not survive. May Allāh ta'ālā be pleased with him. He had countless virtuous qualities like his generosity and big-heartedness which were unparalleled.

"The one who considers his day in the world to be balanced is misled. The one who considers his today to be better than his tomorrow is deceived."

"The one who does not find any loss within his self is certainly in loss. And death is better for the one who is in loss."¹

Acceptance

Someone said to al-Hasan ibn 'Alī radiyallāhu 'anhumā: Abū Dharr radiyallāhu 'anhu says: "I prefer poverty to affluence, and illness to good health."

Al-Hasan radiyallāhu 'anhu said: "May Allāh ta'ālā have mercy on Abū Dharr. As for me, I say: The person who relies on Allāh's ta'ālā excellent choice for him will not wish for a condition different from what Allāh ta'ālā chose for him."²

Description of a friend

Muhammad ibn Kīsān said: al-Hasan radiyallāhu 'anhu said to his companions on one day:

Let me tell you about one of my brothers. He was the greatest of all people in my eyes. And what I considered to be the greatest, he considered to be the most insignificant in this world."

2 البداية النهاية ٤٢/٨.

"He was not dictated by his stomach. He would not desire what he could not obtain, and would not eat too much if he obtained it."

"He was not dictated by his private part, and so, his intellect and opinion will not be dimmed by it."

"He was not dictated by his ignorance, and so, he will not extend his hand unless he was sure of some benefit. He would not take a step unless it was for a good deed. He would neither get angry nor annoyed."

"When he was in the presence of 'ulamā', he would prefer to listen to them than to speak in their presence."

"If he did speak, his moments of silence were more than his speech."

"He spent a major portion of his life remaining silent. But if he did speak, he would triumph over those who spoke. He would not take part in any claims, not enter into any discussion or place which would cause him to show off, and would not advance any argument unless he saw a judge saying something which he does not do, and doing something which he does not say. He did this out of his merit and honour."

"He would not be unmindful of his brothers and would not reserve anything for himself to their exclusion."

"When two matters presented themselves before him - and he did not know which of the two was closer to the truth - he would see which of the two was closer to his desires and act against it."¹

'Ā'ISHAH UMM AL-MU'MINĪN radiyallāhu 'anhā

Noble characteristics

'Ā'ishah¹ radiyallāhu 'anhā said:

There are ten noble characteristics: (1) honesty in speech, (2) genuine courage in the obedience of Allāh ta'ālā, (3) giving to a beggar, (4) repaying one who does good to you, (5) maintaining family ties, (6) fulfilling trusts, (7) fulfilling one's responsibilities to one's neighbour, (8) fulfilling one's responsibility to one's guest, (9) and the peak of all this is shame and modesty (hayā)."

The narrator probably forgot the tenth characteristic.¹

¹ She is 'Ā'ishah bint Abī Bakr as-Siddīq, the wife of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam. She was the most beloved of all his wives. Among her special qualities was that not only was she the most learned of his wives, but the most learned of all women. Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam married her in Makkah and consummated the marriage in the 2nd year of the hijrah in Shawwāl after the battle of Badr. Apart from Abū Hurayrah radiyallāhu 'anhū, no Ṣahābī related as many Aḥādīth as her. The Ṣahābah radiyallāhu 'anhū used to refer to her when they experienced any difficulty in understanding any matter. She was eighteen years old when Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam passed away. She passed away in 58 A.H. and Abū Hurayrah radiyallāhu 'anhū performed the janāzah salāh over her. May Allāh ta'ālā be pleased with her.

Allāh's pleasure

'Ā'ishah radiyallāhu 'anhā said:

"When a person earns the anger of people for the sake of Allāh's pleasure, Allāh ta'ālā causes him to be independent of the people. When a person pleases people while earning Allāh's displeasure, Allāh ta'ālā leaves him to the people [he becomes dependent on them, but they are unable to fulfil his needs]."²

The flourishing of communities

'Ā'ishah radiyallāhu 'anhā said:

"Good character, good neighbourliness, and maintaining family ties cause communities to flourish and increase life-spans, even if the people are sinners."³

I wish

Abstinence

The first innovation

'Ā'ishah radīyallāhu 'anhā said:

"The first innovation (bid'ah) after Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam left this world is eating to one's fill. When people's stomach became filled, their souls defied them and hastened towards this world."³

A small charity

'Ā'ishah radiyallāhu 'anhā said:

"Do not scorn any amount of charity because a small seed given in charity will be weighed as mountains of rewards on the day of Resurrection."¹

Abū al-'Āliyah rahimahullāh said: "I was with 'Ā'ishah radiyallāhu 'anhā and several other women were with her. A beggar came to her and she asked someone to give the beggar a grape seed. The women were astonished [at this small and insignificant charity], so she said: 'It contains numerous tiny particles [each of which will turn into a reward for the giver].'"²

Deal with people according to their ranks

'Ā'ishah radiyallāhu 'anhā said:

"Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam ordered us to deal with people according to their ranks while bearing in mind what Allāh ta'ālā says in the Qur'ān: 'Above every knowledgeable person, there is one more knowledgeable.'"³ (Sūrah Yūsuf, 12: 76)

UMM AD-DARDĀ' radiyallāhu 'anhā

Reprimand your self

Sulaym ibn 'Āmir relates: "Umm ad-Dardā'¹ radiyallāhu 'anhā sent me to Nauf al-Bakālī and to another person who used to relate stories in the masjid. She said to me: 'Go and tell them: 'Fear Allāh, and let your admonishment to people be to your own selves.'"²

The speech of the deceased

Hazār relates: Umm ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhā said to me:

"O Hazār! Do you want to know what a deceased person says when he is laid in his bier?"

¹ Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhu married two women both of whom had the kunnīyyat of Umm ad-Dardā'. The first one's name was Khayrah bint Abī Hadrād. She was the senior Umm ad-Dardā'. She was one of the most virtuous and intelligent women. She was a Companion of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam and she passed away before Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhu.

The second one was the junior Umm ad-Dardā'. Mu'āwiyah radiyallāhu 'anhu had proposed to her after the death of Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhu but she did not accept his proposal. Her name was Hujaymah al-Waṣābīyyah. She was not a Companion of Rasūlullāh sallallāhu 'alayhi wa sallam. She relates [Ahādith] from Abū ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhu.

I replied: "Indeed."

She said: "He calls out: 'O my family! O my neighbours! O you who are carrying my bier! Do not let the world deceive you as it deceived me. Do not let it play around with you as it played around with me. My family could not bear any of my sins for me. If they could argue on my behalf before the Almighty, they would have done so.'"

She then said: "The world is more bewitching to the heart of a person than Hārūt and Mārūt. Anyone who gave preference to this world was most certainly disgraced and humiliated."¹

Discussing matters of knowledge

'Aun ibn 'Abdillāh narrates: "Umm ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhā came to us so we began speaking in her presence. After some time, we said to her: 'O Umm ad-Dardā! We must have got you tired.'

"She replied: 'You did not get me tired and bored. I always sought worship in everything, and I did not come across anything more satisfying to my soul than discussing matters of knowledge.' Or she said: 'than discussing matters of jurisprudence.'"²

Hard-heartedness

A man complained to Umm ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhā about his hard-heartedness. So she said to him: "Visit the sick, attend funerals, and look into the graves."¹

Are you asking for the sake of practising?

Wahb al-Makkī relates: A youngster was posing questions to Umm ad-Dardā' radiyallāhu 'anhā and he asked her many questions. So she asked him: "Do you practise on everything which you ask?"

He replied: "No."

She said: "The more questions you ask the more you are increasing Allāh's evidence against you. [The more you know the more you will be accountable for]."²

About the Book

The generation of the Sahābah رضي الله عنهم is considered to be the peak of expression in human history. They are the ones whom Allāh ta'ālā selected to be the companions of His Prophet ﷺ in the journey of bearing the message of guidance which emanated from the land of Makkah to carry goodness and guidance to all parts of the world. No generation in the past reached this rank, and no generation thereafter would ever reach such a position.

They were a unique people whose true value can only be ascertained by a true and genuine believer. And it is only a hypocrite who can belittle them.

They [the Sahābah] were given something which no other generation was ever given...their experiences, their knowledge and their understanding of matters are considered to be sources in the understanding of the Book of Allāh and the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh ﷺ.

This is why their statements are considered to be an important source for every Muslim. Their statements convey a person to that most superior era, enable him to inhale that wonderful fragrance, and breathe in that allpervading aroma...he is able to see – with the eyes of his heart – the personalities behind those names who are still filling the ears and eyes since time immemorial.

This book is a collection of some of the wise words of wisdom which emanated from the blessed mouths of the Sahābah رضي الله عنهم. It is hoped that the reader will benefit from them and practise on them.
